Uncle Sam in Business.
Is This Inflation?
Japan Spends, for Defense.
Mountains in the Sea.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GOVERNMENT tells farmers to reduce wheat acreage twenty per cent, tells the cotton men to reduce. Suddenly, it discovers that this year's wheat crop will be the smallest in forty years; the oat crop smallest on record.

That may explain the sudden rise in grain prices. Speculators knew what was going to happen before the government knew. May wheat went to $1.14 yesterday.

THE GOVERNMENT will investigate, and, if necessary, direct every kind of business. That is the biggest news since the war started.

A minimum wage and a maximum "hours of work" schedule will apply to every business and industry. The suggestion is $14 a week for the lowest wages paid anywhere, and a working-week of 35 to 40 hours.

A day's work of about six hours could hardly be enforced on the farmer. He will tell you that it takes a farm hand about six hours to get his team fed, harnessed, out to the field, then back again, unharnessed, fed and put away for the night.

COL. ANTHONY J. DREXEL, banker in Paris and Philadelphia, comes home worried about the dollar, advising Americans to "remember what happened to Germany."

As well tell your friends, drinking a small glass of beer, to remember what happened to a man with delirium tremens.

We could make money sufficiently plentiful to do business without printing tens of thousands of millions of worthless paper, as Germany did.

COL. DREXEL reports:

"I saw no outrages in Germany. The Jews that were thrown out of the country were Communists."

That will surprise friends of the distinguished scientist, Prof. Einstein. He is not generally supposed to be a Communist.

As for "reckless inflation" that worries Col. Drexel and others, facts take care of that.

INSTEAD OF increasing, the circulation of dollars in America dropped off $92,000,000 in June. All the dollars in existence amount to only forty-six dollars and thirty-one cents for each American. Is that inflation? A healthy Negro slave, in the old days, was worth $1,000.

The country needs five to ten billion more dollars and ought to print them. If the government printed fifty billions that would not be inflation, considering the nation's wealth. This isn't some little European nation. It is a real country.

MONEY is not plentiful in Japan, one state in this union is richer than the Japanese empire. But where self-defense is concerned Japan does not hesitate, and she will spend $156,000,000 to build up her navy equal to Britain's or the United States.

The Japanese keep up to date. They will spend forty-eight million dollars on eight new air fleets, build six new submarines, eight torpedo boats, fast cruisers, aircraft carriers of high speed, and not one battleship.

Unlike this country, which remains fifty years behind, the Japanese are not going to build any battleship targets for enemy airplanes. We are about to spend tens of millions renovating old battleships that will have to be hidden away from airplanes and submarines if war comes.

ADD TO the list of California wonders a mountain just discovered under the Pacific Ocean. This mountain stands at the bottom of the sea about 50 miles off Monterey, rising 7,500 feet from the floor of the ocean. No menace to navigation, for the ocean is two miles deep at that spot.

Some day when men learn how to resist water pressure they will prospect that mountain and find what is in it.

TWO MORE interesting kidnapings, that of a banker 78 years old and the young nephew of influential Albany politicians for whose return $250,000 ransom is asked.

President Roosevelt has assured Senator Copeland, of New York, that the federal government will look into kidnaping, among other industries, and that should have some effect.

Senator Copeland says racketeering and assorted crime costs this country ten billions to fifteen billions a year. A country that can stand that ought to be able to stand a little inflation.

JAPAN TEACHES us about self-defense, ordering plenty of airplanes. France teaches us another kind of self-defense, increasing her tariff from 30 to 150 per cent on 64 different articles, of which a great many, such as bathtubs and razor blades, are imported from the United States.

If this country's employers must pay high wages and work men short hours, it will be necessary to put tariffs sky high, or better still, shut out foreign goods completely.

Why should anybody be allowed to import beer or wine, when American vineyards, farms and breweries can supply all the grain, beer and wine needed, and excellent?

THE ARREST in New York of Joseph Toblinsky and his son, Henry, shows that racketeering is not new. Thirty years ago Mr. Toblinsky was convicted as a horse-poisoning racketeer. He put arsenic in the feed bags of truck horses, when the owner of the truck would not pay "for protection."

This time he is arrested for kidnaping Mr. Bornstein and taking his truckload of woolens. Now Mr. Bornstein admits that he made a deal to be kidnaped and lose the truck, and he is in jail also.

BALBO SPANS FOG-BOUND ATLANTIC

Armada Lands Safely In Labrador After Longest Flight

SHEDIAC, N. B., July 12.—(AP.)—The Italian air squadron, led by Gen. Italo Balbo, arrived this afternoon at Cartwright, Labrador, ending its flight from Iceland, according to a wireless report received here.

The information of completion of the flight from Reykjavik to the Labrador port, a distance of 1,500 miles and the longest stage in the trip from Italy to Chicago, was received at the Italian air base here.

The fleet of 24 seaplanes descended at Cartwright at 1:30 p. m. Atlantic standard time (1:30 p. m. Pittsburgh time).

According to the time given in the wireless message, the 1,500 miles were covered in 10½ hours. An earlier message to Reykjavik told of flying blind for 20 minutes through fog.

DANGEROUS TAKEOFF

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 12.—(INS.)—Pointing out over ice-filled seas and into skies filled with blinding fog banks, the 24 seaplanes of the Italian trans-Atlantic expedition took off today on the longest and most hazardous leg of their flight from Orbetello, Italy, to Chicago.

They left for Cartwright, Labrador, 1,500 miles away. The first ship, carrying Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister and commander of the expedition, took the air at 6 a. m. (3 a. m. Pittsburgh time), and it was two hours and 24 minutes later before the last plane left the water.

A calm almost as bad as that which yesterday held up their departure pervaded the harbor and made it extremely difficult for the planes, heavily-laden with gasoline, to lift themselves into the air.

FACE PERILS

Aside from its length, the Reykjavik-Cartwright hop, fourth of the long trip, held many perils, Gen. Balbo expected his airmen to have to fly blind a good portion of the way because of numerous fog banks along the route.

This made the possibilities of collision great, and it was emphasized that even the slightest misunderstanding of signals might result in a crash.

Roosevelt's Son To Sue on Friday

RENO, Nev., July 12.—(AP.)—Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, will file suit at Minden, Friday, for a divorce from Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt Philadelphia heiress, his attorney, Samuel Platt, announced here today.

Ousted Bosses Re-Hired by City In Herron Deal

Back on the city payroll today, with titles of general construction overseers of labor, were Justus Schroedel, Republican ward chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward, and Charles A. Hillegas, who, until his split with Mayor John S. Herron, was the boss of the Mayor's own ward—the Thirteenth.

Moreover, their salaries of $1.25 an hour, will come out of the unemployed work relief fund set aside by Council out of the $900,000 bond sale. Both men had been dropped from the city payroll at the budget-cutting session of Council.

POLITICAL MOVE

The appointments were seen as a move by the Mayor to strengthen his political rating in both wards. Hillegas, following a rift with Herron, was defeated in the fight for the Thirteenth Ward chairmanship by Traffic Magistrate J. Scott Morgan, the Mayor's entry.

Schroedel is still Republican ward chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward. His removal as assistant superintendent in the bureau of recreation was rumored to have followed a split with Herron. The removal of Schroedel didn't help Herron's chances of carrying the Twenty-fourth.

Hillegas had been assistant superintendent of the bureau of highways and sewers. Even after his defeat by Magistrate Morgan, he was still reputed to have a big following in the Thirteenth.

100 WORKING DAYS

The new jobs will last for about 100 working days, according to H. B. Johnson, construction engineer of the Bureau of Bridges, for whom Schroedel and Hillegas will work.

Of the $900,000 bond sale, Council took $300,000 for unemployed work relief, and out of the $300,000 a sum of $200,000 was set aside for street improvements by Council. It will be out of the $200,000 that the salaries of Schroedel and Hillegas will come.

Helen Casey, daughter of P. J. Casey, Republican ward chairman of the independent Fourteenth Ward, was put on the payroll as a stenographer at a salary of 50 cents an hour in the same deal.

BEER FLOWS IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 12.—(AP.)—Gov. William H. Murray decided today to let Oklahoma have its beer.

After 80 of the Governor's national guardsmen had prevented overnight unloading of the brew legalized in a special election yesterday, "Alfalfa Bill" today issued a proclamation announcing sales would not be interfered with.

The proclamation was the signal for fleets of beer trucks to rumble into action, transporting cases of brew from railroad cars to wholesale and retail dealers.

Applicants for beer licenses swarmed the offices of the tax commission.

Returns from 2,737 of the state's 3,313 precincts gave the wet side a majority of 88,604, the vote being 202,778 to 114,174.

Gov. Murray said his martial order last night was "to prevent them from making a joke of the law."

HINT RANSOM PAID TO FREE O'CONNELL

Release of Albany Youth Expected By Friends

Associated Press.

Developments, perhaps of a startling nature, appeared imminent today in the cases of three men held for ransom by kidnapers.

At Albany, N. Y., a sum of money reported as being between $50,000 and $100,000 was understood to be ready for payment to the abductors of Lieut. John J. O'Connell, Jr., nephew of the Democratic party leaders, Daniel and Edward O'Connell, and the youth's release was reported to be imminent.

The kidnapers of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, who has been missing since July 1, have communicated anew with his family in Chicago, sending a ring belonging to Factor as proof that he is their prisoner. It was rumored that Factor may be returned home today.

The aged Alton (Ill.) banker, August Luer, kidnaped from his home Monday night, has not been heard from. Posses are hunting his abductors while his family seeks to establish contact with them. Fears are felt for the banker because of the poor condition of his health.

A Fulton (Ga.) grand jury indicted Pryor Bowen, 17-year-old schoolboy, last night for the kidnaping of John K. Ottley, Atlanta banker, last Thursday. Ottley escaped shortly after the kidnaping.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—(AP.)—Reports were flying today that young John J. O'Connell, Jr., nephew of the upstate Democratic dictators, would be freed by his kidnapers today after a ransom was paid.

The Albany Evening News heard the abductors had agreed to accept $20,000, a small share of the $250,000 demanded. The paper also said the 24-year-old son of the eldest of the three O'Connells would be released in the historic Catskill Mountains, south of the city.

Dan O'Connell, one of the uncles, and the father of the hostage, were away from Dan's Helderberg mountain retreat all of the morning. A friend at the camp said they were "out for a ride." All at this remote spot, about 20 miles from Albany, were confident the boy would be releasd today.

RUMORS OF FREEDOM

There were persistent rumors that the kidnaped youth would be given his freedom in New York City. An individual high in the O'Connell family council, however, discounted this report and New York City police had no information to corroborate it.

Young O'Connell was kidnaped last Friday morning as he returned

Former Police Magistrate John W. Orie wants to be a Jury Commissioner. He took out nomination petitions for signatures today. Orie served a jail term on charges of evading income tax payments in 1930 after a series of trials and appeals.

Bread Increase Drains Relief Funds Here

In order to cover increased prices on bread and other commodities here, the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board has urgently appealed to state authorities for more funds.

Prices here have risen to the extent that the County Board has asked for an increase in the July relief allotment, making it $1.07 per person per week instead of 90 cents per person.

George P. Mills, director of the County Relief Board, revealed that the state has refused the first request for more money and that a second plea, setting forth increased prices in the Pittsburgh area, has been sent to Harrisburg.

The number of relief cases in Allegheny County July 1 totaled 71,262, as against approximately 75,000 cases at the peak. The amount of money necessary, however, to feed the people because of increased food prices is actually greater than at the peak, Mills declared.

Pittsburgh bakers are seeking to avoid a second increase in the price of bread, according to Fred C. Haller, of the Western Pennsylvania Bakers Association.

Two Appearing Against One Wooer

MISS BETTY KERSTON

MISS LILLIAN DAVIS

Miss Davis, 26, the girl left waiting in an unpaid-for hotel room, and Miss Kerston, 24, McKeesporters both, pictured today as they faced Leonard Urban, 26, 77 South Twentieth street, before Magistrate Alexander Lang and told how he separately courted both, induced them to marry him so he could inherit many thousands of dollars. Neither married but he was arrested in a minister's home to which he had taken Miss Kerston. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

RACKET BOMB ROCKS 'STRIP'

Another bomb—hailed as a warning from racketeers—shook the "Strip" early today, exploding in the rear of the home of Joseph Bajoras, 2413 Smallman street, according to police records.

The blast, occurring about 4:30 a. m., shattered windows in homes and factories nearby. No one was injured.

Bajoras, according to the records of federal authorities, has been arrested on several occasions for violations of the prohibition law.

The explosion is the second to occur within a year on the premises, according to police.

Bajoras, his wife and two children, Jean, 8, and Ruth, 4, occupy a combination garage and dwelling at the rear of the lot where police say today's explosion occurred.

Bajoras told a Sun-Telegraph reporter that there had been no bombing. He said:

"There was no bomb. It was a gas explosion next door."

Mark Hellinger, Gladys Glad Rewed

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Mark Hellinger and Gladys Glad, who were divorced in Mexico last year, paid a surprise visit to City Hall today and had Clerk Michael J. Cruise make them man and wife again.

Hellinger, a newspaper columnist, gave his age as 32, and the blonde Miss Glad, a former Follies girl whom Florenz Ziegfeld once described as "the most beautiful in the world," said she was 24.

Racing Sloop Flies Distress Signals

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Mackay Radio Company reported today it had picked up a message from the steamer Sulk, announcing that the sloop Highland Belle was flying distress signals about 30 miles east of Cape May, N. J.

The sloop was reported to have been one of the fleet that participated in a recent race from New London, Conn., to Gibson Island.

LEONARD URBAN

Heart Attack Kills Jay Gould's Son

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 12.—(AP.)—Edwin Gould, 67, son of the late Jay Gould, pioneer railroad magnate, died at his country home here last night of a heart attack.

BRIDES-TO-BE FACE 'HEIR'

Two indignant young women faced a persuasive young man, who had almost induced them to marry him by a tale of a $91,000 legacy, in McKeesport Police Station today.

The young man, Leonard Urban, 26, of 77 South Twentieth street, was arrested late yesterday as he accompanied his prospective bride No. 2 to the home of the Rev. C. J. Whitlatch, pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Uniontown. The latter had read in the Sun-Telegraph of Urban's being wanted for alleged passing of bad checks in pre-honeymoon purchases.

Today Urban was held by Magistrate Alexander Lang, of McKeesport, for a hearing tonight before him as an alderman. To the charge of false pretense on which he was arrested will be added a charge of passing worthless checks, police said.

Appearing against Urban were Lillian Davis, McKeesport beer garden hostess, and Betty Kerston, 24, of 128 Third street, McKeesport.

Gilda Gray Sued; Biography Unpaid

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Gilda Gray, dancer, loves to read biographies. The American Historical Society, Inc., filed a judgment yesterday asserting she wouldn't pay for the entertainment. The company claimed she owed $691 for her copies of the "Encyclopedia of American Biography," which contains an exhaustive article on Miss Gray.

END HEARING HERE INTO PAY, HOURS

Naming of Banker as Head of Aluminum Company Fought

A brief flare-up over whether the name of Andrew W. Mellon should go into the records of the sweatshop investigation here punctuated the hearing before the Gallagher Commission today.

The hearings ended at noon after employers had testified concerning wages and working conditions in their plants.

The Mellon reference came up in a clash between Clarence J. Moser and Senator G. Mason Owlett, members of the commission. Owlett is chairman.

W. C. White, of the Aluminum Company of America, a Mellon firm, was on the stand denying sweatshop wages are paid or women are replacing men at the New Kensington plant.

MENTIONS MELLON

Suddenly Moser, an Allentown labor leader and appointed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot as a member of the commission, shot at White:

"Who is the head of the corporation?"

White said it was headed by the chairman of the board, and Moser pursued:

"Who is the principal stockholder?"

White answered:

"I can't answer that."

Chairman Owlett interrupted:

"We are not going to make a sensation here for the benefit of the newspapers."

Moser retorted:

"I'm not here for Andy Mellon or Joe Grundy or any other."

Owlett then said:

"And I'm not here to treat any employer as a crook."

MEMBERS WRANGLE

The exchange ended there after a brief wrangle over the commission's functions.

At the conclusion of the hearing Senator Owlett said that employers of the Pittsburgh district apparently were doing their best to maintain wages and comply with existing laws in the face of adverse economic conditions.

The commission will meet in

Mme. Lupescu Hissed In Anti-Jewish Riot

VIENNA, July 12.—(INS.)—Sixteen priests and 31 leaders of the anti-Semitic "iron brigade" were under arrest at Ramuneu-Sarat, Rumania, today, according to radio reports here, following a street clash involving Magda Lupescu, Jewish companion of King Carol.

Police charged the priests, the anti-Semite leaders, and more than 100 peasants hissed Mme. Lupescu on the street, stormed Jewish shops, and beat scores of Jews.

Germany Seizes Einstein's Launch

BERLIN, July 12.—(AP.)—Prof. Albert Einstein's racing launch, lying in the Havel River near his Caputh home, was seized yesterday by police on information that the scientist intended to have the boat shipped to Belgium.

Einstein has taken up residence at Coq-sur-Mer, Belgium. He went there in March after a visit in the United States, announcing he would never set foot in Germany again while present conditions persist in his native land.

Meine Buc Hope To Halt Braves

The Pittsburgh Pirates were perilously close to a drop into the second division as they fought off the stubborn Braves of Boston this afternoon in the second game of the series. The Buccos were a bit more than a full game in front of the Braves.

Heine Meine and Leo Mangum, two veteran righthanders, warmed up to oppose each other on the slab in the second fight.

ROOSEVELT IN SPECIAL DRIVE TO PUT MINERS TO WORK

CODE PROVIDES $5 BASIC WAGE FOR PIT MEN

President's Plan May Transfer Some To Farms

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The coal industry is proving to be one of the most difficult to line up under President Roosevelt's recovery program system of fair competition codes, not because of lack of co-operation on the part of the coal interests but because of "inherent difficulties," it was stated at the White House today.

In the first place, it was made plain, there is such a tremendous number of persons who have worked in mines that it probably will be impossible to re-employ all of the miners now idle.

200,000 JOBS

Under the industrial recovery program the President plans to put perhaps 200,000 men to work, but it was stated that even with this increase there still would be approximately one-third of the present unemployed coal workers out of work.

In view of this situation, the President has directed his aides to work out a plan to place workers who have hitherto been employed only in coal mines on farms or at least to combine permanent farming activities with necessarily temporary or periodical coal mining work.

Meanwhile, operators representing mine areas in 14 states who have contractural relations with the United Mine Workers of America, had before them today a code providing a $5 a day basic wage for underground workers and corresponding rates for others.

TOP WORKERS

The top workers would receive a basic wage of $4 a day. The operators adopted the presidential ruling in the textile code which would maintain the difference between minimum wages and the higher wages paid to more skilled employes.

This differential would apply to hoisting engineers, blacksmiths, and other more highly paid workers around the mines.

The mine operators adhering to this agreement in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and other states include only those who have contracts with the United Mine Workers and do not include certain others, who are meeting also and are expected to present a different code to Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator.

It was expected Johnson will designate a date on which all conflicting coal interests must submit their codes and have them co-ordinated.

Roosevelt Considers Blanket Order on Pay

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, while pleased with the progress toward establishing industrial codes, is considering a blanket order to provide minimum wages and limited hours until the recovery program goes into effect.

That he is devoting a major part of his attention to work toward these codes under which industries would voluntarily or be required to set up minimum wage and work hours schedules, became more plain today, but it was emphasized in high quarters that he would be guided in his course by the views of Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator now working on a plan possibly involving a blanket order.

Hosiery Makers Conferring on Code

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—A conference of all members of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers was called here today to consider a preliminary draft of a basic code of fair competition for the industry.

TILE MEN GET U. S. HEARING

The Federal Trade Commission is conducting a hearing in the Federal Building to determine if the Pittsburgh Tile and Mantel Contractors' Association acted in restraint of trade in its reputed passage of a resolution against using a certain product and suspension of two member concerns for using it.

The hearing is being conducted by Examiner John W. Addison, of Washington. The suspension occurred July 9, 1929, according to the bill of complaint. The product involved is "porstelain," an enameled iron tile, manufactured in Warren, O. The government is represented by Attorneys P. B. Morehouse and Adrian P. Bisick, of Washington.

Counsel for the association said its action had been taken merely to await the outcome of tests of the product.

SPEED ON STEEL CODE EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, today expected quick submission of an agreement by which steel producers would fix minimum wages and maximum hours.

In this industry, as in others Johnson hoped a code of fair competition would require more men to do the work now being performed.

His plans were for a hearing on the steel code—representative of 95 per cent or more of the industry, measured by output—within a week.

Thus the steel hearing would run concurrently with that on lumber's wage-raising, job-spreading agreement, which will be put under public scutiny on July 20.

U. S. SEEKS NEW TRADE PACTS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has opened negotiations with half a dozen countries, principally in South America, for establishment of new trade relations.

The President directed Acting Secretary Phillips, of the State Department, to go into conference today with Ambassador Espil, of Argentina, to consider the Argentine request for new trade relations.

Mr. Phillips already is conferring with the representatives of Brazil, Chile, Colombia, and some of the Scandinavian countries.

Seasonal tariffs are among the points up for discussion.

Argentina has asked that the United States tariff on apples be lifted during the months of June, July and August when there is no production comparatively here.

GIRLS IMAGINE CIGAR HORRORS

A couple of vivid imaginations stumped the Gallagher Commission investigating sweatshops here.

Two sprightly girls appeared together before the body at its first hearing yesterday and recited the "terrible" working conditions in a cigar factory. They went into details and answered questions readily until Representative Thomas J. Gallagher asked:

"Are you strippers?"

The girls giggled, pushed each other, and one replied:

"No, we're permanent wavers."

It turned out both were employed in a beauty parlor. They said they had talked to a man who told them to testify about the cigar factory.

A representative of the State Labor Department appeared and said he had talked to the girls when they arrived at the Courthouse, believing they were workers whom he expected from the cigar factory. They did not tell him otherwise, he said, and he was as much surprised as anyone at the disclosure of their true occupations.

$5,310,000 American Gold Reaches France

PARIS, July 12.—(AP.)—One hundred and seven kegs of gold, valued at $5,310,000, sent by the New York Federal Reserve Bank to the Bank of France, arrived on the Aquitania today.

PUBLIC WORKS BIDS OPEN

Bids totaling $503,400 for public works projects were opened today and the successful bidders must pay a minimum of 45 cents an hour for common labor.

Mayor John S. Herron opened the bids. He called the attention of contractors to the city ordinance making it compulsory to pay the minimum wage. He declared:

"If they don't pay it, they won't get the job, no matter whether they are low bidders or not."

Included among the projects are the Smithfield Street Bridge improvement, figured to cost $280,000, and the raising of streets in the North Side flood district, to cost $210,000.

HOME LOAN HEAD FOR DISTRICT NAMED

Somerset Man Will Organize Office in Pittsburgh

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Jacob H. Mays, of Weiser Park, Berks County, yesterday appointed Pennsylvania state manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, announced today he would take immediate steps to organize the Pittsburgh district office under the management of Levi G. Lichliter, of Somerset.

The Harrisburg branch, which will be opened within 10 days, will be managed by Clarence A. Weary, of Carlisle.

Lichliter is a well-known banker of Somerset and a leader in Democratic politics. He is a supporter of the Guffey wing of Pennsylvania Democracy and has been an ardent supporter of Roosevelt.

TO SPEED ORGANIZATION

He will meet State Manager Mays in Pittsburgh this week to arrange for the opening of the district branch and to take up applications for subordinate positions. There are thousands of applications on file, it was said, and no time will be lost in effecting the Pittsburgh organization.

The Mays appointment is the most important that has been made by the federal board, previous managers named being from smaller states, where it was expected that there would be a comparatively small number of loans.

MEETS WITH BOARD

Mays sat with the board for an hour or more and discussed the policy of the administration. The oath was administered by an assistant secretary of the board, and his announcement of his two district managers followed. Two more district offices will be established, presumably at Philadelphia and Scranton.

Vice president of the Womelsdorf Bank and Trust Company and founder of the seed company which bears his name, Mays was one of the first Pennsylvania Democrats to support Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency.

Mays has been active in Democratic politics for many years. He was a delegate to the party's nation convention at Baltimore in 1912 and supported Woodrow Wilson. He subsequently served as a member of the Democratic State Committee and was its treasurer from 1926 to 1928.

L. G. Lichliter, at his office at Jennerstown today, said that he is not yet able to announce the location of the Pittsburgh branch of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation or to tell the date of its opening.

NAMING MELLON SPLITS QUIZ OF SWEATSHOPS

Linking Banker With Aluminum Co. Protested

Harrisburg next Tuesday and expects to make recommendations for new labor legislation at the next session of the Legislature. Among the members is Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor.

ASKS ABOUT UNION

During the examination of White, Mrs. Pinchot asked him if the Aluminum Company employes would be allowed to form a union. He answered:

"Yes, if they wanted to."

White said that testimony introduced yesterday by former employes of the company was inaccurate in many respects, and that his only regret was that better wages were not available, adding:

"We could run our plant there as efficiently with 500 people as we do with 702—the present number. But last fall we hired 170 or so additional help to furnish more employment. We staggered the work and spread out the wages.

"I regret to say that some beginners make as little as $5 and $7 a week.

"But the average pay of the workers is 20.8 cents an hour, and many slips show as high as 36 cents."

DEFENDS HIRING WOMEN

White denied that women were supplanting men and explained that women showed more aptitude for certain work.

Of the 702, he said, 464 were men. He smiled at the assertion made yesterday that a woman had cleaned 4,063 coffee pots in nine hours for $1.10, commenting:

"That's one-tenth of a year's production."

He also denied that women were paid lower rates than men for the same job. He said apprentices were paid 18 cents an hour, and that 105 women get 20 cents an hour, adding:

"I'm sorry that many do not get more, but we didn't have the work, due to economic conditions."

W. C. Johnson, district manager of Woolworth's, also put in denials of testimony recorded by an employe yesterday, that $4.50 a week was paid girls. He declared the range in pay was $7.50 to $17 a week for employes in this district; that bonuses are paid, and that where parents are unable to pay, hospital care is given employes through a sinking fund set up by the corporation. He said the average pay was between $9 and $10 a week.

DENIAL ENTERED

M. J. Gerstein, president of the Elite Dress Company, testified that he had gone beyond his agreement and paid girls what they earned while attending a school his company held for apprentices.

Denying the testimony of a former employe, who yesterday told the commission she got $5.02 for that five weeks' work, he said those who attended the four weeks' schooling were not to get any pay. After they finished they were, if competent, put in the silk factory, where the lowest wage was $8.53 and the highest $18.

But he went further than his agreement, he said, and paid the girls in the latter weeks for the work they did on commercial goods. The first two weeks, he said, they worked on patches and seaming, which was not commercial. He said the school had been abandoned. His company has been operating here 12 years, he added.

Benjamin S. Mann, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Laundry, appeared and told the commission that wages of all employes and officials were two weeks behind—due to the closing of a bank and operating losses.

DEFENDS WAGE

H. J. Blair, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Garter Company, testified his concern never started girls on day work for less than 16 cents an hour until the past month, when it was started at 14 cents. He said piecework sewers averaged $13 to $15 a week and packers $9 to $13. He added:

"Our scale is a few cents higher than in the East and we are competing with the East."

The manager of the F. and W. Grand Company testified the minimum wage paid its employes is $5 a week for a four and one-half hour day.

M. W. Silverberg, vice president of the American Coat, Apron and Towel Supply Company, said there is not a girl in the department against which a complaint was made yesterday making less than $13 for a seven-hour day. He said untrained girls are paid $6.50 a week for a seven-hour day.

DENIES STOCK COERCION

Sylvester J. Baker, of the Seven Baker Brothers, told the commission his company offered stock to its employes, but denied there was any coercion. The commission was divided on whether the sale of stock to employes was good ethics.

Baker told the commission his company would discontinue offering the stock if the members thought it best. Several members said:

"No. Don't do it."

The Duquesne Trouser Company notified the commission beginners in its factory are paid 16 cents an hour and get a 5 per cent bonus if they work all week.

The employers told the commission they would welcome examination of time charts and payrolls if the commission desired.

Mrs. Pinchot left for Harrisburg this afternoon by plane.

Seminar Hears Mine Troubles And Visits Huts

Concluding their inspection of Pittsburgh industries, the traveling seminar of the National Religion and Labor Foundation was to visit today the Aliquippa plant of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Its stay here was climaxed last night when the seminar met for discussion with liberals of the district, among them Rose Stein and Stephen Raushenbush, leaders in the sweatshop investigation.

A visit to the coal fields and to the camp of an abandoned mine, "Seldom Seen," near Avella, Pa., took up most of the day.

RELIEF CHIEF INCOME

Rambling among the camp's rickety huts, still housing families near the idle workings, members found state relief to be the chief means of support. Sometimes a man might get a day or two of work in a distant mine.

From miners' families the seminar collected about 25 pay checks, signed with the wavy line called the "snake" and marked with "kisses"—$xx.xx. This meant the checks paid exactly nothing, miners' debt to the company being calculated to just equal the wage due him.

Offered money for the checks, one old woman told the seminar it was the first cash to cross her hands in four years.

An old man told them the pay was better in the mines 50 years ago.

WORKERS ON STRIKE

Active miners interviewed had been on strike since the first of the week over a question of coal weighing. Members of the United Mine Workers of America, these miners said union check weighers had been installed in most of the mines. This pleased the seminar.

Industrial rehabilitation was the visitors' general solution for miners' difficulties.

Present at the evening meeting, held under the auspices of the League for Social Justice, were Judge M. A. Musmanno and Dr. Ralph E. Turner, of the Pennsylvania Security League. Dr. B. J. Hovde presided over an audience of some 150.

Dr. Jerone Davis, of Yale, one of the seminar leaders, explained the purpose of the foundation to interest the church in labor:

"If the church is to be saved, its vital force must be translated into social life."

Dr. Davis also made a plea for the complete unionization of labor, characterizing Pittsburgh as notorious for its open shop practices.

Divergent opinions clashed in the ensuing discussion.

STRIKES CLOSE MANY PLANTS

Associated Press.

With a new strike set for today in Reading, its industry already badly crippled by walkouts, police continued their efforts to keep order among pickets in a number of Eastern Pennsylvania communities.

Three hundred employes of the David Crystal Company, manufacturers of dresses, voted to strike today and officials estimated such an action would increase the number of workers on strike in Berks County to 13,000. Almost 10,000 are hosiery workers.

In Philadelphia, 130 pickets, including 30 girls, at the Walburton hosiery mills, who were arrested yesterday, get a hearing before Magistrate Belcher today. The magistrate released 174 pickets brought before him last Saturday. Rejecting a company union, about 350 employes of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company also went on strike.

The situation remained quiet in Lansdale, where pretzel twisters and hosiery workers are on strike and where Gov. Pinchot sent state troopers to protect pickets.

Bachelor Doctor, Pet Dog Die In 'Suicide Pact'

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Edwin M. Weil, 60, unmarried and formerly of Roxbury, Mass., committed suicide today by drinking poison in his apartment in Post avenue, after first pouring some of the solution into the throat of his dog, Laddie, a fox terrier.

A friend, dropping in for a visit, found them both dead, the dog under the bed on which his master lay.

A note on a table, addressed to "the authorities," read:

"Take care of my dog, Laddie. Cremate his body and bury him alongside of me."

WORKMEN'S ACT 'EVILS' AIRED AT PROBE

Blind Man Persuaded To Sign Away Rights, Preacher Charges

A representative of the Aluminum company, it was charged today, persuaded a blind workman to sign away his rights under the law.

The charge came when Attorney P. K. Jones, of New Kensington, told a commission investigating the workings of the Workmen's Compensation Act that the greatest evil of the act came from contract making between employer and employe. Attorney Jones also is a clergyman.

One of the Aluminum company's workmen was injured, he said, and sent to the hospital for a two-month stay. While there, injured from head to foot and unable to see, Jones charged the man was persuaded to sign a settlement calling for payment of but three months' compensation.

Attorney Jones criticized contract-making between employer and employe, urging supervision of all contracts by a trustee board.

DOCTOR FLAYS LEAGUE

Meanwhile, Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, secretary of the Pennsylvania Medical Association, charged the Self-Insurers' League blocked every effort for a change in the act that might rid it of its evils.

The league numbers among its members many of the largest and most powerful industrial units in the state.

Dr. Donaldson was followed on the stand by the Rev. Father John R. MacKeveney, of Smithton, Pa., who cited an instance where a quarry worker lost an eye and was blinded in the other, receiving compensation only for the loss of one eye as an instance of employer heartlessness.

The blind man was treated for seven years, Father MacKeveney said, and had no witnesses at the compensation hearing. All testimony was given by the company surgeon, he said.

The priest urged compensation contracts be printed in all languages. Many foreigners, he said, don't know their rights or what they sign in compensation matters.

Several workmen appeared to complain of treatment.

Dr. Donaldson had asked that measures be taken against insurance clinics. He opposed contract made with physicians by insurance companies as leading to split contracts and careless work.

Injured workmen, he suggested, should be allowed to pick their own doctors and hospitals.

He urged a board of three to pass on the status of claims—the board to be named by the Governor on recommendation of employers, labor and doctors.

HOSPITAL HEAD TESTIFIES

Henry D. Yearick, president of the Hospital Conference of Pittsburgh, comparing all hospitals, urged that:

1. The Conference be recognized by the compensation board.
2. Some provision be made for guarantee of hospital bills.
4. The present limit of 30 days in the hospital for compensation cases be dropped to conform with the needs of each case.

The committee asks that employers and employes present their grievances at the hearings today and tomorrow in the Allegheny County Bar Associations auditorium on the ninth floor of the City-County Building.

C. A. Kulp, of Philadelphia is chairman.

LETTER CLEARS SANDS' DEATH

Mystery shrouding the death of George V. Sands, Pittsburgh advertisng man, aboard the yacht Midwest while cruising in the Bahamas, was dispelled in a letter from Sands' brother to his widow, Mrs. Nanna Evans Sands, here today.

Her husband met his death in a fall on board the yacht pitching in rough seas, Mrs. Sands said the letter revealed.

The letter, written by Mr. Sands' eldest brother, James P. Sands, from Nassau, told of the fateful voyage. The Pittsburgher, turning in at 4 a. m. Saturday, after a four-hour "trick" at the wheel, went directly to his stateroom. He was found dead three hours later.

The party turned back to Nassau and two doctors came aboard. They agreed Sands' death had occurred about 5 a. m., the result of striking his head against a metal support under the high stateroom bunk.

386-POUND SAM ADLER BEFORE MAGISTRATE

JAMES PHILIP O'CONNOR

Big Mr. Adler, a candidate for jury commissioner, as he appeared with counsel in Central Police Court today to waive hearing, post bond for a court trial on charges of larceny and conspiracy involving missing city property. His campaign continues. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SAM ADLER

Adler's Bail Costs Him $2.56 for Each Pound

Sam Adler, the 386-pound candidate for jury commissioner whom Detective John L. Crouse couldn't find paid $2.56 a pound for bail today.

The bail was necessary while he awaits court action on charges of receiving stolen goods. He was charged with conspiring to steal from a city supplies storeroom.

Maurice Winters, of Knox avenue, Knoxville, is charged with the theft and the other end of the conspiracy. Both are free on $1,000 bonds.

Adler, 62, of 251 McKee place, was arrested several days ago while he collected signatures on his nominating petitions in front of the City-County Building. Crouse had a hunch of looking for him there.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg heard what there was of the case until the defendants waived hearing. Assistant City Solicitor Bert L. Steinberg and City Detective William O'Brien were there. So were Winters and his attorney, Al Martin. But no Adler.

So Attorney James P. O'Connor for Adler asked a short delay until the heavyweight showed up.

Rothenberg consented that

"We'll declare a recess until this lightweight waddles in. He moves about as fast as a circus elephant anyhow."

And O'Connor said:

"By waiting a few minutes longer for Mr. Adler you will give considerable weight to this hearing. He is the biggest case I've ever had."

Finally Adler rolled with a crash through the swinging doors, hot, perspiring, breathless. He made a dive for a bench and plumped himself down for a minute's rest. Sections not ready, but Rothenberg said:

"Aw, give the little fellow a break and wait a minute—he's all out of puff."

O'Bryan, Esther Winters' lawyer, confessed unpleasantness. Adler was crediting Adler with the theft plans. He said:

"Adler still owes Winters $44."

Sweatshop Probers Save Job for Ousted Girl

A job was saved for a little dark-haired girl today by the Gallagher Commission investigating sweatshop conditions.

Learning a girl was fired yesterday because her sister testified concerning conditions she alleged existed in the Miltrex Trouser Company plant, Senator G. Mason Owlett, chairman of the commission, ordered the proprietor to rehire her. He said:

"The committee goes on record as saying that it is very much opposed to the proprietor's action. The Department of Labor will be notified if the girl is not rehired. You are in contempt of the commission and proper authority will be directed to take action unless the girl is put back to work."

The proprietor told the commission later he would rehire the girl, but that she was a disturbing element in the plant. He was told if she caused any trouble, to acquaint the Department of Labor of any action he took.

Daniel E. Hickman, manager of the National Window Cleaning Company, told the commission that although he knows the name of the man who testified yesterday against the company, he will not fire him unless he fails to report for work. He said the man could work every day, but would not.

WARD OF DEAD FOSTER 'MAMMY' MOURNS FOR SHACK

'I WANT TO GO HOME,' WAILS LITTLE BILLY

Luxury at Hospital Fails to Appease Lad's Yearning

"I wanna go home!"

Lower lip trembling, trying hard not to cry, little Billy Mitchell, 6-year-old Juvenile Court ward, whose "mammy" was burned to death two days ago in her woods shack near Peterman's Corners, Frankstown road, lay in a Children's Hospital cot today, recuperating from an operation for the removal of his tonsils.

"I don't like it here. Wanna go home to Andy."

Andy, 50-year-old deaf mute, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, whose tragic death occurred on the eve of her moving into new quarters, is all the family Billy has now. And he wants to go home to Andy.

The luxury of clean beds and dainty trays of food has no power to wean him from the shack in the woods which has been the only home he has ever known. The hospital sun-porch was a nice place for a "vacation," he grudgingly admitted; it was nice to be out there and watch other nearly-well children playing with their toys, but again and again he took up his refrain:

"I wanna go home to Andy."

Arms back of his head, a troubled frown in his big blue eyes, Billy refused his noon tray of carrots, and fish, fruit, bread-pudding and milk. He said:

"I'm not hungry. What time will I go home?"

He doesn't know that he probably will never "go home to Andy" any more. Juvenile Court authorities will place him in the Juvenile Detention Home in Forbes street for a few days after he leaves the hospital, they said, until it can be decided where to place him.

HARRIMAN QUIZ CAUSES WIFE TO COLLAPSE

Banker Told Snappy Stories, Sanity Jury Informed

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 12.—When the sanity hearing in Federal Court of Joseph W. Harriman, founder of the Harriman National Bank, was resumed today, Mrs. Augusta Harriman, wife of the banker, was not in her accustomed place beside the defendant.

Mrs. Harriman suffered a nervous breakdown and is confined to her bed.

Dean Sage, attorney, was the first witness. He testified Harriman, previously "mentally alert," had impressed him in 1932 as "having no mental conception" of his financial difficulties.

TOLD 'RISQUE STORIES'

The jury also heard that Harriman told risque stories and otherwise acted "like a bond salesman trying to sell bonds to his inquisitors."

United States Attorney Medalie drew from Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, specialist in mental diseases, however, an admission that Harriman's off-color stories were similar to ones told on occasion by Abraham Lincoln and Daniel Webster.

When Dr. Jelliffe hedged a little on the Daniel Webster admission, Medalie commented:

"Of course he wouldn't have done it on the floor of the Senate, but he might have in a clubroom?"

Dr. Jelliffe replied, firmly:

"He certainly would not have if he were being examined as to his mental condition."

Harriman told the stories while he was being questioned over the week-end by Dr. Jelliffe and Dr. Menas Gregory, an alienist called in by Medalie, who has strongly indicated he does not believe Harriman mentally incapable of standing trial.

CITES HENRY FORD

Medalie ridiculed medical testimony that Harriman was mentally unbalanced because he believed the New York Clearing House wanted to put him "on the spot."

Medalie cited the fact that Henry Ford was mentioned only recently in a thinly veiled manner as having the same idea that bankers were out to "get" him.

It was testified Harriman had started drinking heavily in 1930, finally reaching the point where he carried a two-quart flask of gin to his office three times a week, and drank the gin all day long.

MARGARET FAY DESMOND

SYNTHETIC BABY TALE SCORNED BY 'FATHER'

Mother-in-Law Joins In Ridiculing Tale Of Miracle Births

International News Service.

DETROIT, July 12.—The case of Mrs. Mafe Hommel, a "Strange Interlude" of real life, remained mysterious today, although the three men who should know most about her three "laboratory babies" were in Detroit.

James Gardner Shelley, wealthy Cincinnati businessman and former Detroiter, denied he was the ex-husband of Mrs. Hommel. But his aged and patrician mother intimated that he was.

Mrs. Hommel, divorced wife of a California physician, testified in a Los Angeles court that her three attractive daughters, born while she was the wife of a "James G. Shelley," were "laboratory babies," whose father she did not see until after their birth.

PROSECUTION LOOMS

Meanwhile, Prosecutor Harry S. Toy prepared to question doctors to learn whether the birth certificates of the "synthetic babies" were in any way falsified. Dr. John N. Bell and Dr. S. C. Hanna, whose names appear on the birth certificates as attending physicians, say they cannot remember the cases.

Shelley, arriving here for a motor trade meeting, refused to discuss the case and denied he knew anything about it.

His mother, Mrs. A. S. Hitchings, however, told newspapermen:

"I don't think my boy ought to deny he was ever married to that woman, unfortunate though the whole thing is. We should tell the truth at all times.

"But it seems a terrible price to pay for a youthful folly."

STORY RIDICULED

The mother agreed with Raphael Corcoran, well-to-do young Detroit bachelor, in ridiculing Mrs. Hommel's story of "scientific birth." Mrs. Hommel named a Raphael Corcoran as the "scientific father." Corcoran did not deny he was the man she referred to.

Mrs. Hitchings declared:

"I am indignant that Mrs. Hommel should dare to say I knew all about this so-called 'scientific birth.' I don't even know what it means. I can't see what purpose she gained by telling such a story.

"I am surprised that Mrs. Hommell says she never knew Mr. Corcoran until after the birth of her children. The home in which my son and his wife lived at that time was an old-fashioned double house. The Corcorans lived in the other half of it.

"My son's wife was well acquainted with the boy next door. I understand he was then only about 18. My son was then in Russia and India doing war work."

'FATHER' INDIGNANT

If Shelley and his family are indignant, Corcoran is more so. He declared:

"I never knew Dr. Breitenbach nor Dr. Dunwoody, and I do not believe Mrs. Shelley or Mrs. Hommel ever went to their offices. There have been so many lies told that I am forced to take a stand for my personal dignity. The scientific father story is absurd."

Mrs. Hommel in her testimony named Dr. John Dunwoody, who died in 1919 as the physician who engineered the laboratory births."

Dr. Breitenbach, one of the city's most widely-known physicians, confirmed the story. He was Dr. Dunwoody's superior, he said, and was present at the operation Mrs. Hommel described.

MUST NOT LIE, SAYS KIPLING

LONDON, July 12.—(AP.)—Rudyard Kipling, making one of his rare departures from semi-seclusion to address a public gathering, advanced the proposition today that authors cannot lie.

Speaking at the luncheon of the Royal Society of Literature, the famous author declared:

"We cannot tell a lie. However much we may wish to do so, we only of educated men and women tell a lie in our working hours.

"The more subtly we attempt it the more certainly do we betray some aspect of truth concerning the life of our age.

"It is with us as with timber. Every knot and shake in a board reveals some disease or injury that overtook the log when it was growing."

AMBRIDGE BANS SUNDAY FILMS

AMBRIDGE, Pa., July 12.—(INS.)—Sunday movies were banned in Ambridge by city council today following receipt of letters of protest from four pastors.

The complaints declared that churches, for whom the benefits were being shown on Sunday, received little or no percentage of the proceeds.

Police committee members who had been instructed to investigate the Sunday movies, reported that theaters boosted their prices from 30 to 40 cents on Sunday, then reserved 25 per cent of their revenue for charity.

One movie, it was charged, has turned over nothing to this cause for eight weeks.

John D., Jr., Gives Land to Parkway

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—A gift by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of approximately 40 per cent of the land which the Palisades Interstate Park Commission needs to make a 13-mile parkway along the top of the cliffs, overlooking the Hudson River on the New Jersey side, was announced yesterday. The gift is valued at $5,000,000.

The Commission already owned 32 per cent of the land required.

MATTERN TO FLY IN RED PLANE

MOSCOW, July 12.—(AP.)—Pilot Levanovsky, of the Northern Sea route, expects to reach Anadyr, Siberia, Friday evening and to land in Nome, Alaska, with Jimmie Mattern 24 hours later.

This information was contained in advices from Khaboravsk, Siberia, whence the American aviator took off on June 14 for Nome on his projected world flight. After being missing for 16 days, Mattern reached Anadyr.

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—A plan to send two rescue planes to Siberia so James Mattern could complete his solo flight around the world was announced today by backers of his venture.

S. J. Sackett, one of the sponsors, said he had been informed a Pan-American Airways plane was ready at Fairbanks, Alaska, to take off for Anadyr, Siberia, where Mattern is stranded.

Chicago Tax Raise Blocks Beer War

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—Threat of a Chicago beer price war, started when restaurants began sale of 5-cent glasses with meals to offset free lunch offers by beer parlors, had vanished today.

The City Council last night raised the taxes on both types of beer-selling places. It will not be possible now to sell 5-cent beer, restaurant operators said.

First Lady Tours Old Canada Capital

QUEBEC, July 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President of the United States, was viewing today the sights of the ancient capital of Canada, having arrived last night in her own automobile.

From Quebec the President's wife expects to motor to Montreal, where she will turn south to re-enter the United States and make her way to Washington.

'Mexican Lindbergh' Honored with Shaft

CHATSWORTH, N. J., July 12.—(AP.)—With simple but impressive ceremonies beside a stone monument deep in the Jersey pines, Legionnaires and Mexican officials today honor the memory of Capt. Emilio Carranza at the spot where "Mexico's Lindbergh" crashed to death, five years ago.

DEMPSEY SOON TO WED, REPORT

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 12.—(AP.)—The Fort Worth Star Telegram says it has learned Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be married to Hannah Williams, of New York, in Reno, Nev., "in the near future."

Dempsey will be in Salt Lake City, Utah, Friday, en route to the Pacific Coast, and it was reported the marriage would take place "within the next few days," the paper says.

Dempsey, here for an exhibition bout, neither confirmed nor denied the report. He said:

"There has been a great deal of talk about my marriage. I won't say that I do not plan to get married some time."

300 LOSE COATS AT RITZY PARTY

PARIS, July 12.—(Universal)—Police were called in yesterday to investigate the curious circumstances under which every man who was a guest at the Tyrolean costume party given by Mrs. Woolley Hart, fashionable American hostess, lost his overcoat.

Mrs. Hart inaugurated the summer season at her handsome country place, Chateau de la Boissiere at Senlis, with a lavish costume party and a lengthy guest list.

There were more than 300 men guests.

When the men started to leave in the early hours, and sought their overcoats, not one could be found. Since the party there have been so many anonymous telephone calls to the Hart place demanding the return of overcoats that the police were called in.

Breezeless Skies Hold Gliders Down

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 12.—(AP.)—Clear skies without a hint of a breeze forecast another day of disappointment for the 66 glider pilots assembled here for the national soaring contests.

It was the second successive day that the pilots have been grounded.

'Desperadoes' Raid Yacht Club Pantry

NEW YORK, July 12.—(INS.)—Invading the ritzy Mayfair Yacht Club, three desperadoes kidnaped a pie and two suits of clothing today.

When the trio came ashore the police navy and land forces surrounded them. The pie was half eaten.

American Hearts Are Stones in London Museum

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Can't blame Europe for being puzzled over our financial sparring.

Seems that the stoniest things in the geological museum were American hearts.

Now, Uncle Sam is regarded as a tough old bird. He was tender when he started. Europe can only blame itself for cooking him too long.

On the other hand, we can well sympathize with the old world's plaintive query, "Whoever heard of a life saver pushing people overboard?"

The class in elastic currency will now sing, "Farewell to Alms."

Well, there's one fishing party that was wrecked because nobody brought any bait.

Gangland 'Puts Finger' On 'Roxie' Long, Wife

Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Di Pippa are "on the spot."

Di Pippa is better known as "Roxie Long." His present address is the U. S. Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. He has, in other words, a number and a number of months to serve.

Mrs. Di Pippa wasn't, until yesterday known at all. But today—that's another story.

Another story because yesterday she said:

"No matter what they do, I'll stick by 'Roxie.' He never done nothing wrong to me or the kid and I'm for him—even if it means my life.

"'Roxie's' finished with those racket guys and I don't want nothing to do with them neither."

When an anonymous letter told Mrs. Di Pippa that it wouldn't be healthy to stick by "Roxie," she was quite indignant.

The letter, received by Mrs. Di Pippa at her home at 1828 Bedford avenue yesterday, read:

"Virginia we are writing you this letter for you to understand that your life and your husband's life is in our hands. We give you twenty-four hours to dicide whether you would let that squaker go and don't be bothered with him because he is only going to live until he gets out. No matter where he goes we will get him and whoever is with him so make up your mind either your life or to leave him. We will let you know in tomorrow's letter where to leave an answer.

"We mean business."

Fond of First Wife, Divorced by Second

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—(AP.)—Because Herman E. Molema addressed his first wife Mrs. Mary Molema, in a letter as "Dearest Mary" and signed it "love and kisses," his second wife Florence, won a divorce.

The second Mrs. Molema testified that a few months after their marriage in October, 1931, Molema stayed out late at nights and she later learned he had been going out with his first wife.

Lindys Take Off From Halifax Base

HALIFAX, N. S., July 12.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife hopped off from here today for the next stage of their projected trip for mapping an aerial route over Labrador and Greenland.

DOCTOR DEFIES LOVE SUIT

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—(AP.)—Served with legal papers in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit L. F. Desmond brought against him, Dr. Eugene C. Nelson, Negro physician, said yesterday he would not be swerved from his course in retaining the love of Mrs. Margaret Fay Desmond, white daughter of a Virginia minister.

The suit was brought against him several days ago by Desmond, New York oil machinery salesman, who charged him with stealing Mrs. Desmond's love. Mrs. Desmond, now the physician's secretary, has filed suit seeking annulment of her marriage to Desmond. Nelson, in his lavish Wilshire boulevard office, said:

"Nothing will alter the plans that Mrs. Desmond and I have made together. We love each other—that is enough. Love takes no cognizance of race or color."

He said his life had been threatened recently.

The physician, former husband of Helen Lee Worthing, one-time Follies beauty, showed a revolver and a sheriff's deputy badge, saying he had a right to carry and use the revolver.

OFFICER ROBBED OF GUN, AUTO

The dignity of Constable Paul W. Broome, of Oakdale, was slightly ruffled today.

He was held up by two youthful bandits on the North Branch road, between Oakdale and Imperial, who made away with his gun and automobile.

Broome told highway patrol officers, who started an investigation that he had stopped his automobile to investigate a car lying in a ditch beside the road. As he neared a stop the two men, both armed, stepped to the running board, forced the constable to alight and robbed him.

Posse to Trail 'Jungle' Killer Menacing Farms

MONONGAHELA, Pa., July 12.—A posse of farmers and Washington stockmen await for darkness tonight to penetrate isolated Crookham Hollow untenanted for over 30 years, in search for a predatory killer believed by some stockmen to be a wolf or wildcat that has destroyed several hundred chickens, scores of geese, a sheep, calf and dog in this district within the last few weeks.

Tony Mitchell, 44-year-old farmer and one of two persons credited with having seen the animal, declared last night:

"I have lived here 28 years and never saw such an animal. It killed my dog tonight, and when I went out to investigate, it screamed and came towards me. I ran back into the house."

Clyde O'Brien, 38, had an experience with the animal Monday night while en route home from the Vandersluce greenhouse. He said:

"My dog ran after it, when he heard it scream in the woods. He yelled and came back. I have never heard anything like that scream. This morning I lost four chickens and two guinea hens."

The animal is believed to have its lair on the Ignatz Burkis farm, where more than a half acre of ground was discovered last night scattered with bones of fowl and small animals. Burkis, who does not keep a dog or gun, reported loss of more than 300 chickens during the last week.

Members of the Farmers' Protective Association last night asked Police Chief Alex Murray, of Charleroi, to assist in tonight's drive. Murray said he would ask Dr. S. R. Blythe, expert rifleman, of Charleroi, to join the hunt.

PAYROLLS HERE SHOW SHARP INCREASE

The mounting tide of business today was augmented by news of better times from many places in the Pittsburgh district.

From Brownsville and Beaver, Sharpsburg and Ambridge in Pennsylvania and from East Liverpool in Ohio came word to show the business recovery so long heralded is taking hold in earnest.

And to add to the good tidings came word from the largest Pittsburgh banking houses that cash payrolls in June were about 30 per cent better than in May, and about 35 per cent better than in June of 1932.

Among figures released by banking institutions here, covering cash payroll business, came an analysis from one bank that showed its payrolls had risen, in June, 135 per cent above those of April.

PAYROLL GAINS REPORTED

June payrolls were 32 per cent greater than those of June, 1932, and 21.8 more than those of May of this year, the bank reported.

Percentages in another were even greater, showing a rise of 47 per cent in June over May, and an 89 per cent betterment since January. May, in turn, had shown cash payrolls 43.7 per cent better than in April.

Twenty-six hundred workers near Brownsville, Pa., will benefit by wage increases of 10 per cent announced by mines in that district yesterday. Included are the W. J. Rainey Coal Company, Inc., with 2,000 employes; the Duquesne Coal and Coke Company, with 225 men, and the Forbes Coal Company with 375 men at its No. 1 mine.

1,622 QUIT RELIEF

In Beaver, the Beaver County Emergency Relief Board yesterday announced the dropping of 1,622 families from relief lists. The cut, occasioned by increasing employment in the Beaver Valley, amounts to approximately 19 per cent of the relief load.

Approximately 60,000 persons, representing 13,000 families, were dropped from the relief rolls of the state in June, according to an announcement of Eric Biddle, executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board, today. Allegheny County failed to show a reduction until late in the month.

Meanwhile, the Homer Laughlin China Company has resumed operations at its plant No. 4, at Newell, W. Va., according to an Associated Press dispatch from East Liverpool, O.

The reopening will place about 100 persons on full shifts. They have been working part-time. The expansion is necessary, officials said, to handle overflow orders from three other plants.

The announcement came as plants in Ambridge considered pay raises consistent with those of the American Bridge and the McClintic-Marshall companies, which recently established a new pay scale, with an average 33 per cent increase for office and shop workers, in keeping with the Industrial Recovery Act.

A permanent code is soon to be worked out.

He will be here today and tomorrow. The Railways company has recently increased the speed of its cars on many lines.

WORLD PARLEY TURNS TO DEBTS

LONDON, July 12.—(AP.)—The World Economic Conference, its plunge beyond its depth into the monetary sea having nearly proved disastrous, went wading today in more shallow and harmless waters.

European gold bloc delegates quietly accepted their almost complete victory in barring, at least for the time being, discussion of most monetary and tariff subjects, and proffered their co-operation in negotiations on indebtedness.

Only two subcommittees of the economic commission were scheduled to meet today. One, on the co-ordination of production and marketing, is continuing its talks on wine, and the other is the drafting committee on export bonuses, marks of origin, and the like.

ADJOURNMENT QUESTION

The question of adjournment was in abeyance, although it was agreed in some quarters the present slate could be finished in two or three weeks.

This schedule, drawn up by the monetary commission's special drafting committee and approved by the steering committee, put two subcommissions to work on indebtedness, central banks, silver, and "any other subject which may, by general agreement, be considered suitable for discussion."

The plan aroused general satisfaction — among the Americans because it omitted stabilization but retained silver, and the French, leaders of the gold bloc, because it sidetracked tariffs and quotas, which they think cannot be settled without monetary stability.

STEINHARDT ARRIVES

LONDON, July 12.—(INS.)—Laurence A. Steinhardt, new American minister to Sweden, arrived today to remain a week with the American delegation to the World Economic Conference before proceeding to Stockholm to assume his duties.

Steinhardt, although he said he was not bringing new instructions to the American delegation from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, declared he would confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his aides. He said:

"Naturally I have an idea of the President's outlook and I will be glad to give the delegates any information I can.

"I feel it is grossly inaccurate to say the President has torpedoed the conference, or that his attitude has caused a deadlock."

Drink-More-Wine Crusade Starts Parley Row

LONDON, July 12.—(AP.)—The drink-more-wine resolution which the French have been asking the World Economic Conference to adopt has become snagged on a temperance crusade.

Great Britain, Sweden, Denmark, India and Egypt opposed a projected world-wide advertising scheme for wines.

The Danish delegate said that temperance movements in his country could not agree that wine was a healthy beverage and the Indian delegate started an uproar when he called wine an intoxicant.

The Portuguese delegate thereupon jumped to the floor in protest, saying that wine was a food and possessed medicinal properties.

ROOSEVELT SON REACHES PARIS

PARIS, July 12.—(AP.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, arrived here today in a second-class railway carriage from Le Havre, where he landed from the steamship Washington.

A big crowd greeted Roosevelt and his three companions, who handed their own baggage from the coach and vainly tried to avoid public attention. They were welcomed first by representatives of Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour, of France, and the American Ambassador, Jesse I. Straus; then the cheering crowd insisted on shaking hands with the President's son.

Mr. Roosevelt thought he would remain in Paris a week, after which he may go to London to visit the World Economic Conference "if it is still running." Then he expects to go to Spain. He said:

"I would like to see the Davis Cup matches, at any rate say hello to the team."

CITY OFFICIAL DIES BY BULLET

MILWAUKEE, July 12.—(AP.)—City Controller Louis M. Kotecki, 53, died early today from the bullet he fired into his right temple after shooting and critically wounding his chief deputy, William H. Wendt, 49. Kotecki was under indictment on charges of malfeasance and faced recall.

The death occurred in the hospital to which he and Wendt both were taken following the double shooting yesterday afternoon in the controller's office. Meanwhile, Wendt was still given a fighting chance for recovery.

County authorities looked upon the following as motives for the shooting:

That Kotecki, indicted four months ago for malfeasance as a result of alleged laxity in checking bond transactions through which it is charged the city was defrauded of half a million dollars, believed Wendt misrepresented him in testimony before the grand jury; that Kotecki was driven to distraction by the indictment and personal financial difficulties; that Kotecki feared recall or elimination of his position through a referendum ordered by the City Council.

Workhouse Painter Dies of Heart Attack

Richard Behm, 55, of 1217 James street, North Side, died late yesterday at the workhouse, where he was employed as a painter, the Coroner's office reported. Behm was employed by the county for 18 years. A heart ailment was given as the cause of death.

Treasury at Fair Guarded After 'Tip'

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS.)—Special policemen were guarding the administration building of the Century of Progress today, following a "tip" that an attempt would be made to rob the treasury of the world's fair.

Princess Amazed By 'Deserted' Parley

LONDON, July 12.—(INS.)—Prince Adolph and Princess Ingrid, of Sweden, visited the World Economic Conference today, strolling through the deserted halls of the Geological Museum.

The Princess, amazed at the lack of excitement or activity, turned to a guard and asked:

"Where is the conference?"

His reply was:

"Right here, Miss. This is the plenary session hall."

MISSING WIFE FOUND SLAIN

WILMINGTON, Del., July 12.—(AP.)—A 19-year-old farm girl, who vanished mysteriously after the discharge of a farmhand, is believed to be the murder victim whose unclad body was found floating in the Delaware River.

Partial identification was made yesterday in telephone conversations between New York and Delaware State Troopers, who said the woman answered the description of Mrs. Orville Filand, of Vestal, N. Y., eight miles from Binghamton.

Police said she resumed her maiden name of Pauline Bennett three days after her daughter, now 20 months old, was born. They stated Mrs. Filand was married at 16 to Filand, who came from Lawton, near Montrose, Susquehanna County, Pa.

The missing wife, red-headed and blue-eyed, left her home early in May.

Police of three states have been asked to search for Robert Hudgerboom, who once worked at Berwick, Pa., and whose home is believed to be at Shickshinny, Luzerne County, Pa.

G. O. P. SHAKES OFF SLUMP

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS.)—The depression that hit the Republican party last fall is passing.

G. O. P. prosperity is "just around the corner."

These statements and others sifting from behind closed doors cheered party stalwarts today.

Republican state chairmen and national committeemen from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin, met with Everett Sanders, chairman of the national committee, here last night to plan their campaign for the congressional election battles of 1934.

No official statement was released following the meeting but Sanders declared today that three earlier conferences in the East had brought assurances of better times ahead for the party.

GERMAN CHURCH PACT NEAR

BERLIN, July 12.—(AP.)—The troublesome question of autonomy or Nazi control of the German Evangelical Church may be settled this week with the adoption of a new Protestant constitution.

At a meeting of Evangelical leaders it was said unanimous agreement attended the drawing up under Nazi auspices of the constitution. Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick declared it would be made law in a few days.

An authoritative report today said the main principle of the agreement is that the new church shall not be a state institution whose jurisdiction ends at Germany's frontiers, but shall embrace all Evangelical churches abroad.

COUNTESS WEDS M'CORMICK

LONDON, July 12.—(AP.)—The wedding of Comtesse de Fleurieu, daughter of the French Vicomte de Fontarce, and Leander James McCormick, of Chicago, occurred at the register office today in the presence of a few friends.

A religious ceremony in the Savoy Chapel followed.

McCormick, who is 44 years old, was educated in Eton and Cambridge, and at present is a resident in London. His bride is 33.

She wore a navy blue summer coat over a simple white frock and a navy blue hat trimmed in white. Her only flowers were orchids pinned on the coat. The bridegroom wore morning dress.

No reception was held. It was understood they will spend a honeymoon in California.

WED 14 YEARS, DENIED DIVORCE

Judge William H. McNaugher refused a divorce to Mrs. Stella K. Schmid, of 3727 Perrysville avenue, late yesterday, ruling that the court could not believe her husband had subjected her to the indignities she claimed.

Her petition was contested by her husband, Andrew A. Schmid.

The couple, married in 1919, have a 10-year-old child.

5 RUSS TO DIE FOR SABOTAGE

MOSCOW, July 12.—(INS.)—Convicted of one of the most shocking crimes against the Soviet regime, five men were sentenced to death in the Moscow City Court today and six others to prison terms ranging from 18 months to eight years.

They were accused of having deliberately supplied restaurants in great factories with food containing ground glass, tacks, rope, hair, sand and bits of wire in an effort to arouse discontent among the workers and discredit the government.

The accused were either former Kulaks (rich peasants) or traders who had been expelled from various rural districts for resistance to the government's program or actual crimes.

REVEAL BANK MANIPULATION

CLEVELAND, July 12.—(AP.)—A story of complex manipulations of Guardian Trust Company securities and checks and of yearly compensations of more than $100,000 to the bank's president was unfolded in part today before a state Senate committee investigating the Cleveland banking situation.

Edward J. Falkenstein, a committee investigator, and Theodore W. Kearins, attorney and accountant, testified the bank prepared a statement of its condition at the close of 1932 that made it appear its deposits were higher than they were and its debts smaller.

Arthur H. Ganger, attorney and certified accountant, said five or six officers received a total of $1,452,399.32 in salaries, bonuses and Christmas presents between 1928 and 1933. J. Arthur House, who was president of the bank up to the time it was denied a license to reopen at the end of the national banking holiday, alone received $477,517.06, Ganger said. His highest compensation for a single year was $108,750 in 1930.

Two Boys Drowned In Ohio, Identified

IRONTON, O., July 12.—(AP.)—Two bodies taken from the Ohio River near here last week were identified yesterday as those of a pair of hitch-hikers who left Washington on a hiking trip.

On one, recovered July 7, was found a pocketbook with an identification card showing him to be Edward Nightengail, of Washington. The other body, recovered July 5, was identified by the father, A. E. McCoy, of Washington, as his son, Arthur, 17.

KIDNAPERS DEAL TO RELEASE O'CONNELL

home from a "date" with Miss Mary Fahey, his particular young woman friend.

The O'Connell brothers returned home shortly after noon. As throughout the kidnaping, they would not comment upon the case.

The family has never discussed the kidnaping and has refrained from aiding the police. New York City detectives, state and federal operatives, Ed, Dan and John, Sr., steadily have relied on direct negotiations with the abductors.

NEW LIST GIVEN

None of the 11 intermediaries named by the O'Connells yesterday have been located today. At Buffalo, Joseph J. Dicarlo, called No. 1 of that city's police list of public enemies, said he had been asked to help in the search by Tommy Dyke, one of the go-betweens named by the O'Connells last Monday. The kidnapers rejected the first list of intermediaries.

Samuel E. Aronowitz, law partner of Ed O'Connell, said he had had "a good night's sleep."

He spoke cheerfully, and said jokingly:

"I slept from 11:30 p. m. to 6 a. m. That's better than any of the last few nights."

ILL MOTHER KEEPS VIGIL

The youth's mother and Mary Fahey, daughter of a police sergeant, today waited "Young John's" release at the O'Connell home on quiet Putnam avenue, the mother ill because of worry and loss of sleep.

Many rumors spead when it was learned that the uncle had left his camp.

The camp is on the windswept east slopes of the low Helderbergs, in a sparsely settled country. Thompson's Lake is not far away. There are a number of summer cottages at the lake.

The Associated Press was told in a telephone conversation with the camp that "so far as we know, Dan isn't going to bring Young John back with him. Probably he's just gone to get some fresh air."

Later this morning a member of the family expressed the belief that John's return was only a matter of a few hours. This family member said:

"He ought to be back this afternoon or tonight."

He refused, as all close to the kidnaping have persistently done, to permit his name to be used. He did not reveal the source of his information nor whether ransom had been or would be paid.

Until today the only communications with the abductors made public were two telephone calls and three letters. The O'Connells had answered the requests for go-betweens by inserting advertisements in local newspapers as instructed by the kidnapers.

Young O'Connell was forced into a car by several men about 1:30 a. m. last Friday as he got out of his car at his home. The family did not know he had been kidnaped until the next day when a telephone call was received at the office of Ed, Albany County and city Democratic leader.

LONG SILENCES

Neither the kidnapers' long silences nor criticism from certain sources caused the O'Connells to give up hope for direct negotiation and turn to the police for aid.

The only notice the authorities have had from the family that young John J. was missing came last night from Aronowitz, and was handed to Chief David Smurl. It read:

"On behalf of Mrs. John J. O'Connell, Sr., who is too ill to appear personally, I request the aid of the police department in finding John J. O'Connell, Jr., who we have been informed is being illegally detained against his will. He apparently was forcibly abducted about 1 a. m., July 7, 1933."

One of the family advisers explained that the note was sent only to give the authorities a definite reason for entering the search. The police, however, together with "ace" detectives from New York City, state troopers, federal investigators and the Attorney General's office, had already started a drive for the kidnapers on the basis of newspaper stories. The papers withheld publication of the stories until Monday night.

FAMILY CRITICIZED

Senator Royal S. Copeland, who yesterday asked the Federal Department of Justice to enter the investigation, last night said in Washington that the O'Connells made a mistake in trying to hide the crime. He declared:

"This O'Connell kidnaping is a despicable crime as are all kidnapings. But it is the duty of the families of the victims to extend every aid to the police. The sooner the police get set on a case, the more likelihood the crime will be solved and perpetrators captured and punished."

The second list of go-between, headed by Hotaling, was offered in a simple code message in the Albany Times-Union yesterday after Dan O'Connell had received a note in his private post office box saying that the list submitted Sunday in a similar advertisement was not acceptable to the abductors. The note also repeated the demand for $250,000.

Young O'Connell, a husky athlete weighing 213 pounds, attended Manlius School and was commissioned a lieutenant in the National Guard after graduation.

Kidnaping Leaves Baseball Team Coachless

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—(AP.)—The kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, Jr., has left the St. Ann's Parish baseball team without its coach.

St. Ann's is a Catholic Church in the congested South Side. The youngsters had a baseball team, a few gloves, a discarded mask and two bats until the kidnaped nephew of Ed O'Connell, political chief, came along.

Young John was just out of school, where he had played ball. He bought the St. Ann's boys uniforms and all equipment. Virtually every evening during the season he would drop around to coach the boys.

The kidnaped youth knew how other sand lot teams had laughed at St. Ann's. He went to school there before the O'Connells had more than enough money to live on.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—Payment of state inheritance tax brought a $320,202 abatement in federal estate tax today to the estate of Percy L. Craig, of Freedom, Pa.

RACKETEER FOE ACID VICTIM

NEW YORK, July 12.—(Universal.)—Julius Bernfeld, 42, wealthy furrier, who has supplied District Attorney Crain with information against racketeers attempting to control the fur industry, was attacked with acid last night as he was driving to his Brooklyn home.

Gangsters hurled a gallon tin of acid against his roadster. The acid splashed on Bernfeld, burning his left eye and head. He may lose the sight of the eye.

The searing fluid also splashed on the unprotected arms of John Fraser, who was driving a truck that halted alongside Bernfeld's roadster to await a change in traffic lights.

Cries of the injured brought Policeman John Rogers, whose hands were burned as he gripped Bernfeld's acid-soaked coat while aiding the blinded man from his car.

All of the injured were taken to Polyclinic Hospital. Fraser and the policeman were permitted to go home, but Bernfeld was placed under care of physicians who said his condition was serious.

Retired Surgeon King Of Tarpon Fishermen

SARASOTA, Fla., July 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Frank Cary, retired Chicago surgeon, last night was crowned king of tarpon fishermen here. He was awarded the capital prize for the largest silver king caught on heavy tackle and the sweepstakes prize for the largest caught on any kind of tackle.

Dr. Cary won the honors in the seventh annual international tarpon tournament.

EDITOR'S CHILD GUARDED

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—The 4-year-old son of W. Thornton Martin, associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, is being guarded by police after the attempted break, might tempted to break into the Martin home in suburban Abington yesterday.

Martin and several friends maintained a vigil all last night in the event the stranger, who was seen near the estate twice after the attempjted break, might return.

Martin said he had received no threats and was inclined to discount the theory that the mysterious stranger intended a kidnaping.

Martin said:

"It seems more like the work of a demented person."

About noon yesterday, Roosevelt Robinson, a servant, heard the boy, Peter, screaming in the garden. Running to the scene, the servant said he saw a man creeping menacingly toward the child. The stranger walked away at Robinson's shout, but was seen again loitering at the rear of the house.

TEACHER DIES IN POOL

BUTLER, Pa., July 12.—Her desire to become an expert swimmer was blamed today for the death of Elizabeth Thompson, 23, school teacher of Center township. She was found drowned yesterday in the swimming pool of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College by E. B. Cottrell, swimming instructor.

He had refused her permission to swim more than 45 minutes. She left, but returned in his absence, and reentered the pool. She was attending summer school.

EARLY FACTOR RELEASE SEEN

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS.)—Behind a wall of secrecy that police and federal operatives have been unabe to penetrate, it was vealed today that John (Jake the Barber) Factor may be released late this afternoon following actual contact with and the paying of ransom to his kidnapers.

Demands of the kidnapers, said to remain at $200,000, were stamped with authenticity, those close to the family admitting, when relatives received a signet ring owned by the one-time Halsted street barber in evidence he was actually held by the senders. Thus friends of Factor believed the strange kidnap drama was moving to a rapid finale.

Release of Factor, following the payment of the ransom money, it was said, would then be a matter of a few hours.

Despite failure of federal men with Sheriffs Lester Eddinger, of McHenry County, and Lester Tiffany, of Lake County, to uncover clues in an all-day search of the Chain-of-Lakes region yesterday, it was confidently believed the expected contact will be effected in that territory.

In this connection the home of Frank Hayes, broker, at Crystal Lake, became one point of interest, and another was that of George (Bugs) Moran, the notorious hoodlum chief, between Lake Bluff and Grass Lake. Hayes is a close friend of Factor. He was not at his country home last night, but his wife insisted to interviewers that she knew of no negotiations or special activity about the place.

The suspicion persisted that Moran's hand might be guiding the entire Factor plot. He was not at his summer home yesterday.

BANKERS' SONS ASK POLICE TO DROP HUNT

ALTON, Ill., July 12.—(AP.)—Hoping that the kidnapers of August Luer, wealthy 77-year-old banker and meat packer might begin their negotiations today for ransom, members of the Luer family asked Alton police, county authorities and the state highway patrol to drop their search for the abductors and withdraw from the case.

At an early morning conference Luer's three sons, Herman F., William J. and Carl A., decided that the withdrawal of the police was necessary to allow the kidnapers an opportunity to arrange for release of their father.

Mayor Butler, of Alton, directing the police investigation of the abduction, would not comment on the request of the brothers, but it was learned that he and his associates had reached no decision on the plea of the family. Luer is subject to violent heart attacks and the request was made by the sons on the theory that as long as the elder Luer is in the hands of the kidnapers his life is in grave danger because of his illness.

Luer's sons expressed the hope that the first communication from the kidnapers would be a note bearing their father's signature and a few lines of his handwriting. Herman Luer said:

"Only by such a note would we be convinced that father is still alive. Jewelry—a ring or scarf pin—won't be satisfactory proofs that the kidnapers have him. You can take them from a dead man."

A misinterpretation of an intercepted telephone conversation by a policeman early today sent Carl Luer to St. Louis with Alton detectives on a report that a letter, presumably from the kidnapers, was being held for the Luer family at the St. Louis main postoffice. No letter was found in St. Louis.

MARGIOTTI ASKS PROBE FUND

Attorney Charles J. Margiotti has accepted the appointment as special counsel for the joint legislative committee to investigate Allegheny County government but, in a statement today, declares he will not undertake such a probe until an appropriation is available.

The committee, headed by Representative Joseph A. Rectenwald, will consider asking an appropriation this week.

In his acceptance, Margiotti pointed out the necessity of an appropriation. He declared:

"I examined the joint resolution creating the committee and found that, while it has ample powers, no appropriation is made to defray expenses of investigation. Such an investigation is of enormous magnitude and, to be of any value, requires the employment of numerous investigators, expert auditors, subpena servers and others, as well as necessary expenditures incident to the proper administration of the business of the committee."

Acting Postmasters Appointed by Farley

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—Acting postmasters appointed today by Postmaster General James A. Farley included:

Herbert A. Schlaudecker, Erie, Pa.; Harry Auer, Corry, Pa.; J. Alex Patterson, Avella, Pa.; James F. Dugan, Osceola Mills, Pa.; and Anna M. Stephenson, Parkersburg, W. Va.

GUNMAN'S WIFE SHOT IN BATTLE

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(INS.)—One member of a bootlegging gang lay near death today while the wife of the leader of a rival outfit was recovering from bullet wounds as the aftermath of gunplay between the gangs.

The shooting occurred at the home of John (Slim) Hession, reputed big-time bootlegger. It was preceded earlier in the week by a hijacking and a subsequent holdup at Hession's home.

With drawn revolvers, a four-man "death squad" entered Hession's home last night. Hession and three bodyguards opened fire. Mrs. Hession, 28, was wounded in the leg, and Thomas McKee, 26, one of the invading gunmen, fell with a bullet through the abdomen.

AMELIA'S AIDE SEEKS DIVORCE

CHICAGO, July 12.—(Universal.)—Lou Gordon, mechanic of the tri-motored Friendship on which Amelia Earhart was a passenger five years ago in flying the Atlantic, filed suit for divorce yesterday charging his wife, the former Ann Bruce, of Hempstead, L. I., with desertion.

Gordon met Miss Bruce in 1928 while preparations were being made for the ocean flight, and Miss Bruce was on the welcoming ship Macom in New York harbor when Amelia, Gordon and the late Wilmer Stultz returned in triumph from England.

They were married here at a public reception in the Trianon ballroom and Miss Earhart was one of the great crowd present.

IRWIN WOMAN LAUDS MENU CONTEST

Housewives throughout the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph are still saying glowing things about the Prudence Penny $100 weekly cash prize dinner menu contest and, more than ever, they have jumped into the keen competition for the liberal rewards. Sun-Telegraph Contest No. 5 is now running and entries for this week's prizes will be accepted up to midnight next Tuesday.

The reaction of the contest on the women of Pittsburgh and vicinity is well reflected in many congratulatory letters Prudence Penny has received. Here is one from Mrs. T. W. Reilly, Irwin Pa.:

"Surely your contest is one of unusual help to us housewives of today. I have received so much help from the various menus published in your paper and I feel that those participating in the contest will be helped so much by the efforts they put forth in making out menus confined to such a low cost. It most certainly gives us something to think about when it comes to budgeting our meals."

Contest No. 4 closed last night, and the lucky winners will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph Friday. There is still an opportunity to win the cash prizes of Contest No. 5 and housewives are not limited to the number of entries they may submit. If additional entry blanks are desired they may be secured at any one of the following leading stores: Krogers, Clover Farm Butler's, Triangle, Donahoe's or McCann's.

WINNING MENUS

As in all the other menu contests aside from the larger cash prizes there were five $1 prizes in Contest No. 3. One of these was awarded to Mrs. Tony Campagna, Box 224, Mercer, Pa.

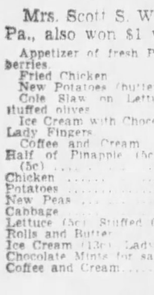
PROGRAM

Pomp and Circumstance	Elgar
Overture, "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
Aria "Voi che sapete" from "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
Largo from "The New World Symphony"	Dvorak
Melodies from "The Merry Widow"	Lehar
Irish Rhapsody	Herbert
Aria "The Jewel Song" from "Faust"	Gounod
"Artists Life" Waltz	Strauss
"Girl Crazy" selection	Gershwin
Finlandia	Sibelius

The continuous good weather makes each Schenley Lawn concert more attractive and last night under the sponsorship of the Tuesday Musical Club, the attendance was excellent.



Mr. Lissfelt

The program again was well chosen though wind played havoc here and there with acoustics.

Helen Bell Rush, one of our best sopranos, was soloist on this occasion, and with her two listed solos added two popular melodies from "Chocolate Soldier" and "High Jinks," which were well received.

Miss Rush sings in the best form. Her "Jewel Song" was not only musically well planned, but throughout she showed a profound understanding of its dramatic content. The "Figaro" air was less successful in the open.

THE INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS AT SCHAEFFER SCHOOL FOR THE WEST PITTSBURGH POST

Judge Hits Sweatshops Making U. S. Flags

Judge M. A. Musmanno, of Common Pleas Court, criticized American merchants who purchase United States flags made in Japan.

Speaking last night at the outdoor installation ceremonies of West Pittsburgh Post, No. 496, American Legion, on the Schaeffer School grounds, Crafton Heights, Judge Musmanno said the merchant who would buy his flag abroad would sell his country. He added:

"The American flag is not a subject for barter and certainly not a subject for sweatshops. I know America will be safe and this flag go forward."

R. E. McKibben, installed as commander, was presented a charter by District Commander J. H. Nichols, of the Allegheny County Legion Committee. Other officers are: Second vice commander, E. W. Sutton; first vice commander, A. Monroe; adjutant, C. Richards; finance officer, J. J. Panebaker; sergeant-at-arms, S. C. Ryans, and chaplain, C. Kershaw.

C. E. FOUNDER, 82, AT MEET

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 12.—(AP.)—A slight, white-haired old lady of 82—"Mother Endeavor" to thousands of young people the world over—today was the center of all eyes at the biennial convention of the international society of Christian Endeavor.

She is Harriet Abbott Clark, widow of Dr. Francis E. Clark, and with him co-founder of the first Endeavor society, which was organized at Portland, Me., in 1881.

Despite her age, Mrs. Clark refused to miss the convention and traveled alone from her home in Boston to attend.

Cholera Death Quiz Seals West Va. Wells

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 12.—(INS.)—Wells and other water supplies were being sealed at Flemington, near here, today as health authorities began an investigation into the deaths of seven children from a disease similar to cholera and dysentery.

A score of children are suffering from the disease although only a few are in serious condition.

Boy, 2, Smokes Three Cigars Each Day

PATERSON, N. J., July 12.—(AP.)—Charles Norman, Jr., when 14 months old, sat on his father's lap, smelled the good smoke of his father's cigar, and howled. A puff of the self-same cigar made him stop crying. Today, aged 2 years, he smokes two or three cigars a day.

Whipped Cream Ends Monkey's Freedom

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—Whipped cream and a banana did what details of police failed to accomplish—lured a prized Rhesus monkey back from a life of freedom in the trees.

It was captured by Mrs. Helen Snyder, in suburban Bywood, a week after its escape from the estate of William Harlan in Villanova. Many others had tried but failed.

THOUGHTS and THINGS

THE business of living, when boiled down and all the froth skimmed off, is just a matter of thinking.

Each of us is continually thinking ideas of our own and swapping them for the ideas of others. If there is a famine of outside ideas we shrivel up ourselves. Children with "nobody to play with" are unhappy and unmanageable.

From thinking with our heads to doing with our hands is but a little step . . . and then our thoughts become things.

It is because men of America are so unfettered in their thinking and doing that this country is such a fine place to live in. It is also because these thoughts are freely radiated and spread broadcast, in the distribution of manufactured things and in the distribution of the facts about them (advertising), that this country is such a fine place to live in.

The originator of an idea is not much better off than before he originated it till he gets some one else to absorb it and enjoy it and benefit by it.

The man or woman surrounded by better thoughts and things, but who pays not the slightest attention to them, is not much better off than the one with "nobody to play with."

The advertisements in the papers are thoughts—telling you about the things that other men and women have created for your happiness. Read the ads. They are the voices from hundreds of thousands of looms, shops, foundries, studios, laboratories, where millions of minds are turning pleasant thoughts into worth-while things for your comfort.

Woman's Prettiness Alone Will Not Hold Husband

Will a permanent wave insure a permanent marriage?

Or does it take something besides a peach-bloom complexion, coral fingernails and the latest in creams and frills to give a gal It, and keep the Big Boy home?

Mitzi is beginning to wonder because, obviously, something's wrong. And Mitzi is no slouch. She is pretty, peppy and popular. Yet—

Can you guess the answer?

Dear Elsie:

I wonder if you can help me. I have tried and tried to figure out what the trouble is, but I just can't seem to get the answer myself. Maybe you can. If so, I hope you'll give me a hand, because I surely need it.

Honestly, I am getting scared. I seem to be losing my husband's interest, and I don't know why. We have been married for almost three years, and I can't understand what on earth is wrong. Even before I knew him I was very popular, and I still am; and I have been told many times that I am beautiful. Not that I feel conceited about that, but I just want to give you the picture as it is. He has told me many times how pretty I am, and he has always seemed to be proud of my looks.

I have always taken care of myself. I go regularly to the beauty shop. I always have my hair nicely done, and my nails as well, and I take good care of my skin, too. So far as I can see, I don't look any different than I did when he told me, four years ago, that he simply couldn't live without me, and I promised to marry him.

LOSING INTEREST

I don't think I have changed a bit; but it is pretty plain that he has. To look things square in the eye, he simply seems to be losing interest in me.

He used to be very attentive. He never spent an hour that he didn't have to away from me. He was always telling me how wonderful I was. Of course I didn't expect the honeymoon to exactly last forever, but now he doesn't hurry home to be with me, and often, when he is home, he hardly talks to me. He acts sometimes as if he were actually irritated with me.

I can't understand it at all. When I go out anywhere I am always paid attention to. If I wanted to I could have plenty of other men noticing me. But I don't want them; I love him. I am frightened when I see this gap growing between us. It will simply break my heart if I ever lose him, and I am terribly afraid I am doing just that. What on earth is wrong? Please help me. MITZI.

What' wrong?

My guess is, sister—too much beauty work and too little brain work.

STUDY HIS INTERESTS

You may be very, very easy on the eye, Mitzi, and yet be a Long, Dull Ache to the disposition. Prettiness is mighty useful in landing a husband, but prettiness alone won't hold him very long—not if he has anything above the ears.

For a permanent partner in whom he can confide, to whom he'll turn with ever fresh interest, a man wants a regular citizen — not just a Beautiful Baby Doll.

You say proudly, "I haven't changed a bit!" That's the whole trouble. You must change if you're going to hold your own, or your man, in this changing and challenging world. Every day that husband comes in touch with intelligent, alert, interesting women who are current. And you're still the dear, sweet girl he married! That may qualify you for admission into an antique store, lady, but it won't make you very valuable in marriage.

So wake up and get going, Mitzi. If you want to make your husband want you again, find out what he wants. Study his interests—the world he lives in. Learn to think with him, talk to him, be a regular partner. Put as much polish on your brain as you have on your finger nails, and you won't be able to drive him away.

Fay King's Story Is About the Lindbergh House of Sorrow

THE LINDBERGH HOME OF SORROW AT HOPEWELL, N.J. IS TO BECOME "HIGH FIELDS" A HARBOR OF HAPPINESS FOR LITTLE CHILDREN
FAY KING
LITTLE ORPHANS PRAYING FOR THE LINDBERGH BABY

By FAY KING.

During those unforgettable weeks when all the world shared the anxiety of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, prayers were offered everywhere for the safe return of their kidnaped baby.

No prayers were more touching and more appealing than those of little children, and most of all the little orphans—so alone—so dependent for love and care!

We cannot help remembering them, now that the Hopewell home of sorrow and tragedy is to become "High Fields," a beautiful welfare center for little children.

No more fitting and worthy use could be made of this sad estate—a shrine to which little children may go.

It is a beautiful gesture on the part of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

God's blessing be upon it!

Lillian's Cynical Comment Soothes Madge

"This 'Floss' insect," Lillian began, and there was an airy, humorous contempt in her voice that vaguely comforted me, "is evidently one of these new style 'go-getting' females. How did her voice sound? Young, or a bit worn off the edges of the plating?"

"Distinctly young," I answered, with an involuntary smile, despite my misery, at her ridiculous phrasing.

"Yes, I thought so," she said. "The young ones have the most gall. The older women have some inhibitions left.

"You know," she crossed her knees comfortably, and leaned back in her chair as if she meant to talk indefinitely, "time was when if a woman wanted a married man, she went after him under cover, as if she were doing something rather discreditable. But one of these modern hussies walks up to the wife of a man she fancies and says, 'Move over, you, I'm staking a claim on this. Your option's run out, anyway. Git!'

"Then it's up to little wifey. She either runs her off the reservation with a gun and establishes a hectic liason between hubby's dome and the business end of a rolling pin, or she hands over the spouse—all depending upon the value she places on Friend Husband."

KNOWS GIRL'S TYPE

I looked at her with wide, startled eyes. Did she mean that this 'Floss' was trying to annex Dicky? If she did, then she must know something about the young woman that I did not.

"Don't get ideas into your head!" she adjured, after a whimsical, comprehending look at me. "I'm not talking from any personal knowledge of this 'Floss' beetle. But I know her 'teep' as the gown saleswomen say.

"Women of that particular species don't even sound out the men they pick to see if they're willing to be grabbed. They just look 'em over with a predatory eye, and get ready to snatch 'em and run before the policeman on the beat has a chance to unlimber his nightstick."

"But, Lillian," I protested. "Dicky must know her. She wouldn't call him Dicky-bird, and know his home telephone number unless he did. And she actually was surprised to know he was married."

"And I'll bet the Dicky-bird will be equally surprised to know that such an interest is being taken in his affairs by a girl like that," she retorted.

"Come, Madge, snap out of it! Don't judge the lad because some rattle brain like that has left a telephone message for him. You've summered and wintered with him a long time, and while we don't dispute that he sometimes has a 'roving eye,' you know there's never been any real harm in his philanderings. And his taste never has run to anything as common as I imagine this 'Floss' must be.

I had had time now to get my bearings—I shrewdly suspected that Lillian had rattled on with her cynical comments for that very reason—and I put a quick, tense query to her.

ASKED TO STAY

"When I give that message of hers to Dicky, will you stay in the room?"

I wondered if I imagined the startled look that came into her eyes, but there was no mistaking the hesitancy before her answer.

"Are you sure you want me here?" she asked.

"Yes, I do," I said stubbornly, and her lips curved in an indulgent whimsical smile.

"All right," she said, "I'll be the little shock absorber. But we'll have to be mighty careful that the Dicky-bird has no suspicion that you have asked me to stick around. He must deduce that I just happened in."

A double knock, Dicky's own signal, sounded on the hall door, and Lillian flashed a startled grin at me.

Hints for the Household

Sheets often tear when pegged to the line by the corners. To prevent this, stitch a small length of tape at each corner, and peg these instead of the sheet.

When pouring fat into a basin, add one tablespoon of boiling water. This will make all pieces of meat sink to the bottom, and the dripping will be clear.

Pure glycerine will remove most stains from materials. Apply to the affected parts with a pad of soft cloth, leave for a few minutes, then wash the article or garment in the usual way.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Use Leisure Time for Health

In a city park the other day I was amused by the sight of two sailors rowing on one of the lakes. Though off sea duty they sought relaxation and pleasure in this form of recreation and seemed to enjoy it. This seems a strange vacation for a sailor.

Dr. Copeland

You cannot do better than to follow the example of the sailor who chose the recreation that gave him the most pleasure. Though a change of scene is advisable, a vacation should be a period of mental and physical rest.

Too often time and energy are wasted in efforts at recreation. Little rest is obtained and, in many instances, the vacationist returns more tired than he was before he started.

If you return worn out and nervous your vacation has really been harmful. How can rest be obtained if strenuous exercise, late hours and little sleep make up the vacation period? Indeed, too many of us indulge in sports that are unsuited to our physical powers.

A week-end at the seashore may lead to over-exertion in swimming. This is a dangerous procedure, because it is not every heart that can endure strenuous swimming, even for a short time. Few persons consult their doctors before indulging in energetic exercises. They do not inquire whether they can swim in the ocean or just how much swimming it is safe to take. There is no doubt that many serious ailments could be avoided if more persons did this.

Sea bathing is beneficial to some and harmful to others. Mountain air is extremely healthful to some and injurious to others. No definite rule can be laid down because the factors that influence the choice of climate are individual ones. They depend on the state of health.

No one will deny that vacations, whether long or short, in winter or summer, are necessary. The maintenance of good health depends on the sensible use of leisure. A properly conducted vacation improves the appetite, digestion and sleep. Otherwise it does not benefit the body.

The wise plan is to take stock of your physical health by periodical examinations. Your physician will advise whether you may exercise vigorously or if it is best to avoid exercise and strain. He will make suggestions that will increase the benefits of the days away from work.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. C. V. A. Q.—Nearly all summer I have been bothered by spells of sneezing, especially in the mornings. I have no cold, but I have noticed that I have to use my handkerchief freely and seem to feel very blue and depressed. Could this be hay fever? What can be done in this case?

A.—May be due to hay fever, or to some underlying catarrhal condition, or obstruction in the nose. Examination should help to fix the exact cause. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Miss A. O. Q.—What will increase the growth of the eyelashes?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

G. M. T. Q.—Are nuts constipating?

A.—Not if thoroughly chewed.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

It isn't too far ahead to think of early autumn dresses. A delightful model that will be seen in September is of ribbed black woolen with a detachable collar and detachable gauntlet cuffs of white galyak with black galyak buttons.

The silver standard is being maintained by silver lame, which is mentioned as a highlight for autumn wear. A charming evening frock, simply made, has a self-brocaded floral design. There are shoulder capes, a low decolletage and a trailing hemline.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter of Sympathy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have gone out with a young man a few times and he died recently. Should I send his mother a card expressing my sympathy? I do not know his family, but I know all his friends. I'm sure his mother would ask his friend who I am and he would tell her.

How should I sign my name and what should I write? S.

Don't send a ready-made card of sympathy. Instead write a note of sympathy, worded something like this:

Dear Mrs. Atwater:

May I, although I am unknown to you, express my deep sympathy to you and your family at the death of your son? I have known Jack for some time, and know many of his friends, and his passing has left a deep loss in all our hearts. I realize what a terrible sorrow his going is to you, and I do want to tell you of my sympathy and my friendliness and understanding. He spoke often of you and of his devotion to you, and this makes us all know how shadowed these days must be for you, how difficult the separation must be. He had such a fine character, was such a devoted son, such a perfect friend.

If there is any way in which I may be of service, please let me know, and I shall be so glad to help.

Very sincerely yours,

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how soon cards announcing the baby's birth should be mailed out? Would it be proper to wait two or three weeks before sending the announcements? S.

Yes, these cards needn't be sent out especially promptly. Friends don't expect this promptness about birth announcements.

ASPHALT FIRM ASSAILED; LOW BID REJECTED

Declaring the Lake Asphalt Petroleum Company had made unlawful contributions of money for political purposes in Allegheny County, Commissioner C. C. McGovern yesterday refused to award it a contract for road material, although the firm was the lowest of three bidders.

The company's bid was $15,880. The contract was awarded to the State Construction Company at $16,400.

McGovern said he believed that a company that would make contributions to political leaders was not conducting business legitimately. He continued:

"A few months ago we had to get rid of our public works director (Frank M. Chester) because we learned he had previously been associated with asphalt concerns that passed money out freely. These companies change their names and move so often it's hard to keep track of them."

Commission W. D. Mansfield supported McGovern in refusing the bid of the concern. The contract was for 200,000 gallons of asphalt hot surface treatment.

A few minutes later McGovern refused to award a contract for slag to the Duquesne Slag Products Company, although that company was the only concern to submit a bid.

McGovern said:

"This is another company that let a lot of money lay around where people could find it. On one occasion this company left $10,000 around loose where someone found it."

LAWYER ADMITS POLICE GIFTS

Attorney John Wirtzman, against whom disbarment proceedings are pending in Common Pleas Court, has filed an answer in which he admits giving Christmas presents totaling $1,000 or $1,500 to policemen, firemen, hospital employes and staff doctors.

An amended bill of particulars had been filed by the bar association committee, headed by Attorney Donald C. Anderson, containing 15 instances of alleged unethical acts. They included charges of obtaining cases by employing runners and solicitors.

Wirtzman, in his answer, admitted some charges and denied others. He said he procured cases through solicitation by investigators, who had the prospective clients sign powers of attorney to him. He admitted these investigators were paid a percentage of the fee or a salary.

TIRED RESCUER ASKS BOAT

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Capt. John Connelly, of the United States Volunteer Lifesaving Corps, has rescued two more persons from the East River. One was a 16-year-old boy, the other was another rescuer. Connelly held them both up until a Coast Guard boat came along. Said Connelly, who lost count of his rescues after they passed 90.

"I get tired sometimes. What I need is a boat. About a $50 one would be swell."

Clevelander Gets Shrine Post in Landslide

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—(AP.)—John N. Sebrell, of Norfolk, Va., today became the Imperial Potentate of North America Shrinedom, succeeding Earl C. Mills, of Des Moines, Ia., as the national head of the Arabic order.

The major interest in the election centered about the contest for Imperial Outer Guard. This post is left vacant by the moving up of all Imperial Council officers with the retirement of the Imperial Potentate.

Albert H. Fiebach, past potentate of the Al Koran Temple, Cleveland, was the victorious candidate by an overwhelming margin. He polled 520 of the 626 votes cast.

James C. Burger, Denver, Col., was re-elected imperial treasurer, and James H. P. Rice, Richmond, Va., was returned to office as imperial recorder. Among other officers selected was Walter S. Sugden, Sistersville, W. Va., imperial oriental guide.

The new officers will be installed tomorrow.

The election of Fiebach is said to be the greatest landslide at a Shrine convention in 20 years.

DILLON, SCREEN VETERAN, DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 12.—(AP.)—Edward Dillon, 60, first leading man for Mary Pickford in the days of the screen's two-reelers, died of heart disease at his apartment yesterday.

For nine years Dillon was one of the "ace" directors for David Wark Griffith. His directorial efforts followed a career as an actor during which he played with Miss Pickford in the East and later came to Hollywood with her company. He was known as the discoverer of Fay Tincher, the commedienne.

FATHER SEEKS VANISHED GIRL

BROOKVILLE, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—Neighbors joined John Paine, 85-year-old farmer living 12 miles north of here, in a search tonight for his daughter, Ruth, 26, who has dipappeared.

The farmer said there had been no family trouble, that he knew of no "boy friend" with whom his daughter might elope, and that she was not missed until yesterday morning. She had left home the night before.

RIVER FACTOR IN RAIL SUIT

BEAVER, Pa., July 12.—An issue injected into the hearing on the injunction sought by the Pennsylvania Railroad to halt construction of a rail-river loading station at the mouth of the Little Beaver River at Smith's Ferry, proposed Montour Railroad terminal on the Ohio River, is whether the stream has been declared navigable by the federal government.

Testimony was introduced to show the Pennsylvania owned 400 feet of land on each bank of the Little Beaver River, where dredging operations were begun by the Montour Railroad, and that any operation there would be an encroachment on private property.

Counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, owner of the Montour, contend the Little Beaver Creek had been declared a navigable stream.

BANKS TO PAY $755,000

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—Payment of $755,000 to 56,800 depositors in eight closed banks before the end of the month was announced yesterday by William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking.

This distribution will be in addition to the disbursement of $1,042,390 announced last week by the department. At that time it was estimated 55,476 accounts in nine banks would share the money.

The largest amount announced today will go to the 14,378 depositors of the First Bank and Trust Company, Washington. They will receive a 5 per cent payment on a total deposit liability of $4,166,329, or $208,257, on July 27.

It will be the fourth payment, the others having been 15 per cent and two payments of 10 per cent.

A payment of 5 per cent amounting to $65,144 will be paid on July 24 to 8,427 depositors in the Mountain City Trust Company, Altoona, where payments of 40 and 10 per cent have already been made.

GANDHI PARTY DEBATES FIGHT

POONA, India, July 12.—(AP.)—A conference of the Indian Congress Party to decide whether civil disobedience is to be abandoned or continued opened in strict secrecy today.

Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the party and of the movement, accompanied by his wife and a disciple, Mrs. Naidu, made a 50-miles-per-hour dash in a motor car from Parnakuti.

Gandhi recently conducted a three-week fast as a protest against untouchability. Several months ago he was quoted as saying he was undetermined as to whether to continue civil disobedience to gain recognition for certain demands.

McCLOSKEY AT BANK PARLEY

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—A committee of Johnstown, Pa., bank depositors, headed by Mayor Eddie McCloskey, conferred yesterday with bank reorganization officials regarding plans to reopen a closed Johnstown bank.

After their meeting, McCloskey said he is "hopeful" that steps can be taken to reopen the bank, and that the committee will return for further conferences next week. He said he feels discussion of the conference would be premature.

The mayor found time, however, to renew his criticism of Gov. Pinchot, whom he blamed for both the closing and failure to reopen of a number of Pennsylvania banks. He said:

"Pinchot and his banking department are to blame for a good share of this misery."

Altoona Minister Named by M. E. Meet

EVANSTON, Ill., July 12.—(AP.)—Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, Chicago, yesterday was elected president of the World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church at its annual meeting.

Cambria and Somerset counties were added to the supervision of the local district office of the Bureau of Investigation and Collections today by the changing of four district offices by the State Revenue Department.

Buttermilk Proves Worth as Fire Extinguisher

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 12.—(INS.)—Sweet milk may have its vitamins, but it ran a poor second as a fire extinguisher today.

All the milk from the dairy failed to quench a blaze which destroyed the home of Gustave Mosgoes, East Springfield farmer.

Buttermilk had much the better record. Firemen saved the family automobile by dousing it liberally with buttermilk.

Orange Day Outing Held at Kennywood

Western Pennsylvania's celebration of Orange Day was being held at Kennywood Park today. Orangemen and their families gathered to mark the two hundred and forty-third anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. Irish dancing and a program of sports were included in the entertainment.

Meadow Gold Dairy employes, their families and customers also held an outing in Kennywood today.

Girl Held As Killer Of Stepfather, 24

MINERSVILLE, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—A tragic attempt to protect her mother put 16-year-old Mary Dennick in a prison cell, charged with slaying her stepfather.

Authorities said the girl confessed last night she shot the man, Mario Maliziola, 24, while he was quarreling with her mother. They quoted her as saying she fired the shot from a second-floor window as Maliziola stood in the kitchen doorway.

Truck in Mountain Plunge; Man Safe

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., July 12.—William Dyche, of Pittsburgh, had a narrow escape from death on Cacapon Mountain. A truck slipped and rolled down the mountain side, coming to a stop against a tree.

Dyche was scratched and bruised. The truck belonged to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation and carried a five-ton load of barreled chemicals destined for the company quarry near Martinsburg, W. Va.

Sleuths to Return Inmate to Home

County detectives were to return John Coward, 78, to the County Home at Woodville today. A mental case, he escaped last week when a window cleaner left a window open in the home. He was recaptured in Aspinwall yesterday.

Firemen to Parade Tonight at Roscoe

ROSCOE, Pa., July 12.—Firemen from 50 Southwestern Pennsylvania departments will parade on Route 88 here tonight as the feature of a bazar being held by Roscoe volunteer firefighters.

WANTED: 2000 Men To Cash In On Our Foresight

Thursday Morning at 9 O'Clock . .

We Didn't Wait For the Advance in Clothing Prices . . . We Saw It Coming . . . Jumped In and Placed Our Order Long Before Woolens Went Sky-High . . . That's Why We Can Offer These Suits at Prices Below Lowest Levels of The Depression

2000 SUITS

The Season's Best Models From

Hart-Schaffner & Marx

Actually About 40% Below Today's Inflation Prices

$18.75 $23.75 $29.75

If YOU can be as far-sighted as WE were, you'll lose no time in cashing in on this opportunity! In spite of the fact that the woolen market has gone sky-high, we offer these 2000 Brand-New Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits at prices way below their present worth . . . We didn't wait until clothing got out of reach . . . nor should you . . . we went in the market and loaded up, knowing that we'd never be able to duplicate the same goods later on at anywhere near the same prices!

Express Elevator to Men's Store—Fourth Floor

This is fair warning! You can save yourself a lot of money and a lot of regret if you'll BUY NOW! Even if you don't need clothing today it will more than pay you to lay in a supply for months to come . . . Most of these suits are in weights suitable for year 'round wear . . . they're this season's best models and patterns . . . and later on you'll be telling us that they were the biggest clothing bargains you ever bought in your entire life!

Kennedy's Mill To Be Dismantled

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 12.—Kennedy's Mill on Slippery Rock Creek, one of the landmarks of Lawrence County, for more than a hundred years, is to be dismantled this week. It is on the Steiner estate and is known to picnickers in all parts of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

It was the original plan of the Steiner estate to have it rehabilitated but the cost was found prohibitive. The plan is to dismantle the building but to allow the foundation and machinery to remain.

'PREMIERE' ON AIR -:- Mystery Drama Starts Tonight -:- RADIO FEATURES

Ship of Joy Sails With Al Smith

Dramatizing the opening installments of Robert Terry Shannon's new mystery serial, "Premiere," which starts in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph, a nightly series of six broadcasts opens on WCAE at 7:15 tonight.

Directed by David Olson, the cast includes Helen Wayne, Leon Churchon, Don Gallagher, Pearl Hamel and Stephanie Diamond. The story has as its central character a celebrated motion picture star.

Another inaugural, listed on KDKA at 10, brings Willard Robison, the "evangelist of rhythm," and his Deep River Orchestra to the air on a weekly schedule.

* * *

Sprague on Sports

Ed Sprague's "Sportslants," daily except Sunday WWSW feature, goes commercial under the banner of a local brewing company with tonight's broadcast at 6. A graduate of Ohio State University, Sprague was on the varsity basketball, football, baseball and track teams, and reaped laurels as an amateur wrestler.

* * *

Al Smith dons his seagoing togs for a mythical voyage on the Ship of Joy via WCAE at 10:30. With Capt. Dobbs, he'll broadcast from the observation tower of the Empire State Building. Muriel Wilson stars as guest with the "ship's entertainers."

* * *

Composer's Widow

Mrs. Edward MacDowell, widow of the famous American composer, is interviewed as a highlight of a special NBC-KDKA all-MacDowell broadcast at 7:30 p. m. In addition, she'll play at least one selection.

Supported by Josef Littau's orchestra, Catherine Bacon, pianist, and Theodore Webb, baritone, also are billed.

* * *

U. S. Crime Foes

How Uncle Sam's sleuths at the Federal Building here shadowed, rounded up and convicted a quartet of counterfeiters in the South Hills recently is Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans' weekly "Uncle Sam" story on WJAS at 7.

* * *

Betty Barthell, blue-eyed CBS singer who had already packed to return to her Tennessee home when Dame Fortune loomed with a commercial contract, sings her own song, "Anything Your Little Heart Desires," as Bob Taplinger's "Meet the Artist" guest . . . WJAS at 6.

* * *

Foster Recalled

With John Tasker Howard as narrator, Stephen C. Foster's childhood, spent in Pittsburgh, is recalled in drama at 8:30 over WCAE. The broadcast is one of the new weekly series.

"Pittsburgh Spotlights," KDKA 6:30 bill, co-features Cyrilla Tuite, mezzo soprano, and J. Dickson Fulton, tenor, in musical comedy bits.

* * *

Prompted by a letter from "Robert," whose fiancee goes out with other men and then lies about it, the Voice of Experience discourses on the two major stumbling blocks of courtship—lying and the belief that one owns the other—via WJAS at 8.

A surprised Robert will hear that in all probability the latter assumption on his part is responsible.

Movie Drama Stars

Don Gallagher and Helen Wayne, portrayors of "Lucky" and "Leni" in "Premiere," WCAE dramatization of the new serial story of motion picture thrills starting in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. The first of six nightly episodes goes on the air at 7:15 tonight.

Boake Carter Makes Reply To Critics

By BOAKE CARTER
Famous News Commentator.

When a radio critic of Aircaster's caliber gives a radio news commentator an opening like this—well, the natural impulse is to grab the opportunity and return the numerous bricks and the occasional bouquets with compounded interest.

Thus, let us address ourselves strictly to news and radio and news programs.

There are two or maybe even three kinds of news programs on the air. One is straight reporting; a second is news analyzing and a third, editorializing.

The first two do not draw heavy fire. The third does.

* * *

Spoken Editorials

Every newspaper has its editorial page. In it it expresses its opinion on the happenings of the world. Why there should not be a spoken editorial if there is to be a written editorial, is beyond my imagination. And yet the indignance of some good souls over some spoken editorial, at times, knows no bounds.

"You should be silenced," writes one person. "I think you're just swell," writes another, referring to the very same subject. Now what are you to do with that?

Today is a day of news. Things move rapidly in this era of the world's history. So quickly that they confuse one. It is a newspaperman's job to try to interpret the news to the best of his ability. Upon what he writes and says depends, to a very large extent, public opinion and public knowledge.

But the same time, persons who read or hear him may disagree. We all disagree. If we didn't, the world would stand still.

Thus, surely, it is far better to give a very definite editorial opinion than one which is neither here nor there, with a leg either side of the fence and which leaves the reader, or the listener, with you either mad or pleased.

You get mad, if you don't agree. If you do agree, then that's fine. But at least there is something there into which a listener can put his teeth.

* * *

Make 'em Think

Thus, being human as well as newspaperman, newspaper radio critics react accordingly. They often disagree with an expressed opinion, which is their normal human reaction, and they are apt—from a newspaper viewpoint—to look at a news commentator as not just quite right—just a little beyond the pale for taking a writing profession into a talking field.

Mr. Arthur Brisbane said the other Sunday that the main duty of news commentators was to "make people think." That is correct and the story in a nutshell.

And who is there can say that a definite, pungent editorial does not make them think more than a limpid, anaemic dissertation which sets upon the fence for fear of treading on somebody's toes?

'Mystery of Mirror' Magazine Drama

"Mystery of the Mirror," this week's American Weekly drama, will be presented over Station WFBG, Altoona, tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Based on an article in the next issue of the big feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, the playlet deals with a mysterious murder involving international romance and adventure.

Women Golfers With Seals

Women golfers have their innings on the weekly Trained Seals program over WCAE at 6:45 tonight when Mrs. George L. Hayes, president of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Chester H. Lehman, vice president, speak on the sport from the feminine angle.

Vincent Eldred, Highland Country Club pro, who defends his State Open title at Scranton next week, also is billed. Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor, and Tom Birks, golf editor, complete the lineup.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast daily over WCAE-WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

After the incident the other day, when some of the youngsters attending the ball park tripped and fell as they were rushing down the runways in exuberant excitement, some folks are wondering whether the Pirate management will refrain from inviting the boys in the future.

President Bill Benswanger says that the kids are having too good a time to deprive them of their pleasure.

Even when they break the seats with pop bottles he's still for them. He hasn't forgotten his kid days. However, if the lads would ease up on the furniture, it would be perfectly okay with him.

* * *

Mrs. J. R. Thompson, of Butler, has a time of it sometimes quieting her 3-year-old.

One of the neighbor's children frightened the youngster by telling her the Globe-Trotter goes after bad little girls and boys. She won't go near a radio. 'Wonder if it sounds like I could haunt houses?

You ought to be warned about the birds in Cecil, the sparrows, I mean.

Dorothy Orcutt reports that she laid down her piece of chocolate cake on the back porch railing to descend into the garden to pick a rose. Returning, and reaching for her cake, she saw it rise out of the plate and soar away.

Alice Calahan, of Woodstock street, doesn't swing a bad pencil, either. Popeye is her subject, too.

Frankenstein Sequel Is Coming

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 12.—One of the outstanding monsters of last year's horror pictures is to roam again. Universal has signed Boris Karloff to make two films, the first of which will be "The Return of Frankenstein."

Mr. Karloff

In putting his name to the new contract, Karloff returns to the company which discovered him and built him up to the point where he is generally recognized as the successor to the late Lon Chaney. He receives from the new deal a salary increase and plenty of time off to make pictures at other studios.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., who signed the actor after he originally had failed to take up his option, believes that two horror films a year will be enough for Universal's program. He decided upon a sequel to "Frankenstein" because this story was the company's most successful venture into the field of the macabre.

Anticipating Karloff's return, Tom Reed already has completed the new script. In it, the monster escapes from the burning mill that was supposed to be his funeral pyre and resumes his depredations upon mankind.

Production of the picture probably will entail the return of Colin Clive from London to play his original role. Others of the first cast will be re-engaged. The main change is that Kurt Neuman, and not James Whale, will direct.

A novice golfer, Jackie Oakie tells this one upon himself. The other day he went out for 18 holes but everything went wrong. First, he had to take a strange caddie, then he sliced, missed puts, lost balls and generally made a dub of himself. At the end of the game, he said to his exhausted caddie:

Jack Oakie

"Guess I had a pretty bad day."

"Well, mister," the caddie answered, "I don't know. They say there's a fellow out here named Jack Oakie who shoots a lot worse game than you."

* * *

Score another for the postoffice department. An Oakland youth addressed an envelope: "Why Don't You Come Up Some Time'—Hollywood, California," and it was promptly delivered to Mae West at the Paramount Studios.

* * *

Major Ernst Udet, sensational German flyer, is slightly bewildered. On five different nights, he went out with five different people. Each said: "Ah, we're going to show you something unusual." And each took him to the same place—The Colony Club.

* * *

The olive-skinned George Raft is the victim of the Malibu sun. He's peeling just like lesser humans . . . Gary Cooper, Dick Arlen and Jack Moss are spending all their spare time in Dick's boat. They were in Catalina again over the week-end . . . Incidentally, Gary's canary-yellow car now has a rival. Al Boasberg's is just as loud . . . Bobbe Arnst and Nick Stuart have been Cocoanut-Groving again. To my knowledge, she and Johnny Weissmuller haven't said howdy as yet. . . . One of Hollywood's most expensive hobbies is that of Edward Everett Horton. When a street is to be widened he inquires to see if any trees are to be destroyed. If they are, he has them transplanted to his Van Nuys estate. It now boasts 300 specimens.

Law Winner In Fulton

By FLORENCE KLEIN

Law and order in the vicious grip of the gangster is the theme of "The World Gone Mad," which opened in the Fulton yesterday, with Pat O'Brien, Evelyn Brent, Neil Hamilton, Mary Brian and Louis Calhern as principals. It is one of the many indictments of gang rule which have flashed across the silver screen during the last few years.

Pat O'Brien, reporter, and Neil Hamilton, lawyer, set about to avenge the murder of their friend, the district attorney, by gang leaders.

O'Brien is framed by Evelyn Brent, a gangster's "moll." But Hamilton, the new district attorney comes to the rescue. The villians escape, to their own destruction; O'Brien get three scoops for his evening sheet and Hamilton marries the girl of his dreams.

Besides the feature picture, the program includes Hearst Metrotone News, a comedy and a musical short.

PINCHOT OPENS GUARD CAMP

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—With standards flying and drums beating, Pennsylvania's citizen soldiers passed in review today before their commander-in-chief, Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

More than 3,500 National Guardsmen marched past the reviewing stand where the Governor stood with Attorney General William A. Schnader. Near the stand was Brig. Gen. Edward Martin, watching his 55th Infantry Brigade go by.

Gov. Pinchot later opened officially the state's new artillery reservation at Indiantown Gap. There the 109th and 176th Field Artillery were drawn up for his inspection.

Easy Come, Easy Go

I SAW him the other night. It was a fashionable late spot, and celebrities dotted the tables. He moved among them slowly, taking orders on a little pad. He seemed different now, as a waiter. He looked old, and he had that tired air that sometimes comes with bitter wisdom.

Recalling his story, it seemed to be the perfect ending that he, of all people, should wind up as a waiter. In my mind's eye, I could see the colorful scenes of his life moving swiftly past. And at the end—a waiter.

He had led a grand life, though. A very grand life. If my memory isn't cockeyed—(which it is, customarily)—Henry Jensen was 20 when he landed here from Germany. He was a lively kid, and tall, with a shock of curly yellow hair like pine shavings.

But, for all of his love of life, he was nobody's fool in the business world. He had definite ideas, and his only handicap was his inability to speak English when he landed.

However, he soon found that nine out of ten New Yorkers couldn't speak it either, so he went right ahead with his plans. The first thing he did was to open a delicatessen.

The shop was small. And it was buried on a side street in Yorkville. He knew how to attract customers. His food was of the best. The customer was always right.

He knew how to listen to lady customers when they felt in the mood for gossip. Half the time he didn't understand what they were saying, but that made no difference. Half the time, they didn't either.

It's easy to understand why the place prospered. Within three years, Henry Jensen had an offer to sell. A juicy offer. And he took it.

On the day that he turned the delicatessen over to the new owner, a customer chided him for selling.

"You're a fool, Jensen. You worked hard to build up a good business. Now you sell out. You'll be sorry."

Henry Jensen shrugged, and used the only American expression he knew.

"That's life," he said. "Easy come, easy go." . . .

But Henry Jensen wasn't a fool, and he was never sorry. With the money he got for the shop, he opened a beer garden in the heart of the Yorkville section, which is predominantly Teutonic.

Again, success. Again, the young man's policy of serving the best, and doing his best for customers, won out. The place was always crowded. The old wooden till was weighted down every night in the week with coins and bills. Again, he sold out.

He had had that place five years, I believe. And this time, when he sold out, the price was so high that he was moderately wealthy.

He didn't go into business after that. He went to Wall street. Not knowing anything about the market, he took a flier on the first stock that took his eye. For a week it remained fairly steady. Then, overnight, it dropped 12 points. Henry Jensen lost a nice pile of change that time.

The broker said he couldn't understand it. He said he was sorry that a new customer had to lose so much—at the start. Henry Jensen grinned and waved the man's regrets aside.

"That's life," he said. "Easy come, easy go." . . .

Funny, but that one lesson didn't cure him. As events later turned out, it was good that it hadn't. He hit a streak of luck. By the simple process of selecting a stock by the sound of its name, he did a lot better than the men who select them by the sound of the "inside dope."

Everything he touched seemed to turn to gold. Day after day his profits mounted higher and higher. Once in a while he'd drop a few thousand. But in the main, those times were few and far between.

At the age of 30 he was on top of the world. A millionaire. He had a big home on the Drive. He was courting several beautiful ladies at once. He was known in every gay spot along the Gay White Way. He owned the most beautiful pair of matched roans in New York. He spent money like a reporter with an unlimited expense account. And when anyone chided him for slipping a hundred dollar bill to a pretty waitress, the answer was always the same:

"That's life," he'd say. "Easy come, easy go!" . . .

So far as I knew, he lived that way until 1929. And when I say lived, you can take my word.

But 1929 was a year that most of us would have done better by skipping. And Henry Jensen was no exception. He chose that, of all years, to go back into the stock market. He tried several plunges, and made money every time. On a Thursday afternoon in October, he placed all of his money on three separate stocks. You remember what happened on Friday.

Henry Jensen was wiped out. Thinking the market was bound to rise after such a crash, he sold his belongings and plunged again. That time he lost everything he had in the world, including his shirt.

A few friends were kind enough to go through the motions of sympathizing. This time he didn't smile. He merely shrugged his shoulders.

"That's life," he murmured. "Easy come, easy go." . . .

I saw him the other night. It was a fashionable late spot, and celebrities dotted the tables. He moved among them slowly, taking orders on a little pad. He seemed different now as a waiter.

He pretended not to notice me in spite of the fact that we had met a number of times in the good old days. I took the cue, and pretended not to notice him. But out of the corner of the one eye that can see at least half way across the room, I watched his movements.

"Waiter," yelled the most boisterous one, "gimme my check."

Henry Jensen slipped the band from the wad of checks he carried, and slipped one to the boy. The younster smiled, took a roll of bills from his pocket and gave a greenback to Jensen.

"Here," he said shortly.

The waiter took the money and looked at the check. The youth peeled a one dollar bill from his roll and tossed it at the waiter who once was somebody.

"And that's for you," he added. "Buy yourself a house."

Jensen took the dollar, nodded abruptly and moved away. The boy's girl friend shook her head disapprovingly.

"That's too much dough for a cheap waiter," he said. "You're liable to give him wrong ideas. Why throw good money away like that?"

The college boy grinned. He slapped the girl on the back.

"That's life," he said. "Easy come, easy go." . . .

Mail Man Accused Of Letter Theft

Eugene F. Fox, 25, of Fremont street, a letter carrier attached to the Mt. Oliver sub-staion, was arrested yesterday on a charge of theft of a letter, addressed to Alderman J. G. Michaels, 2509 Transport street.

Fox was released under $1,000 bond pending a hearing tomorrow before the United States Commissioner. He has been in the postal service seven years.

THREE INDICTED FOR FAKE CASH

Albert F. Lani, 27, of New York, and Edward J. Spielberger, 26, alias Eddie Steele, of East Ohio street, were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on charges of possessing counterfeit $1 bills and passing them on merchants.

Robert Preston Kerrick, alias Hobart W. Henderson, was charged in an indictment with having possession of 48 counterfeit $5 bills. Another indictment charged Clarence M. Blair of stealing a parcel post package from a rural delivery mail box, near Franklin.

MADMAN SLAIN AFTER SIEGE

ALBANY, Ore, July 12.—(AP.)—A night-long battle between a madman and police ended early today with the death of the man who barricaded himself in the Sheriff's apartment—a veritable arsenal.

Police identified him as Frank Stankiewicz, 22, who escaped from the Oregon State Hospital for the Insane at Salem Monday.

The only other casualty was Harry Anderson, one of the many Albany residents who turned out to watch the siege. He was wounded in the knee by a stray bullet.

Tear gas and smoke bombs, hurled into the barricaded apartment by officers, were sent sailing back wrapped in bed clothing, but their fumes finally overcame the gunman and he was shot down as he pointed a pistol at an officer who had broken into the apartment.

Culbertson Quits As U. S. Ambassador

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 12.—(AP.)—William S. Culbertson had resigned today as United States Ambassador after a decade in the diplomatic service.

While he had not been reappointed, he had been requested to remain here indefinitely but preferred to announce his retirement to private life at this time because of the strenuous five years he spent here during a critical period in Chilean history.

TUBE PROPOSED IN CRAFTON

The National Highway Traffic Study Association west of Pittsburgh is studying a plan for a new route by a vehicular tunnel through Crafton. The tunnel would reach from Obey street to East Steuben street, near the intersection of the latter with Grace street, Crafton.

Henry Tranter, W. D. Wiggins and M. D. Galbreath have been appointed as a committee to collect further data and present a map of the route to E. L. Smith, chief county engineer.

Suspect Faces Court In Gilchrist Robbery

William Bennett, 40, of 355 South Negley avenue, was held for court by Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in East Liberty Police Court, charged with robbing the home of Miss Mary Gilchrist, at 5753 Baum boulevard.

Officers said they found rugs which had been taken from the home in Bennett's room. Miss Gilchrist, now living in Florida, is a member of a prominent Pittsburgh family.

POLITICS

Woodside Latest Name In Mayoralty Confusion

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Confusion over the Republican mayoralty primary has created a situation in which varied suggestions for compromise change daily, and numberless names are mentioned as a means of clarification.

Mr. Shields

The latest to be advanced is that of County Controller Robert G. Woodside. It does not come from Col. Woodside himself, and seems to be afloat without his christening, but the matter is being discussed by some men active and proficient in politics who are opposed to the Herron administration.

Among those giving the Woodside rumor a whirl is at least one man who has been interested in a harmony campaign in opposition to Mayor Herron, and who has been friendly to the endeavor to put either Judge Frank P. Patterson or Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell in the field.

* * *

Woodside Candidacy Would Be Compromise

It is doubtful, however, if anything tangible will come of the agitation. For one thing, Col. Woodside has played the political game under the rules laid down by W. L. Mellon and Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, the same group in organized politics with which Mayor Herron is affiliated through his own inclination and the connection with Senator James J. Coyne.

Despite the genesis of the Woodside talk, the only way in which it is conceivable that he would enter the lists would be a realization by Mr. Mellon and Senator Coyne that Mayor Herron could not make the grade, and there is apparently no thought of that nature within the camp of the Mayor's friends.

A Woodside candidacy would be a compromise within organized politics rather than an agreement embracing independents who have been opposed to the W. L. Mellon influence in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County politics. It would be advantageous to the county office group which is not in harmony with Senator Coyne, but which has never been far out of line with organized politics as such.

* * *

Plan Might Curtail Coyne Influence

The thought behind the Woodside talk is that his candidacy would be as satisfactory to Mr. Mellon as would be that of Herron. But Senator Coyne, though he might be recognized by the state organization as a big factor in Allegheny County, would not loom as large with Woodside as he would with Herron. In other words, Mr. Mellon would do his contacting direct with the Mayor rather than through Senator Coyne, a plan which might shear the latter of some of his influence.

It will be recalled that in the last state-wide campaign primary petitions were circulated to put the name of Col. Woodside on the ballot as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Auditor General. This was before the Allegheny County organization as represented by Senator Coyne had determined that it would back Frank J. Baldwin, then a Senator from Potter County.

Back of the Woodside petitions were seen the hands of Allegheny County leaders and State Chairman Martin, who feared Senator Baldwin might be too close to the Vare organization in the East.

Eventually the decision was unanimous in organized politics to back Baldwin against Ralph Flinn, of Allegheny County, running on a Pinchot ticket with Gen. Smedley D. Butler, candidate for the Senate, and the Woodside petitions never were pushed.

* * *

Anti-Herron Factions Left Where They Were

The consensus is that the Woodside talk in connection with the mayoralty will similarly evaporate, but it is entertaining as exhibiting a trend of thought, not based on an aspiration for independent achievement, but a desire to trade one wing of the organization for another, both attached to the same body.

Readers of this newspaper will not be surprised that Judge Patterson told Register of Wills Mackrell in Atlantic City that he would under no conditions become a candidate for Mayor. They knew that Monday when Judge Patterson wired the Sun-Telegraph that he would not reconsider his decision not to run, the judge having been appraised of the new movement to entice him, as well as its genesis.

The various anti-Herron factions now are left just where they were.

James F. Malone is a candidate.

Councilman P. J. McArdle says he will announce shortly.

William R. Witherow says he also plans a similar announcement.

And Mackrell, upon his return from Atlantic City the end of the week, must make up his mind whether he will dare the charges filed in a suit by Joseph Engelsberg, and get into the fight.

FATHER WINS, TO SEE GIRL

Judge Ralph H. Smith today ordered that Alfred D. Miller be permitted to see his daughter, Jacqueline, 2½, at her grandparents' home at any time and that the daughter be allowed to visit him at his home one Sunday a month.

The order came after Miller, represented by Attorney Edward E. Pearlman filed habeas corpus proceedings, alleging that his estranged wife, Emma E. Miller, of 1807 Power street, McKeesport, refused to let him visit the girl. Judge Smith confirmed the wife's custody of Jacqueline.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVELY HILLS, Cal., July 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Frank Phillips, of oil fame, was out the other day. Said he was going to Washington. The oil men were going to draw up a code of ethics. Everybody present had to laugh. If he had said the gangsters of America were drawing up a code of ethics, it wouldn't have sounded near as impossible.

Will Rogers

Mary McCormic, the opera singer, was at the studio yesterday. She was just "washing up" one of those gold rush Mdivani brothers. He had asked her if she couldn't use him any longer, could she kindly recommend him to some wealthy American girl. So Mary and I are going to dig him up one, and we will work on a commission basis. Yours,

WILL.

Alderman Refuses Man's Plea to 'Take All Blame'

A young mother must answer to the court on charges af abandoning her 8-months-old baby known as Christine Bloom.

She is Mrs. Catherine Schriver, 27, arrested Monday with Edward Grief, 36, at 11 Freeport street, Etna. The pair was said to have lived under the alias of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller.

At a hearing before Alderman F. T. Holloran, of 4205 Penn avenue, Mrs. Schriver said calmly:

"I never thought about abandoning my baby until somebody told me to do it. My sister-in-law, Anna Artist, went with me to leave her."

The child, healthy and brown-eyed, was found by Mrs. John Vandermiller, of 4566 Friendship avenue, January 3 on her porch. The baby was taken to Roselia Maternity Hospital and Foundling Asylum.

Grief, said to be the child's father, exclaimed:

"I'll take all that's coming! Can't I plead guilty? Can't I face the whole term and let her go free?"

Alderman Halloran answered:

"No, this has got to go to court."

Ethel Peterson, Humane Society agent, said she discovered the child's alleged parentage while investigating a charge that Paul Miller, 1½, reported as another of the arrested pair's children, was being abused. She added:

"Christine's real name is Dolores Jean. She was born November 22, 1932, and was baptized at St. Kieran's Church. Mrs. Schriver admits that she is the mother of the baby."

Near the close of the hearing Halloran asked Mrs. Schriver what she had done with her other four children. She replied:

"They're in St. Paul's Orphanage."

DOUGLAS BEER GROUP FOUGHT

The beer troubles of John Douglas, Jr., pursued him into the courts today where he had applied for a charter for his Pennsylvania Beer and Wine Dealers' Association.

The application was opposed by a group headed by Harry I. Neaman, Charles A. Luebbe, James P. Martorella and James H. Wall, calling themselves the Allegheny County Wholesale Beer Distributors' Association (unincorporated).

Hearing on Douglas' application was scheduled for today, but in the face of a bill of exceptions filed by Neaman and his associates, Judge William H. McNaugher postponed it and announced he would appoint a commissioner to take testimony on the exceptions. Seven reasons are advanced in the exceptions, among which it is contended that the name Pennsylvania Beer and Wine Dealers' Association is misleading and confusing and tends to give the impression that all of its members are licensed wholesalers, which, according to the bill, they are not.

Associated with Douglas in the formation of the corporation are Robert J. Miller, Charles Douglas, John H. Coffey and John I. Bohn.

Officials to Speak At Baldwin Carnival

Officials' night will be held this evening as part of the Baldwin Township Independent Fire Company's carnival in Churchview avenue, William E. Armstrong, president of the Allegheny County Association of Township Commissioners and the Baldwin Township Commissioners and W. P. Lynn Noah are scheduled to speak.

The Baldwin Fire Company will act as host to more than 35 fire companies throughout the county tomorrow night while a water battle between the Baldwin outfit and the Brentwood firemen is set for Friday night.

BENNER BACKS CITY'S USE OF WHARVES

Parking Legal, Lawyer Asserts; Fight May Go to High Court

The city still controls the use of the wharves, in the opinion of Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner.

Although the decision of Judge Thomas Marshall, of Common Pleas Court, has thrown doubt on the right of the city to sell wharf parking space, an act of 1927 allows the municipality to take over unused portions of the landing for public purposes, Benner declares.

City Council by ordinance may take over parts of the landing for parks, boulevards or any other public use, he states.

BOATS PROVIDED FOR

The city's plans for a $4,500,000 wharf improvement are not imperiled in any event, Benner believes, since they provide space for boat landings and boulevards. The wharf plan includes two decks, the lower one for navigation interests.

Benner in the meantime is considering an appeal to Supreme Court on Judge Marshall's parking ban. The city receives more than $50,000 a year in 10-cent parking fees.

Parking continues at the stations, and, according to Benner, if an injunction is issued an appeal to the higher court would hold it up.

COMPANY UPHELD

Judge Marshall in his opinion upheld the contention of James Rees & Sons Co., boat builders, that the Allegheny River wharf had been appropriated for public use to be "forever" occupied as a public landing.

He mentioned a State Supreme Court decision on the Philadelphia Town Hall in which Justice Drew ruled that there was no objection to the city receiving revenue from the hall when it was otherwise idle, and said it was not a comparable case.

Judge Marshall suggested that while some parking on the Allegheny wharf might be allowed, he got the impression when he visited the wharf it was being used entirely for parking purposes.

HEARING ON PLAN

The state's Water and Power Resource Board today was to hear Pittsburgh's request for a permit to make the proposed wharf improvements.

Representing the city at the board's meeting will be Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, Chief City Engineer Charles M. Reppert, Engineer Ross M. Riegel, Fred Bigger, of the city's Planning Commission; Charles Robinson, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce; F. J. Tilley, of the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange, and Fred C. Schatz, of the Joseph Horne Company.

Recruits Laying Pipe Line for Water Supply

Actual reforestation work has been started by members of the forest camp at North Park. Besides cleaning the forest of underbrush, the recruits are clearing 14 acres of ground along Pine Creek, where the county will build a dam, one of two authorized by the United States government.

The recruits are also laying a pipe line for their new water supply. Water now available will not supply the needs of the camp, so a supply will be piped from a nearby spring.

Twenty-two additional members for the camp arrived yesterday, bringing the total to nearly 200.

WAR ON REPEAL LAUNCHED AT MEETING

Anti-Saloon League's New Leader Attacks Roosevelt, Farley

The drive to prevent repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in Western Pennsylvania opened last night, with Dr. C. W. Crooke, new Anti-Saloon League superintendent, demanding a "square deal in the new deal."

Speaking in McCann's before almost 100 representatives of as many communities in Pennsylvania, Dr. Crooke attacked President Roosevelt and Postmaster General James A. Farley for their efforts towards repeal.

OUTLINES OBJECTIVES

He called upon the Anti-Saloon League in Pennsylvania to launch a no-repeal program, working towards these objectives:

To co-operate with other temperance organizations and organize a law enforcement movement against illegal sales of beer on Sunday.

To launch a local option campaign according to methods and regulations set up by the last legislature.

To carry on, "since prohibition is doomed in the next generation without the assistance of the new voters," an extensive campaign for the education of youth against the use of alcohol.

OPPOSES ROOSEVELT

Dr. Crooke, in outlining the program, said:

"This program opposes everything that the President and his prize-fighting manager, Mr. Farley, are doing to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

"There is a clear and definite alignment. On the one side stands the church, like the Rock of Gibraltar, and the school and the home and every other related interest. On the other stands the brewer, the wet billionaire, the wet press of the nation, the saloonkeepers, gambling halls and those who drink intoxicating liquor."

CITES 'SQUARE DEAL'

Asserting that the league stands with President Roosevelt in his ambitious industrial program, he continued:

"While we, as Christian, patriotic citizens, feel strongly the desire to assist him in putting across the 'new deal,' yet we ask, is it fair for the President of this Christian nation to use his personal and political influence by writing to the political leaders, such as Judge McCord, of Alabama, and the dry Governors of Oklahoma and Virginia, urging repeal as a matter of loyalty to the party platform? My friends, there was another Roosevelt, Theodore, who had something to say about a square deal."

Dr. J. M. McQuilkin, of Carnegie, chairman of the prohibition emergency committee of Allegheny County, described the setup of the organization for the campaign against repeal.

BREWERY WAGE PACT SIGNED

Wages and working conditions for brewery workers in Western Pennsylvania have been decided following a recent conference and contracts signed with the union by 11 breweries.

The representatives of the United Brewery Workers here are John Hoehn, Peter Bollenbacher and John Weitzel. Regarding the new agreements, Hoehn said:

"The establishing of a code for the brewery industry when called upon under the Recovery Act will be easy on account of the friendly co-operative relations between employer and employe."

Companies which have signed the agreements, it is announced are: Brackenridge Brewing Company, DuBois Brewing Company, Duquesne Brewing Company, Elk Brewing Company, Kittanning; Fort Pitt Brewing Company, Greensburg Brewing Company, Hazelwood Brewing Company, Pittsburgh Brewing Company, Tube City Brewing Company, McKeesport; Union Brewing Company, New Castle, and Victor Brewing Company, Jeannette.

Missouri to Vote On Repeal in August

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Gov. Guy B. Park announced late yesterday Missouri's election of delegates to a constitutional convention to act on ratification of the proposed Twenty-first Amendment will be held August 19. The convention will be held August 29 in Jefferson City.

GUILD MEMBERS IN CLOSE RACE FOR PRIZES

The craftsmanship displayed by members of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, in the third annual competition, whose entries are now being secured, is far higher than in either of the two preceding years, say the men in charge of the judging, in progress in New York.

Boys are apparently profiting by the experience already obtained, and eliminating the errors which held their scores down heretofore. The result will be a close race not only for the scholarships, but also for the numerous state and district awards.

A last-minute flurry of entries marked the closing of the competition. Extension of the deadline to permit the acceptance of models which were in the hands of the express company by midnight July 1 relieved the strain on some who needed every minute to put on the finishing touches. Many were delivered in person, the boys driving with the parents to New York to make sure that their handiwork reached the proper authorities.

The Sun-Telegraph is supplementing the Guild's list of awards by offering two handsome silver cups as special chapter trophies. One is intended for the champion senior member of this chapter and the other for the champion junior. Since special records must be kept for the cup competition, boys desiring to enter it are asked to enroll by filling out the coupon which appears in this issue of the Sun-Telegraph, and sending the coupon to the Guild Editor, in care of this newspaper, at once.

The cups will be well worth owning as a reminder of the winner's prowess. The name of the winner will be engraved on each, together with the proper inscription proclaiming the owner the champion of his chapter in his age division of the Guild.

TWO JOIN RACE FOR SHERIFF

Headquarters for Charles C. Campbell, Republican candidate for Sheriff, will be opened tomorrow in room 104 Magee Building, Fourth avenue. The headquarters are being contributed by the United Spanish War Veterans. A campaign for Campbell is to begin immediately.

John W. Collins, a Spanish War Veteran, without saying whether he is seeking a Republican or Democratic nomination, has announced as a candidate for sheriff. Collins declares as an Independent, explaining that he is affiliated with no clique or faction, and has only the interest of the public to serve.

Reward Offered

GEORGE DAVIS, 10

OFFERS REWARD FOR LOST SON

Patrick W. Davis, of 333 West Fifteenth street, Homestead, renewed his offer of $100 for information leading to the return of his missing son, George, today.

The boy, according to the Missing Persons Bureau, disappeared from his home July 17, a year ago Sunday.

He is described as 10 years of age, 4 feet 2 inches in height, weighing about 75 pounds, with blue eyes, brown hair and light complexion.

In his letter to the Sun-Telegraph, Davis writes:

"My appeal comes from the heart. If words can find my son, try and make them do so."

M'T. LEBANON MAN CANDIDATE

After receiving petitions bearing the names of several hundred voters in the Fourth Ward, Mt. Lebanon, Robert K. Boyer, 31 Hazel drive, announced he would accept their invitation to be a candidate for township commissioner. He said:

"Although I had not considered becoming a candidate for public office I will accept if the voters want me."

LOEW'S WIDOW TO MARRY

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Caroline R. Loew, 60-year-old widow of Marcus Loew, the theatrical magnate who died in 1927, and Max Minzesheimer, 61, a retired business man, obtained a marriage license yesterday. They did not indicate when or where the ceremony would be performed.

Mrs. Loew and two sons shared 95 per cent of Loew's estate. Various estimates after his death placed it at $25,000,000 or more, but a transfer tax appraisal filed two years later showed it amounted to only $1,673,293 gross and $826,647 net. At the time of his death from a heart attack at the age of 57, Loew was president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation and of the theater chain bearing his name.

GEOLOGISTS END TOUR HERE

Thirty-three geologists from a score of foreign lands, en route to the International Geological Congress in Washington, July 22 to 29, were completing an inspection of the Pittsburgh district today as a prelude to the sixteenth annual meeting.

The delegates arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday and after a visit to the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Aliquippa plant of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation discussed their findings at a dinner last night in the Hotel William Penn. Prof. Elwood S. Moore, of the University of Toronto, declared the increase in coal and steel production in Pittsburgh augurs well for general business recovery.

Chrysler Awarded First Degree by Own School

DETROIT, July 12.—(AP.)—Walter P. Chrysler, motor magnate, today was a doctor of engineering, recipient of the first honorary degree awarded by the Chrysler Institute of Engineering, which he founded.

He received the degree last night at the first commencement of the institute, at which undergraduate diplomas were presented to 21 students and the degree of master of engineering was conferred upon 14 graduates of other universities.

It was revealed that the institute is the first chartered industrial university in the country, and Chrysler said he was "as proud of it as anything I have ever helped establish." It was organized two years ago.

LIONS TO SPEED RECOVERY

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—(AP.)—The International Association of Lions Clubs, with a membership of 75,000, is to become a unit in speeding the return of prosperity and attempting to prevent economic reverses.

Charles H. Hatton, Wichita, Kan., president of the organization, announced here in connection with the current annual convention of the group, that 50 national and international financial experts have been engaged to prepare a study on causes of depressions and methods of control.

Edward R. Kingsley, of Parkersburg, W. Va., is a candidate for vice president of the Lions Association.

Wed On Deathbed Man Lives Only Few Hours

TITUSVILLE, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—Told by physicians there was little hope for his recovery, Harold C. Kerr, 38, was married to Mrs. Wilda Moriarty in a death-bed ceremony.

They had been engaged. Kerr, a restaurant man, suffered blood poisoning from a blister on his foot.

A few hours after the service he died.

Fall Down Steps Causes Man's Death

Andrew Minnick, 64, of 601 Duquesne boulevard, Duquesne, died late yesterday in McKeesport Hospital of injuries suffered in a fall down steps July 3, according to a Coroner's report.

HOMES REGAIN LOST WATER

Six families living in an apartment house owned by Nathan Levy at 301 Market street, McKeesport, found water would come out of the spigots today, as a result of a mandamus suit Levy brought against A. J. Richards, superintendent of the McKeesport Water Bureau, yesterday.

The city had cut off the water to the apartment, claiming Levy owed $180 on back bills. Levy maintained he paid his last current bill June 26 and owes no back bills.

Judge William H. McNaugher granted a peremptory mandamus when told that the six families, including small children, were deprived of water. A hearing on the debt question was to be held today.

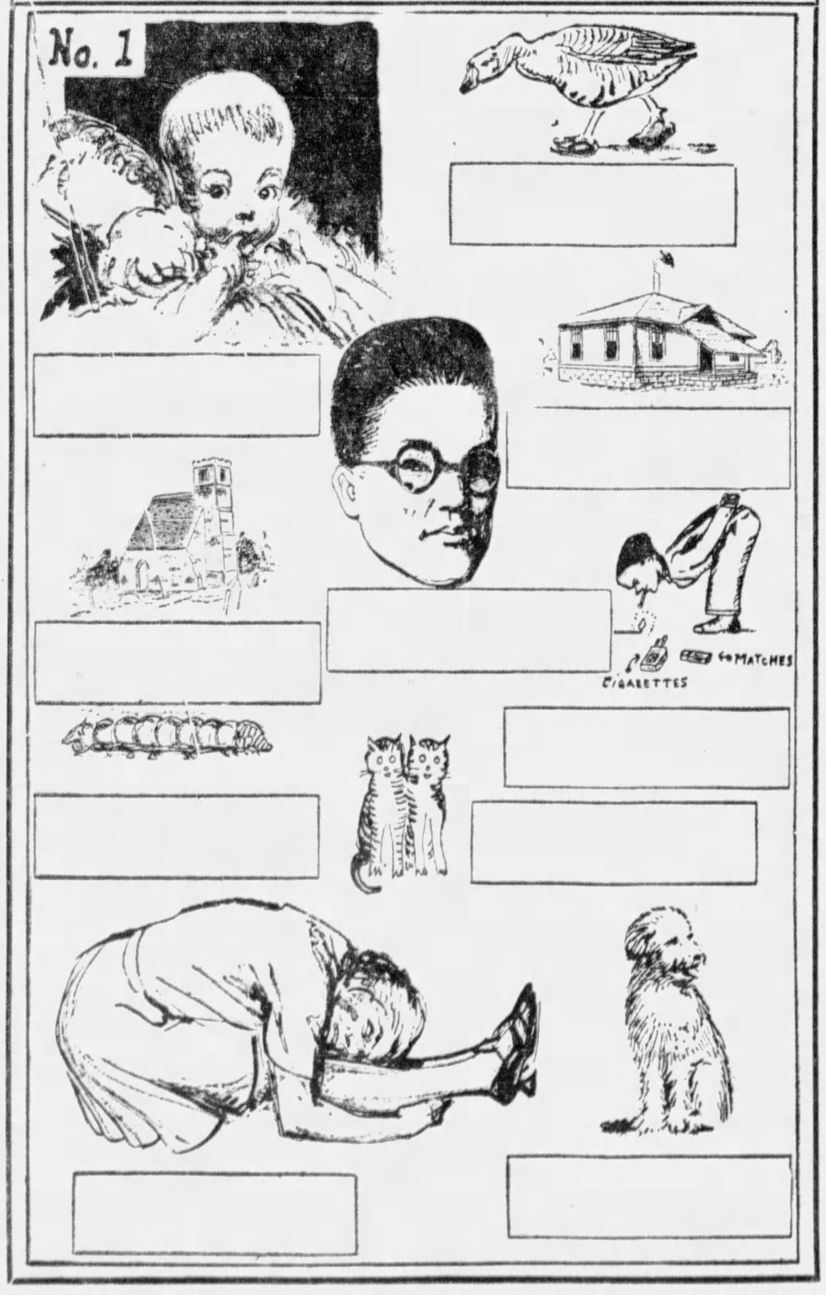
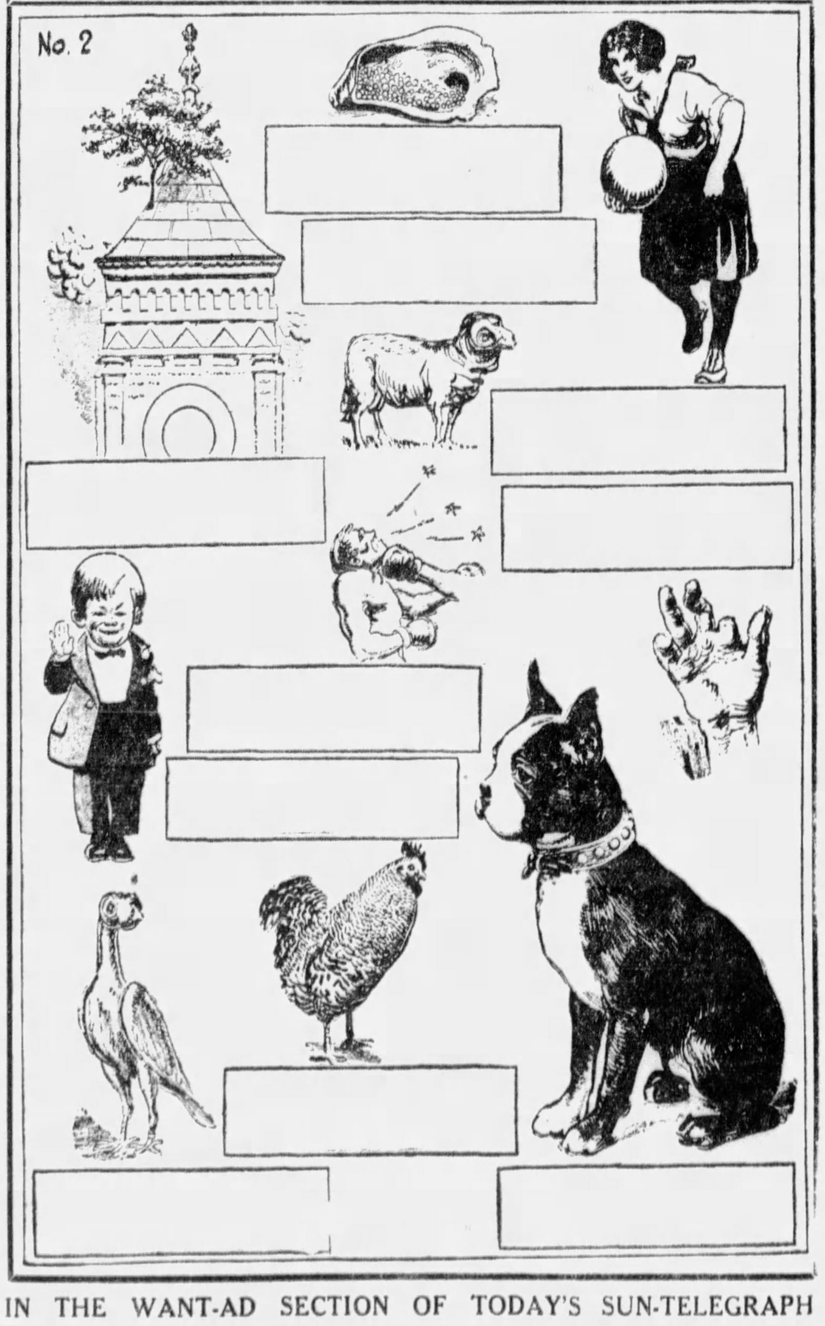
Ripley's Puzzlers

START TODAY WITH THESE TWO FIRST CONTEST PICTURES

RIPLEY'S PUZZLERS



RIPLEY'S PUZZLERS



FIND THE CORRECT TITLES OR ANSWERS TO THESE PICTURES IN THE WANT-AD SECTION OF TODAY'S SUN-TELEGRAPH

HERE ARE THE RULES—CAREFULLY READ THEM!

1—Everyone is eligible to participate in the "Ripley Puzzlers," except employees of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—Every day from July 11th to August 9th, inclusive, 10 Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley Sport page feature. The description to each picture will be published in the Classified Ad columns.

3—The new "Ripley's Puzzlers" contest consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have 30 complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them to the "Ripley's Puzzlers" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than Tuesday, August 15th, at midnight. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—Twenty all expenses paid 5-day trips to the Chicago World's Fair will be awarded as the prizes. The 20 entrants sending in the most nearly correct and the most neatly prepared complete set of pictures at the close of the contest will be awarded these trips.

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decision of these judges as final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be given to each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at the office or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

Remember! The Sun-Telegraph Pays All the Bills!

Don't overlook the opportunity presented to you today by the reprinting of Contest Picture No. 1. If you do not start today you may not get another chance and when you find how easy it will be to win you will regret you did not start.

CANAL PROJECT HAILED AS AID TO RECOVERY

Economic rebirth of Northwestern Pennsylvania was seen today in a report on a Pittsburgh-Lake Erie canalization proposal made public by C. Edward Long, engineer for the Upper Allegheny Improvement Association.

Detailed evidence of the vast natural resources and untapped wealth of the Upper Allegheny Valley and French Creek districts is offered in the report to show the "economic justification" for the all-water link between the Great Lakes and Ohio River.

Although the report prepared by Long has already been submitted to United States Army Engineers in Pittsburgh and forwarded to Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, in Washington, details of the survey were not made public until today.

WEALTH CITED

Seen through the eyes of Engineer Long, Northwestern Pennsylvania is an area fabulously wealthy in natural resources and industrial and farm products.

In 1929 alone, the report says, counties either wholly or partly within the area yielded industrial and farm products valued at $1,343,087,144. These counties are Armstrong, Butler, Clarion, Venango, Erie, Crawford, Forest, Mercer, McKean and Warren.

The route recommended by Long and approved by the Upper Allegheny Improvement Association, is stressed in the report as one "wholly in Pennsylavnia."

PROPOSED ROUTE

Leaving the Allegheny River at Franklin, the canal would follow French Creek to Conneaut Lake, thence overland through Harmonsburg to Little Elk Creek Valley, in the vicinity of Girard, from which point it would follow the route of the old Erie Canal to emerge in Erie Harbor.

Chief among the advantages cited in favor of the route was that offered by the use of Erie Harbor as a port of entry and departure. The total distance of the route from Pittsburgh to Erie by water is 200 miles.

Canalization of the Allegheny from East Brady to Oil City, a distance of 63 miles, and from Oil City to Warren, a distance of 58 miles, also was urged in the report. Improvement of the Allegheny as far north as East Brady, Long said, already has been authorized.

NECESSITY CITED

Tonnage produced in the Pittsburgh district, the report continued, requires the opening up of the enormous deposits of natural resources on the banks of the Allegheny River in conjunction with an increase in the iron ore supply transported across Lake Erie. The report says:

"With the advent of cheap transportation by water, the Allegheny Valley producers are confident of their ability to extend the existing markets and rapidly increase the volume of their shipments."

An estimated recoverable reserve of 26,927,180,000 tons in valuable natural resources within the 20-mile limit of the proposed route is claimed in the survey.

AID TO INDUSTRIES

Pittsburgh industries would benefit both as manufacturers and consumers, the report pointed out, saying:

"The Allegheny River offers Pittsburgh industries the opportunity to receive by water haul limestone, fuel oil, silica sand, refractory products and the other products of the Allegheny Valley.

"The Allegheny River-French Creek route offers the opportunity of marketing Allegheny Valley products in the Great Lakes region, of the Pennsylvania bituminous coal industry regaining its former position in the lake cargo trade, and of the Pittsburgh steel industry receiving iron ore by water haul."

Coroner Subpena Fees Under Fire by County

Right to Charge $1 For Absent Witnesses Questioned

County solicitors have been asked to render an opinion on whether Coroner W. J. McGregor is within his legal right in charging the county the subpena fee of $1 for witnesses who have testified solely through affidavits, as has been the practice for many years.

This question was raised yesterday when M. C. Conick, auditor for the County Commissioners, reported that McGregor had collected more than $46,000 in this manner during the four-year period from 1928 to 1932, inclusive.

Conick reported:

"It has been the practice of the Coroner to charge the county the subpena fee of $1 for witnesses who have not been formally subpenaed or summoned before the coroner's jury, but who have testified solely through affidavits or statements procured by deputies. We raise the question as to whether the Coroner can legally charge the fee in the absence of a formal summons or subpena."

Conick also stated:

"Certain deputies assigned to duty in the morgue are classified as 'morgue employes,' and their compensation is excluded from salaries charged against fees of office. Inasmuch as these employes perform some of the duties of deputies and at certain times of the day constitute the only deputies on duty, we question whether such exclusion is proper."

Conick pointed out that, if the county has been improperly charged for fees and if the salaries of the morgue employes should be chargeable against the fees, then the total salaries paid will have exceeded the net fees earned by the Coroner.

The auditor also stated that while the law places the salary of coroner's juries at $1.50, many jurors have often received $2 a day and sometimes $3 daily. He suggests a legal opinion on this question also.

'MISSING LINKS' SOUGHT BY VOTE QUIZ

More than 150 men and women from the Second, Third and Fourth wards and other parts of the Thirty-second Congressional District, are being examined today by the Federal Grand Jury conducting the probe of alleged vote cheating at the November election.

It will be the last large group of witnesses as the probe is expected to end, at least temporarily, tomorrow, according to Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed. Whether the jury will be recalled for further deliberation was not announced by government prosecutors.

'MISSING LINKS' SOUGHT

Many of the witnesses appearing today received summons within the last 24 hours and some of them are expected to supply missings links in chains of purported evidence. Further returns by the grand jury are anticipated tomorrow.

Besides hearing 125 witnesses yesterday from the Thirtieth and Thirty-second Congressional districts, the jury examined the contents of ballot boxes from the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth districts of the Twenty-third Ward; First and Second districts of Scott Township; Third and Fourth districts of Stowe Township; First District of the First Ward in Carnegie, and the Second District of Sharpsburg. The jury remained in session until 5:30 p. m.

'PHANTOM MARKINGS'

When some of these boxes were examined last November the County Return Board reported finding phantom markings on ballots and the presiding judges directed they be placed at the disposal of District Attorney Andrew T. Park for investigation.

E. J. Connolly, special agent for the United States Bureau of Investigation, who had charge of the preliminary investigation into the alleged vote frauds, was a witness before the jury late yesterday afternoon. Another witness was Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township.

Auto Reported Stolen Later Found Ablaze

Police today were investigating the theft of an automobile reported to Mt. Washington and South Side police.

A short time after Charles Hauselman, Jr., of Friday avenue, Millvale, reported the theft of his automobile from Spokane avenue and Brownsville road, the machine was discovered a few blocks away, ablaze. The damage was estimated by firemen at $100.

After the fire had been extinguished another report had the same automobile stolen from 37 Cushman street.

Mother Bear Trees Fisherman Who Pets Cub

BUTTE, Mont., July 12.—(AP.)—Hereafter James V. Dwyer may think twice before he bestows caresses on a cub bear.

When he started to pet the little fellow he found while fishing, the mother bear rushed him suddenly from a clump of willows.

Dwyer took to a tree with the bear clawing at his trousers. Several hours later other members of the party located him and routed the animal.

COUNTY STILL ASKS BUS RIGHT

The County Commissioners will continue to press their petition to the Public Service Commission for their right to operate their own buses to the county parks, although the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Brentwood Motor Coach Company have proposed a new combined service at a reduced rate.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern objected to the county sponsoring the service offered by the three utility companies, saying:

"I don't like this idea of the county sponsoring this service they now offer for 30 cents a round trip. It's the bus company's business to haul the people to the parks and we should not have anything to do with it.

"Because they make us an offer that looks pretty good is no reason for us to withdraw our petition from the commission. It would be a good thing for the county to have a franchise, and if the occasion arose it always could be exercised.

Captain, Mate Save Tug Crew From Fire

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(INS.)—While the decks blazed under their feet, the master of the tug, Active, and his mate, early today rescued four unconscious members of the crew when the boat burned to the water's edge.

Capt. Russell W. Richards and Mate Frank Bennett and the four members of the crew were asleep when the blaze broke out in the hold and ignited 12 tons of coal.

52-Story Building Sold Under Hammer

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—The 52-story Lincoln Building on Forty-second street across from Grand Central Terminal was sold at foreclosure yesterday for $4,750,000.

Charles F. Batchelder, chairman of the first mortgage bondholders' committee, was the high bidder on the building, said to have cost $30,000,000 to erect.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot's visit to Pittsburgh is all business. The wife of the Governor is here with the State Legislature's Gallagher commission studying sweatshop conditions.

She and her son, Gifford Pinchot, Jr., while here as the house guests of the John W. Lawrences at their estate, "Hartwood," will not be entertained at many large affairs. Mr. Lawrence told me. Not even they will give a dinner for their distinguished guests.

* * *

Visiting Seashore

Mrs. Herbert A. May has deserted Pittsburgh for the summer. She's gone to Atlantic City. Mr. May has been spending several days at Rolling Rock.

* * *

Another social registerite who has deserted Pittsburgh until fall is Mrs. Thomas Raymond Evans. Mrs. Evans with her family including her daughters, Ida Virginia Evans and Elizabeth May Evans, are at Hyannisport, Mass.

* * *

The George S. Olivers and their family including Laura Oliver, winsome young debutante of the past winter are at their Cobourg, Canada, home for the summer. Mr. Oliver will probably return to Pittsburgh this week.

New Cobourg

* * *

Late in July the W. D. Georges, of Sewickley, will be off for Canada, too. They'll open their summer place in Beaumaris. Their daughters, Rebecca and Elizabeth and Eleanor will join them later.

Mrs. George tells me she hasn't decided yet whether her young daughter, Eleanor, will be here this fall to be a debutante or not.

* * *

Another Canadian visitor is Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell, who with her charming little daughters, Peggy and Cherry and son, Richard, is at her Cobourg, Ontario, home.

Canadian Visitors

* * *

The Norman C. McLeods have gone to their summer home in Old Lyne, Conn., and the Nathaniel Holmeses, II, to their summer home in New London, Conn. All stopped at the Drake Hotel, New York, on their way to New England.

The Pittsburgh Country Club is planning a Sunday affair—an invitation two-ball mixed foursome, a buffet supper, and a bit of contract bridge.

Events At Clubs

The Wildwood Country will include a boxing match in its program for Saturday night. There'll be luncheon and bridge and dinner and dancing.

* * *

The Oliver Ledlie Smiths and their four children, James Sterrett, Marion Oliver, Jr., and Patterson and the Philip Sheridan Chesleys and their children, Corporal Philip, Jr., and John Hart will be off Saturday for Lake Wesaukking near Towanda, Pa.

To Leave For Lake

The families have taken cottages there for the summer and September. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Chess are sisters.

Tuesday Musical Club's Lawn Concert Draws Record Attendance

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

Whether it was the sponsorship of the Tuesday Musical Club, the presence of one of its active members, Helen Bell Rush, on the program, or the growing popularity of the concerts, the fact remains that last night's audience at the Little Symphony Orchestra concert on the lawn of Hotel Schenley was quite the largest (as well as the most attentive) of the season. Indeed, it was almost capacity.

The club took the occasion to honor its retiring president, Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus, who is leaving late next month to spend the winter in Arizona, where she will place her three children in school. Club members and their husbands and guests dined at small tables on the terrace, remaining there for the concert.

Even the gowning seemed to take on a more festive atmosphere than usual. Mrs. Flaccus looked lovely in a white cord lace with a small white hat and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. David V. Murdoch, president of the club, wore brown and yellow flowered chiffon with a large Milan garden hat.

The young aides added to the picture, too—Mary Dickinson, a striking figure in a severely simple white crepe; Helen Young in yellow organdie, Gladys Landefeld in embroidered white organdie, Helen Douglas in black and white barred chiffon, Marion Black in chiffon, green flowered on a black background, and Evelyn Chalfant in floral chiffon.

Evelyn's mother, Mrs. Sidney A. Chalfant, wore rose and white crepe with a white cartwheel hat. Mrs. F. F. Rohrer's gown was of dark blue chiffon patterned in a green floral spray.

Others noted were Elsie Breese Mitchell in brown figured chiffon, Mrs. T. C. Donovan in blue crepe, Grace Adele Hall in light blue crepe with blue hat, Mabel King in rose cord lace, Lucille Miller Werner wearing yellow and blue figured chiffon, Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter in figured chiffon, Mrs. Victor Saudek, red and white figured crepe; Mrs. James Craig in striped linen with white coat and Mme. Suzanne Karpova in a white mess jacket over a frock of dotetd brown, the same material banding her white linen hat.

Mrs. William Murdoch wore white organdie with a white linen mess coat. Mrs. E. J. Casselman was in gray crepe. Mrs. James Rickey, wearing red figured crepe had with her her house guest, Miss Lucy Groat, of Brookline, Mass. Miss Rush's gown was yellow chiffon.

The cool evening breeze necessitated wraps and these ran all the way from the smart little mess jackets to figured silks, many types of white coats and beautifully embroidered kimona wraps.

Bridge Benefits Held For Hadassah Chapter

Two bridge parties are being held this afternoon for the benefit of Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah. Mrs. Jessie Seidman and Mrs. Nathan Seidman are hostesses for one of the affairs at their adjoining homes in Morrowfield avenue and Mrs. Samuel Horelick, of Cornell avenue, North Side, is hostess for the second affair.

Pitt Biography Club Meets Tomorrow Night

The Biography Club of the Downtown Division, University of Pittsburgh, will meet tomorrow evening on the Heinz House veranda. Phi Theta Phi sorority is in charge of the program and Miss Alberta Voigt, the sorority's president, will preside.

Sara Jacobson Married to J. A. Rubin

Mrs. R. Jacobson, of Eleventh avenue, Homestead, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Sara Jacobson, to Jerry A. Rubin, of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, son of Mrs. Frank H. Rubin, of Pittsburgh.

The marriage was solemnized in the Jacobson home on Sunday, at 1 o'clock, in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Meyer C. Jacobson, wore a gown of apple green satin with a matchine tulle hat and carried roses and lilies of the valley. Albert Rubin was his brother's best man.

After a New England tour Mr. and Mrs. Rubin will be at home in Atlantic City. The bride attended the University of Pittsburgh.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

During a little speech preceding the Lenore Kight and the Homestead Carnegie Library Club swimming team exhibit at the Little Sewickley Creek Swimming Pool, a rooster wandering by with several hens in the adjoining field, crowed zestfully and the hens clucked applause.

The chicken-wire fencing about the pool is for strictly utilitarian purposes, you see.

* * *

And the birds on the terrace of the Longue Vue Country Club sang excitedly while the orchestra played at the Taylor-Fichtel wedding.

* * *

Summer homes have unusual names—that of the Sewickley W. D. Georges, for example, is "Speseyoudont."

* * *

Tiny little Isabelle Adams, of Sewickley, is a fearless young lady—she dives casually into the deepest water in the Little Sewickley Creek Swimming Pool and swims better than many grown-ups.

* * *

After Lenore Kight's exhibit with her team members, the Olympic champion was surrounded with eager young subdebs, wanting to know of ways to improve their strokes.

* * *

The champion, who is rather shy and modest about her ability, doesn't go in for fancy swimming togs—she wore a plain pale lavender wool suit, boasting no decoration.

Rumbough-Cowles Nuptials Set For Sept. 23

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

NEW YORK, July 10.—(Universal)—The conventional and proper period of "being engaged" having passed, Elizabeth Colgate Rumbough and Francis Russel Cowles, whose betrothal was announced last November, have "set the date" and will have an Indian summer wedding.

It will be a country wedding, to be solemnized at Lloyd's Neck, Huntington, L. I., where "Betty's" parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maddox Rumbough, are "in residence" when they cannot be found at their town apartment on Park avenue.

The all important ceremony will take place on the afternoon of Saturday, September 23, and naturally—the Rumbough social position being what it is—the nuptials will evince much interest along the fashionable North Shore.

Million Girls Take Dips in 'Y.W.' Pools

Some interesting and rather startling figures have been sent out by the Young Women's Christian associations of the country in the national yearly report. One million dips were taken in Y. W. C. A. pools; an equal number of girls are now taking sewing and cooking courses and lessons in bridge and tennis.

More than 100,000 girls spent summer vacations in "Y" camps and even now many more business and professional women and industrial workers are joining organized clubs with definite programs.

The "Ys" of the country were able to find jobs for only 28 per cent of the women and girls who appealed to them in 1932, the National Board figures show. Although of the 242,000 registering for work, approximately 70,000 were placed in either permanent or temporary positions, these figures scarcely show the scope of work since 15 per cent of the associations did not report their employment activities.

Free meals, shelter, small loans and other forms of emergency relief were given to 37,000 girls during the year and of these more than 21,000 were not "Y" members and had not previously taken any part in association activities.

B.P.W. Head Cites Support Women Give to Sex

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Geline N. Bowman, of Richmond, Va., president of the National Federation and head of a large advertising business, yesterday took issue with assertions in some of the 17 round table discussions of the convention of business women that women do not support their sex in business and the professions as they should.

Thrill careers for women are frowned upon by Mrs. Bowman, who said she considered the woman who works for a thrill or excitement or the broadening experience to the neglect of her home, a menace to society.

The whole matter of what a woman does depends upon where her greatest usefulness is. Her home should come above everything else and no woman should consider outside employment if that means neglecting her family in any way, the B. P. W. president stated.

SMARTEST LOUNGING GARMENTS HAVE DIVERSIFIED TREATMENT

THERE ARE both frilly and tailored types of lounging garments this year, but it does seem as if the majority of women are dressing themselves to look extravagantly crisp even for lounging—to look cool in "something cotton" that flows gayly about them. To look as does the mid-Victorian lady to whom the accompanying picture

THIS TYPE of summer negligee is a beautiful development of the season. Many designers did models like it in plaid dotted, plain and striped cotton. But few readers will deny this example is the most feminine, pre-war example of them all. Look at it. Billowy ruffles frame the face and swish dramatically at the feet. Not content with these details, there are also puffed sleeves and a demure row of white pearl buttons marching down the front. The material is a baby-white crinkly organdie dotted in pale blue. No silhouette could do much more than this for the figure, and in turn for one's personality!

THE NICE thing about the other pajama ensemble is that it's a double-duty costume. Swing the long military cape over the shoulders and you are dressed for the beach and all the great out-of-doors. Without it you've a simple tailored pajama for the home—to lounge in, rest in and sleep in! The fabric has a childish quality too. You find the same attractive red and white woven seersucker on tiny tots as well as on grown-ups. Slits hold the capelet on.

BOTH THESE lounging garments have their own special merits. One should have both types to round out a wardrobe.

OTHER MODELS registering at the moment are of cotton fabrics, such as organdy matelasses, pique voiles and printed dimities as well as dotted swisses. There is much interest in silks too. For instance, finely tailored robes of satins and heavy crepes with contrasting pajamas and of the new materials which are between crepes and heavy sheers in weight. As you see, no one fabric is sacred to fashion. "Everything goes!"

'SUICIDE' SQUIRE SAFE AT HOME

LANCASTER, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—After an intensive search had been made for him in the belief he intended suicide, Alderman A. K. Spurrier, 86-year-old Civil War veteran, returned to Lancaster and said he had been "to a picture show" in Philadelphia.

Described as the oldest member of Pennsylvania's minor judiciary, the Alderman disappeared from his office Monday, leaving his glasses and a note indicating he planned to end his life.

His wife said he had been worried over financial matters and a wide search was started. Police recognized him alighting from a bus last night and took him home, where he was placed in the care of two physicians.

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing the Hand

It cannot be too strongly emphasized nor too frequently reiterated that in playing the hand the Declarer should make a plan which gives him the greatest possible freedom of action to cope with unexpected distributions and at the same time the maximum degree of safety.

Recently I watched a rubber game at a popular club in New York, in which the North and South players, who had already won a game, reached a contract of six hearts. Probably one element in the reaching of this contract was the fact that the East player, who had been making a number of ineffectual bluff bids throughout the rubber, had made a bluff Double of the Opening bid.

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 7 ♡ A J 10 7 6 ◇ J 3 ♣ A 10 7 6 5
♠ J 2 ♡ Q 9 8 2 ◇ 10 5 4 2 ♣ J 9 2	North West East South	♠ 9 8 5 4 3 ♡ 3 ◇ K Q 9 7 ♣ K 8 3
	♠ A K Q 10 6 ♡ K 5 4 ◇ A 8 6 ♣ Q 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡ (1)	Double (2)	2 ♠ (3)	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 N T (4)	Pass
5 ♣ (5)	Pass	6 ♡ (6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—A very shaded Opening bid, vulnerable.

2—Of course, a pure bluff.

3—South should redouble here. A Forcing Takeout should not be used after a Takeout Double.

4—While there has been no agreement on the suits, South knows that eventually he intends to support hearts. He correctly places his partner with a minimum of five hearts, in view of the previous bidding, and actually believes that there may be a Slam in the hand if North's response is other than a minimum.

5—Technically, North should respond with five notrump and thus show the two Aces, but he realizes the inherent weakness of his hand and hence attempts to sign off.

6—South refuses to be denied.

East's Opening lead was the diamond King, which was won with the Ace in Dummy, and two rounds of spades were taken. Upon the second the losing diamond in the closed hand was discarded. The Declarer now led a small heart from Dummy, and finessed the Ten. Obviously the success of the contract depended upon two elements—a favorable location of the club honors, so that only one trick in that suit would be lost, plus the capture of the adversely held trump Queen.

Now the Declarer led a small club from his own hand, which East won with the King. East returned a diamond, which was ruffed by North. The Declarer now made practically the only play which would lose the hand. He laid down the Ace of Hearts, staking the entire hand upon the 3-2 break in trumps. When East failed to follow suit, he was doomed. He must still lose a trick in trumps in addition to the club King already lost. His correct play, of course, is simple and obvious. A small heart should have been led rather than the Ace, and when East failed to follow suit, one of the high spades should have been led from Dummy. No matter what West did or failed to do at this point, the contract was safe. If he discarded a club, the club Queen should have been led, and when both East and West followed suit, as they would, the play of the rest of the hand would have been merely practice. North's plan was faulty because it staked too much upon one element of distribution. There was no occasion for running the risk of losing the hand if West held four trumps and East held one originally, as actually was the case.

Today's Question

The bidding:

North	South
1 ♠	4 ♠
5 ♣	?

You, South, hold:

♠ K Q 7 6 ♡ A 10 9 5 ♢ K 10 3 ♣ K 10

Both sides are vulnerable. What do you bid?

Answer: Six spades. Obviously, your partner's five-club bid is a Slam try; unless he were interested in bigger things he would not show his second suit at the level of five and thereby aid the defense. You have more strength than your four-spade bid indicates—the hand contains 3 honor-tricks, strong intermediates and a good fit with partner's second suit. If you merely bid five spades at this point, you will not convey any additional strength to your partner, and you will only bring him back to your original suit. Since your partner is crying for a Slam, you must give him an affirmative reply, which a five-spade bid certainly would not be.

A bid of five hearts is not incorrect, as you can always bid six spades later if your partner bids only five. However, in this instance it is not as good as the six-spade bid, as it unnecessarily gives information to the opponents.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

McKechnie Gets Results. Improves Club Greatly. Red Sox Spend $200,000. Famous Old Bike Ride. New Auto Racing Boom. Petrolle Tries Comeback.

ONLY SENATORS EQUAL BRAVES' DRIVE

GIVE BILL M'KECHNIE fair material, and there won't be any doubt as to the results he'll get. Few other managers can do as much with a given amount of stuff as the smart skipper of the Boston club. Early in the season the Braves dropped a flock of low-score games because none of the regulars could produce a batting punch to back up the excellent work of the pitchers. But last month McKechnie swung a helpful deal whereby he acquired Pinky Whitney and Hal Lee, and in the rearranged lineup under his inspiring leadership you now see the most improved club in the big leagues.

Bill McKechnie

During the last three weeks the Braves have outplayed not only every other club in the National League, but also every team in the American with the exception of Washington, and even the Senators have not been able to do better than tie with the Hubites.

Yesterday's victory over the Pirates here was the sixteenth for the Braves in their last 21 games, starting with a double win at the expense of the Bucs on June 21. No other National League club equaled that showing in its last 21 contests up to today. The Phillies won 14 and lost seven, the Cubs won 13 and lost eight, the Giants and Dodgers won 10 and lost 11, the Pirates won nine and lost 12, the Cardinals won eight and lost 13, and the Reds won six and lost 15.

In the American League, only the Senators kept pace with the McKechnies in their last 21 engagements by winning 16 games against five defeats. The Yankees and Red Sox won 13 and lost eight, the A's and Browns won 10 and lost 11, the Tigers and White Sox won nine and lost 12, and the Indians won five and lost 16.

IT WAS THE Braves who started the Giants on their present losing streak of seven straight by beating them twice in one afternoon, a slump that tightened up the National League race to such an extent that today only five games separated the first and fifth clubs.

The Braves were only one game below the Pirates and fourth place, and the rate at which they are going indicates that it may be a hard matter to keep the Bostonese from winding up in the select four and enabling McKechnie to collect that $5,000 bonus offered to him for a first-division finish, which he missed last year by only six percentage points.

IT IS ESTIMATED that the new owners of the Boston American League club have spent $200,000 for players. Rick Ferrell and Lloyd Brown represent an outlay of $50,000, it cost $80,000 to get Dusty Cooke, George Pipgras and Bill Werber, and the price of Mel Almada, Fred Muller and Bill Walters, bought from Coast League clubs, wasn't far from $75,000, it is said.

The investments are bringing results on the field. The Red Sox no longer are door mats for any opponent, and bid fair to continue the upward drive that has been in progress for several weeks. The story goes that at the end of the season George Earnshaw and possibly one or two other big leaguers will be purchased.

SPEED IS THE aim of Eddie Collins in building up the Bosox. Jolley, Alexander and Hodapp caused the club to be known as a heavyfooted one, but Cooke and Werber brought in a lot of speed, and all three of the new players coming from the Coast League are reported to be fast. Big league men view the purchase of Ferrell as the smartest deal yet made by the Boston owners. The former Brown catcher is given credit for the great improvement in the Red Sox pitching.

George Pipgras, Henry Johnson, Gordon Rhodes and Ivy Andrews are doing some very good pitching with Ferrell's support, while the Yankees, who gave up those hurlers as unserviceable, are in a sorry way for winning slabmen. The Bosox played only .300 ball before the coming of Ferrell, but their gait since has been close to .500.

YOUNG DICK OLIVER, the latest rookie pitcher picked up by Connie Mack for the A's, and who broke into the big show last week with a 4-to-2 victory over the Red Sox losing to the White Sox in his second start, came up as an unusual sandlot specimen.

Dick Oliver

For one thing, Oliver never wound up prior to his entry into organized ball. He once pitched a complete game in 1 hour and 10 minutes. It was not uncommon for him

U. S. GOLF STAR ELIMINATED IN TOURNEY

VANCOUVER, July 12.—(AP.)—The United States had lost one of its leading contenders, Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., but still boasted five representatives as the 16 survivors moved into the second round of the Canadian amateur golf championship today.

The 43-year-old Portland dentist bowed to Cecil Coville, of Vancouver, in the first round yesterday. Coville, known principally as the man who eliminated Ross Somerville from the 1929 championship, won from Dr. Willing, 1 up, after a close 36-hole duel.

Dr. Willing's defeat was more than offset by the first-round victories turned in by Jack Finger, San Francisco; Harry Givan and Albert (Scotty) Campbell, of Seattle, and Dr. Cliff Baker and Frank Dolp, of Portland.

Dr. Baker had a fight on his hands before he eliminated H. Nicholl, of Penticton, 1 up, but the others all won easily. Givan trounced Mac O'Neil, Vancouver, 11 and 10; Finger defeated Edwin Innes, Montreal, 8 and 7, while Dolp and Campbell were scoring 6 and 5 triumphs at the expense of Jimmy Bell and Stan Leonard, both of Vancouver, respectively.

Gordon Taylor, of Montreal, 1932 champion; Jack Cameron, of Toronto, runner-up a year ago, and Bobby Reith, Winnipeg, this year's medalist, all won by big margins.

In the second round today Campbell was paired against Finger, Dolp against Allan Taylor, Victoria; Baker against John Lewis, Brantford, Ont., and Givan against Jack Moryson, Vancouver.

Father of Floor Stars Succumbs

Andrew Minnick, father of Joe, Ed and Peck Minnick, star district basketball players, died in the McKeesport Hospital yesterday, resulting from a fall near his home on July 3. He will be laid out in his home, 209 Duquesne boulevard, Duquesne. Funeral services will be held in the Holy Trinity Catholic Church, Duquesne, Saturday morning, with the burial in the Holy Trinity Cemetery.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A PHILANTHROPIC PIRATE—Niclas Stortebecker, the most notorious German pirate of the Baltic was apprehended in 1402 and publicly executed by the hangman's sword in Hamburg, with 70 members of his band. He directed in his will that from the revenue of his estate in Wahle near Verden, Germany, sufficient rolls and herring be purchased annually to distribute six herrings and a roll to every indigent inhabitant of Verden. This bequest has been faithfully executed for the last 532 years. The distribution takes place in the Cathedral, and the recipients are to offer a prayer in memory of their benefactor.

SKIPPER BILL'S CLUB SHINES IN BUGS' DEFEAT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Knocking at the door of the first division, even as they try to pull the Buccos into the lower bracket of the National League, Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves today had convinced Pirate fans they were going places and doing things.

Maranville

Up to four weeks ago, Skipper Bill's club floundered and the deadline on making deals drew near. Suddenly Bill slipped over a fast one on the boys—he yanked Thirdbaseman Pinkey Whitney and Outfielder Hal Lee out of the Quaker lineup as if by magic, although later developments proved that the magical stuff was effected by the transfer of some prosaic coin of the realm.

Since the day of the big deal the Braves have been a rejuvenated ball club, and today they are only five games removed from the league-leading Giants who still are taking it "on the button" as they high the rough roads of the West.

BRAVES HAVE FLAG DREAMS

The pennant bee was buzzing around the Boston dugout yesterday as the Braves stung the Pirates, 5 to 2, in the first clash of a four-game series. There was a certain something about the play of the Tribe that reflected their flag dreams. The nine Braves McKechnie sent to the field entered the contest with that "die-for-dear-old Rutgers" spirit; they bounced against the hard concrete of the stands in quest of foul balls; they took toeholds at the plate at the expense of Steve Swetonic and Bill Swift and their headsup baserunners didn't fail to bowl over the pivot man as this athlete tried to manipulate a double play.

The Braves have won four in a row and in some respects they look like the smoothest club in the league, what with Rabbit Maranville in whirlwind shape after a short rest and Whitney adding balance to the club. And to add to his fortunes, Skipper Bill has evolved a crackerjack slap staff including Brandt, Frankhouse, Cantwell, Betts, Mangum and Zachary. His hard luck lies in the fact that Bobby Brown, a slab sensation of last season, has been out most of this year with a sore arm.

JORDAN, MOORE BIG ACT

Baxter Jordan, the Braves' young firstsacker, and Randy Moore, put on a powerhouse act to upset the Pirates yesterday. The pair of lefthand batters kicked in with two triples, a double, two singles, a walk and three runs as the Braves steamrolled their way through Swetonic and Swift. They scored single runs in the first, third and fourth and put the game on the ice in the eighth by adding two more runs.

Pie Traynor put the Pirates in the ball game in the sixth when with two out and runners on third and second he nicked Zachary for a smart single to score the two tallies. Swift's single in the eighth led to the last Pittsburgh counter.

GIANTS' SLUMP TIGHTENS NATIONAL RACE

BRUINS DEFEAT DODGERS AND PASS BUCS

Associated Press.

The slump of the New York Giants, a long awaited event which has been keeping the hopes of various other clubs in the National League alive, appears to be well under way. A losing streak, which began when the Giants tackled a July 4 doubleheader at Boston, has extended through seven straight games and now four clubs are closer to the league leaders than the second place St. Louis Cardinals were on July 3.

The Cards, by virtue of a 2-1 "gift" victory over the Giants yesterday, are only 2½ games behind. Chicago's Cubs moved into third place three games back of the leaders yesterday by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-2, while the Boston Braves were taking a 5-3 decision from Pittsburgh that left the Pirates and the Tribe following at one-game intervals.

A combination of weak hitting and weaker fielding again wrecked the Giants yesterday, although Bud Parmelee gave them more of the fine pitching they have had right along. Errors in the seventh by Travis Jackson, Parmelee, Bill Terry and Gus Mancuso gave the Cards both their runs. Dizzy Dean held the margin although he wabbled a bit in the ninth.

The Cubs needed only one inning, the eighth, to beat Brooklyn, lacing Owen Carroll for four hits and having a couple of errors tossed in for their six runs.

Boston, which has chalked up 16 victories in 21 games, won without much trouble behind Tom Zachary's tight flinging. The Phillies, meanwhile, moved out of the league cellar by taking a 2-1 11-inning decision from the Cincinnati Reds, when Don Hurst tripled and scored on Wes Schulmerich's fly.

With the aid of the Chicago White Sox, the New York Yankees tightened up the American League race. The Yanks pounded Wally Hebert early to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 5-4. The Sox did the same thing even more emphatically to Al Crowder and the Washington Senators, winning, 9-3, by scoring eight runs in the first three innings. The defeat reduced Washington's lead to two games.

The third place Philadelphia Athletics kept pace, defeating the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 4. The Boston Red Sox handed the Detroit Tigers their fourth straight loss, winning 2-10.

Primo Carnera's Life Story

Floored and Thoroughly Beaten by Sharkey—Primo Knocks Out Rival Giant, Campolo—The Break With Manager See.

(This autobiography is a translation from the Italian of Primo Carnera's remarkably clear memories of his career thus far. The new world heavyweight boxing champion can speak English sufficiently to be understood, but, in preparing his life story, he preferred to do so in his native tongue. So far as is possible, the translation preserves the ideas and spirit of the champion.)

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE SHARKEY LESSON IN 1931—KAYO OF CAMPOLO

By PRIMO CARNERA, Heavyweight Boxing Champion of the World.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Others often have told me that the Jack Sharkey who boxed me on October 12, 1931, was at the very peak of form. He was not then champion. The following June, when he won the title from Max Schmeling; most critics agree he was not nearly as good against the German as he was when whipping me. And for 10 rounds I believe I was in front, despite that terrific knockdown when he hooked me with his left to the chin in the fourth.

Primo Carnera

That knockdown will be long discussed not only because of the power of the blow that sent my 260-odd pounds flat on my back, but because Sharkey lost his head when the referee refused to disqualify me when I dropped to the floor after rising from my knee at the count of four or five. Under the old rules, a boxer who deliberately drops without being hit lost, but under New York State ring regulations—well explained to me in advance—I was allowed the benefit of the continued count under the circumstances. I will try to recall those circumstances.

Though hit with all that Sharkey could put in a well-aimed left hook, my head was but slightly dazed when my body crashed to the canvas. I wheeled up in a second or two and started to take the count resting on one knee. Instinctly, I looked to my corner. Monsieur See waved me to get up; Monsieur Duffy signaled me to stay down. The noise was fearful. With one eye on my seconds, the other took in Sharkey, who had run to a neutral corner. Though partly dazed, I was lucky to see Jack just tag that corner and come rushing back toward me just as I was rising off the knee. He was then right in the rear of the referee, who was leaning over, facing the timer and signaling the count to me with his right arm. You could hardly hear anything but the crowd's roar.

Quickly sensing that Sharkey would take a shot at my jaw from right in back of the referee, I sank back to one knee. Jack, angry, protested and rushed toward his corner as if to run out of the ring. His manager, Johnny Buckley, mounted the steps and blocked Sharkey as he was shoving a leg through the ropes. They bumped a bit, the count came to "nine,"

The winner of the Vince Dundee-Ted Yarosz match at Forbes Field one week from next Monday night is to be matched with Ben Jeby, recognized in New York State as the middleweight champion of the world.

Ben Jeby

So says Lew Raymond, the matchmaker, and he should know, for he has been in touch with Hymie Caplin, manager of Jeby, who on Monday night defended his title against Young Terry in Newark, N. J., and is matched with Lou Brouillard, of Boston, recent conqueror of Mickey Walker and also winner over Jimmy McLarnin, for a bout at the Polo Grounds in New York on July 26.

At first it was planned to have the State Athletic Commission recognize the winner of the Dundee-Yarosz bout as the champion, but this maneuver miscarried, so, with the winner promised a crack at Jeby or Brouillard, in the event the latter should beat Jeby, Yarosz has an incentive to beat Dundee, who recently knocked out Frankie Goosby here for the only defeat in the latter's career.

FIRST IN EIGHT YEARS

Incidentally, the Yarosz-Dundee show will be the first professional boxing exhibition at Forbes Field in more than eight years, and it is attracting more attention than any other feature billed here in years. More than 30,000 seats will be available at low prices, and it is the promoters' ambition to have a customer in each seat to show the boxing people of the land that, given something to go for, this city is one of the best in the business.

The show of 10 four-round bouts, with Mose Butch meeting his old enemy, Ross Fields, of Cleveland, again on top, at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night, is just a fill-in to give the fans a lot of action and show them a number of new faces before the Yarosz-Dundee program a week later, which also will be promoted by the Hickey Park management.

BOWL SHOW OFF

Announcement was made by the North Braddock Bowl late yesterday that its show scheduled for tomorrow night has been canceled. An injury suffered in training by Frankie Ryan, who was to box one of the two 10-round bouts, was given as the reason. Sunny Jim McVey and Frankie Simms were to meet in the main bout.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, July 12.—While Otto Kahn and J. P. Morgan are passing the summer off the witness stand, I would like to have this guy Ferdinand Pecora make somebody name who is going to stop our Washington club from winning the flag. Uncle Nicholas does not like to boast, as all his cronies will tell you, but, if the Yanks are the only team in our way, we can start measuring our centerfield flagpole for the pennant right now.

Ruth and Gehrig may frighten small school children with their great bats, but they aren't any menace to us. And, if there's any runaway race in the American League, like the experts predicted, it's going to be Manager Joe Cronin that says:

LOCAL NETMEN ADVANCE AT FOX CHAPEL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Tom Robinson and Joe Dilworth, crack home club combine, will oppose Dr. John and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, West Penn and Allegheny County premiers, and Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman, brilliant Harvard-Pitt pair, will battle Charley Lockhart and McCook Reed, Pittsburgh Golf Club aces, in the semi-final contests of the second annual Fox Chapel Golf Club invitation men's doubles turf court net tourney this afternoon. The penultimate frays, originally scheduled for tomorrow, have been set back till Friday at 5:30 p. m., with windup billed for Sunday.

Robinson and Dilworth advanced to meet the O'Loughlins by virtue of spirited 6-3, 9-7 victory yesterday over the veteran Stanton Heights outfit, Jack Beatty and Bill Spindler. Steadiness, pertinacity and smart teamwork brought success to the Chapelites.

Meanwhile Broida and Goodman, lacking a bit of the airtight brilliance that garnered victory for them in the 1932 Fox Chapel affair, were pushed to squeeze out 8-6, 6-4 decision at expense of George Henderson and Carlton Hughes, another Stantonian array.

Lockhart and Reed skimmed out with little to spare in gleaning a 6-4, 9-7 verdict from the Edgewooders, John Brown and Eddie Alcorn.

There will be a meeting of the sanction and schedule committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association today for the purpose of setting dates for the playoff of the P. T. A. Inter-Club League fracases cut short by rain last Saturday.

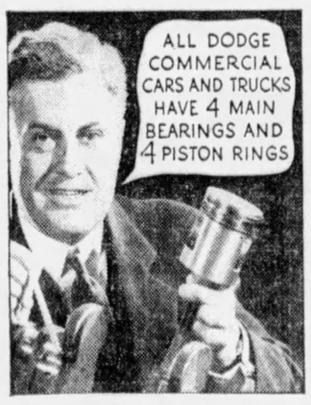
DODGE OFFERS PROOF THAT IT PAYS TO FORGET CLAIMS AND LOOK AT FACTS WHEN YOU BUY A LOW-PRICED TRUCK

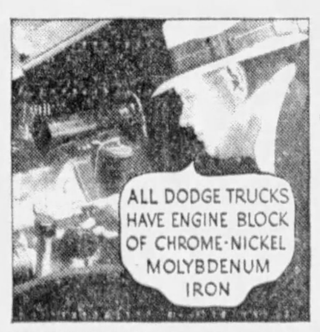
IT'S the easiest thing in the world to make claims about a low-priced truck. Now Dodge—one of America's pioneer manufacturers of fine trucks—invites you to forget claims and "sales talk" and to judge truck values for yourself on a basis of cold hard facts. No matter how much or how little you may know about trucks—Dodge is confident, that the new, low-priced, 6-cylinder models will prove their advantages to you . . . will sell themselves to you, strictly on their own merits. Then, when you know the facts, Dodge gladly leaves the decision up to your own intelligence.



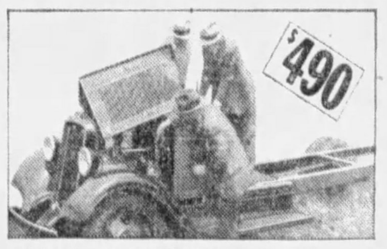
LOWER UPKEEP COSTS and better performance are always guaranteed by better construction! Dodge Commercial Cars and Trucks have four main crankshaft bearings instead of the 3 bearings usually found in low-priced models . . . have 4 rings on each piston, instead of the usual 3, and the result is better engine performance.

LONGER LIFE AND greater economy of operation . . . of course your Commercial Car or Truck engine will give more and better miles if every bearing (not just part of them) is oiled under pressure with clean, filtered lubricant.

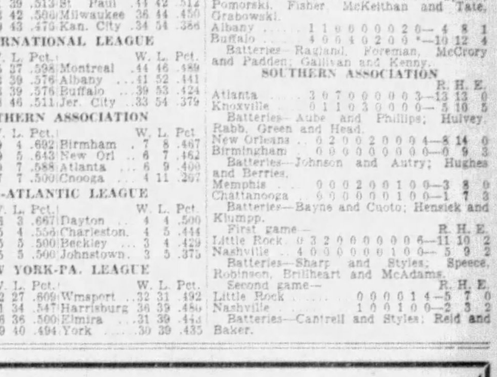
POWER PLUS ECONOMY—Here's another advantage that Dodge gives you, even in the lowest priced trucks. Dodge uses a Full-Floating Rear Axle—it's far more sturdy, the most efficient way to transfer power to the drive wheels, more economical because service is reduced to a minimum.



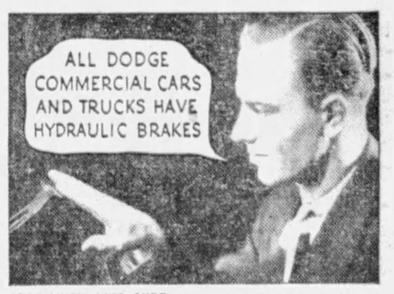
DEPENDABILITY AND long engine life are what you want, and this Dodge Engine Block of special, expensive alloy, is amazingly durable.



6-CYLINDER—1½-TON CHASSIS—131" wheelbase, extra deep channel frame, has all the mechanical advantages pictured above plus many more. Astonishing low price . . . only $490, F. O. B. Factory, Detroit (Dual Wheels and bumpers extra.)



NO VALVE GRINDING FOR 30,000 MILES AND MORE . . . Think of the time and money saved! Valve Seat Inserts also save gas and improve performance because they make valves seat better. A simple invention, yet it gives a tremendous advantage.



STOP QUICK, SAFE, SURE—Hydraulic Brakes are always equalized, work smoother. That's why you can stop a Dodge Truck with so little effort. No ordinary pressed steel brake drums here—Dodge uses genuine Cast Iron brake drums on Trucks and centrifuse brake drums on Commercial Cars for long, even wear.

EVERY Dodge Truck has all of the high-quality features shown here—features you might expect to find in trucks costing two and three times as much. New Dodge models actually have over two dozen advantages that mean positive savings to you every mile you operate your truck. Only when you know the facts about today's truck values can you make every truck dollar do its full duty—make it buy the maximum value. Whatever kind of truck you intend to buy . . . at whatever price, even the lowest—spend ten minutes with your Dodge dealer and learn what amazing advancements Dodge now offers you.

PRIMO CARNERA AND MOTHER . . PICTURE TAKEN THIS YEAR

I got up, and the irate Jack resumed boxing. He soon found that I was strong despite that knockdown and I must have surprised him by my boxing for the next few rounds.

TIRES AND IS BEATEN

Between the tenth and eleventh sessions I have have been told that ringside gamblers were offering 3 to 2 on my winning because, with the exception of that fourth round opening, Sharkey had been unable to get to me and I had been left-handing him plenty.

With the eleventh, though, my fortunes faded when my long left became a bit tired. Sharkey wove under it often and laced me with numerous lefts and rights. After that knockdown I used my right almost solely for a defense, so, when my left failed, my offense collapsed. However, I stood up under Jack's heavy fire right through the fifteenth, and, while beaten and tired at the end, I suspect Sharkey really was the far more weary.

Jack gave me a fearful whaling, however, in the last five rounds—surely the worst thrashing I ever anticipated receiving. He was gracious, indeed, in the dressing room later. My English had picked up a bit and I told him how clearly he had won and what a great boxer he was. In turn, he said I would beat many more fighters than would beat me, and he took my fist, showing me that I should hold it tight always when hitting.

REBUKED BY SHARKEY

Long afterward friends told me that Sharkey, in handling my fist that time, was trying to point out that I should not use the thumb in punching. I did not realize I used the thumb, and, if I did do that, I am sorry, because I really mean to fight fair. In excitement, of course, even the coolest boxers sometimes lose their heads and commit fouls, especially by thumbing.

But outside of that fist-making lesson, or thumb warning, whatever it was, I did learn much about boxing from Sharkey that night. I saw and felt so many hooks that I later learned to land them myself after those close-ups of Jack's twisters. He showed me how to feint, especially with the eyes, and how to ride punches.

My long left jab was my best weapon, then, and working it so much against him gave me the idea of combining such a jab with a hook. Since then I often put a wrist twist to the end of a long jab and this has the shock effect of a stiff hook.

DEFEATS RIVAL GIANT

Frankly, none of my management expected victory against Sharkey then. They all seemed to think I had made a good showing against a master boxer at his best. The next morning, Monsour Sec aroused me about 6 o'clock we motored far up Riverside Drive and jogged back to the hotel on foot a distance of about five miles. My manager did not want me to stiffen up after the beating, but at first that early-morning marathon back to the hotel was almost as tough as the beating itself.

Young and strong, however, I soon was ready for the ring again so a little more than a month later we went to Chicago for a tough and lively 10-rounder with the up-and-coming King Levinsky. I won the decision handily and it proved a fine tune-up for a bout with Vittorio Campolo, another "super-heavyweight," or "dreadnaught," as the late William Muldoon used to call us extra big boxers. Campolo is about an inch taller than my 6-feet-6 and fraction inches. The Argentine giant weighed about 30 pounds less than my 264. Like his fellow-countryman, Luis Firpo, Campolo was a hard hitter, but he did not get ahead in the United States. He had been outpointed a few times and Ernie Schaaf had flattened him in the seventh round about three months before he faced me. However everyone agreed that Campolo was a dangerous socker and it was unofficially admitted that he and I would battle for the so-called "dreadnaught championship of the world."

CAMPOLO COLLAPSES

Madison Square Garden was well filled on the night of November 27, 1931, when the two giants tore into each other—and we did tear. Campolo in the first round landed hard on my head three or four times during exchanges in which I belted him plenty in return. Not having to hit down for the first time in my career, I got good upswing into my shots at the tall Argentine and his legs buckled almost every time I landed. The second round was not old when I readied him with a left hook and then crossed a right flush to the jaw. He collapsed, and for the first time in years—yes, years, since 1929—none charged that my victory was a "fake" or "set-up."

Yes, often I wish that there were more boxers as tall as Campolo. I know how difficult it is to hit down and do enough damage against smart, shorter opponents.

Well, I had to be satisfied with that novel and synthetic "dreadnaught" title when I closed my 1931 American tour. Victories over Campolo and Levinsky showed, at least, that Sharkey had not taken the heart out of me. My championship ambition was greater than ever.

BACK TO ITALY AGAIN

So I sailed home to Italy and Sequala, where I was greeted just as though I were a champion. Before returning to New York, in June, of 1932, I scored four knockouts—just as decisive as that K. O. of Campolo—against Moise Bouquillon (Round 5) in Paris; Ernest Guhring (Round 5) in Berlin; George Cook (Round 4) in London and Hans Schonrath (Round 3) in Milan. My improvement following that Sharkey lesson was marked by most critics. However, Bill Duffy knew that I needed still more seasoning, as shown by his planning of my next American tour. But again I am rushing ahead of my story. . .

In the meantime, money differences and business detail cropped up, caused the dropping of Leon See as my manager. The figures show that my end of the 1930 and 1931 American tours, together with other income, must have grossed about $300,000. There was a large shortage in payments to me and so Mr. Louis Richard Sores, my banker, took charge of my affairs. He was then vice-president of the Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust Co., of Long Island City, where the big Garden Bowl is located. His attempts to straighten out my accounts will be described later.

CHICAGO—June Beebe, of Chicago, led with a score of 163 to 36 holes as entrants in the women's western golf derby swung into the final 36 holes of the medal play competition at Sunset Ridge today. Mrs. Nelson, of Chicago, was second with 165, and Helen MacMorran, of Chicago, third with 166.

EASTERN POINT, Conn.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, and Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., twice winners of the tournament, were among the favorites who won first round matches in the Griswold Cup golf tournament at the Shenecossett Club yesterday. Second round matches are being played today.

TOLEDO, O.—Dick Reynolds paced a mile in two minutes one-half second, for the fastest heat of the season in winning the 14 class pace, feature of the Grand Circuit meet at Fort Miami Park last night.

WICHITA, Kan.—The Max Baer-Babe Hunt four-round boxing exhibition which was to have taken place here tonight is out, pending an investigation by the State Boxing Commission. Hunt has been suspended indefinitely; Baer, Jack Dempsey, Ancil Hoffman and C. H. Cain have been placed on the "temporarily unavailable" list.

ATLANTA.—Bryan Grant and Jack Simpson, both of Atlanta, gained the fourth round of the southern tennis championship here yesterday before a heavy rainfall interrupted the program.

PHILADELPHIA, — (INS.) — Temple University has entered into a two-year football agreement with Texas A. and M. College, it was announced today by Earl R. Yeomans, director of athletics. Games will be played here in 1934, and at Dallas, Tex., in 1935.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa.—Word has been received here of the sudden death at Massillon, O., last night of Alex Quay, famous Geneva athlete of two decades ago. Quay was the co-holder of the Geneva all-time 220-yard dash record, and while in school here was one of the outstanding athletes of the district.

CHICAGO—(AP.)—William Delancey, catcher with the Columbus Club of the American Association, was indefinitely suspended by President Thomas J. Hickey today for throwing his bat into the grandstand during the game at Minneapolis yesterday.

SPRING LAKE, N. J.—Frank Shields, Berkeley Bell, seeded stars, and Lorenzo Nodarse and Arturo Dandin, members of Cuba's Davis cup team, were among the favorites who advanced as the field of 54 played through the second round of the invitation clay courts tennis tournament here today.

ALEX QUAY DEAD

MASSILLON, O., July 12.—Alex Quay, former Geneva College athletic star, died here suddenly last night.

to hurl six or seven games in the semi-pro ranks around Philadelphia. The youngster's proper name is Barrett.

PINCH-HITTERS NOW have the entire sympathy of Rogers Hornsby. He says he never realized what a tough job it is until it became his own role with the Cardinals. Hornsby says it's the hardest assignment of his career, during which he has filled most of the posts on the field, and he admits frankly that he doesn't like it.

According to the Rajah, it's no easy matter to walk up there and face a pitcher when a hit means everything to your club. He'd rather be in there every day, so that he could keep his eye on the ball, and he doubts that he would come anywhere near .300 if he were to do nothing but pinch-hitting all season.

A DISCUSSION OF the speed made by bicycle riders caused Bill Henry to recall that it was just 34 years ago that Mile-a-Minute Murphy turned in his famous ride. Murphy now located in Flushing, L. I., was a policeman in those days and rode a bike for fun. He declared he could travel as fast on his bicycle as any train could go if he could get in close behind the latter, because the shape of the train would create an area of no resistance in its wake. They laughed at Murphy, but on June 30, 1899, he made good on a board track laid between the rails of the Long Island Railroad at Maywood. Sticking right behind a speeding train, the biker covered a measured mile in 54 4-5 seconds.

SINCE MURPHY'S DAY, the bike riders have hung up some astonishing speed marks when paced by motorcycles, a sport that had several runs with fair success in this city in the old days, starting at the Colosseum on the North Side in 1902 under the management of Tim Hurst.

Louis Vanderstuyft, a Belgian, set an official record of 76 miles and 503 yards in one hour in Paris in 1928 behind motor pace, and a French rider later was said to have rattled off better than 80 miles an hour. The best the bikers do unpaced on a board saucer is around 40 miles an hour.

AS VETERANS OF the sport see it, automobile racing is coming back to the old popularity it enjoyed in the days of Oldfield, Milton, Dawson, De Palma, Rickenbacker and other noted drivers of yesteryear. The game is picking up rapidly and tracks in all parts of the country report good patronage.

Some of the new tracks are proving so successful, particularly the Woodbridge Oval and several others in New Jersey, that plans are being made for the construction of another huge speedway on Long Island. The promoters are George Robertson, veteran driver, who won the famous Vanderbilt Cup years ago, and Ira Vail, wealthy pilot of the last generation.

Billy Petrolle

THE FARGO EXPRESS comes out from a sidetrack tonight to attempt another run. Billy Petrolle, out of action since Barney Ross gave him a beating, returns to the fistic wars in a 10-round bout in New York that will be a test of himself as well as of Bep Van Klavern, the tough Hollander. Petrolle will try to prove that he wasn't as far gone as he appeared to be early this year when he took one plastering from Tony Canzoneri and then another from Ross. He argues that it was only the weakening effects of grinding himself down to the lightweight limit that caused his defeats and made him look to be on the downgrade. Fighting as a welterweight—merely catchweights for him—Billy will escape that strain, and he thinks he can go right on to a shot at the title. It is no easy hurdle that he faces in his first comeback attempt, as Van Klavern never has been beaten in this country and, though being tested himself, threatens to give Petrolle just about all the latter can handle, if he doesn't actually scratch the Express off the Queensberry timetables again. Van Klavern, who won the Olympic featherweight championship for Holland in 1928, began his professional career in 1929. All told he has 123 victories to his credit. As an amateur he won 71 bouts, drew three and lost two. He won the lightweight professional championship of Holland by outpointing Leen Sanders in 1930 and the European title by knocking out Jean Sybilla in 1931.

VINCENT ELDRED

Two local women golfers and a professional will discuss the popular links sport as guest speakers of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

Tom Birks, golf editor, will conduct a forum with the golf stars, Mrs. George L. Hays, of the Oakmont Country Club, and Mrs. Chester H. Lehman, of the Westmoreland Country Club, respectively, president and vice president of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, and Vincent Eldred, Highland Country Club professional, who is getting ready to defend his state open title at Scranton next week.

Harry Keck, sports editor, and Leland Becraft, also will participate in the program.

FREDDIE MILLER STOPS ISRAEL

SEATTLE, July 12.—(AP.)—Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, knocked out Abie Israel, Seattle Jewish flash, in the fourth round of a scheduled 15-round title bout here last night. In the third Israel claimed a foul, and was given a six-minute rest before continuing the fight.

A dynamite-laden left hook to the jaw sent Israel down, out cold, after he also had gone down for a nine-count early in the fourth round, and came up wavering. He covered up, but Miller was on him mercilessly, and the end was near.

In the disputed third round, after two minutes 20 seconds of hot fighting, Israel went down from a left to the body, which both he and his seconds immediately shouted was low.

Israel recently won a decision over Miller in a non-title bout here.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Seattle, Wash.—Freddie Miller knocked out Abe Israel, 4 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Young Dumbo defeated Baby Casanova, 10 rounds. Kid Aztecn defeated Ceferino Garcia, 10 rounds.

At Hartford, Conn.—Unknown Winston defeated Marty Fox, 10 rounds.

At San Jose, Cal.—Bobby Gray and Young Tiger Flowers drew, 10 rounds.

At Coney Island—Midget Wolgast-Lou Farber bout postponed until tomorrow night; threathening weather.

LEGION GAMES TODAY

The Carmichaels and Uniontown teams meet this evening in the final game for the Southwestern Pennsylvania American Legion junior baseball championship at Carmichaels. McKees Rocks plays at Crafton, Homestead at Swissvale and Curtisville at Turtle Creek.

STOCKS MOVE CAUTIOUSLY FORWARD

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—The stock market stepped gingerly today despite continued firmness of grains, a rally in foreign exchange and indications of further industrial improvement.

While followers of the alcohols again imbibed copiously of their favorite beverage shares, and several specialties responded to joyous buying flurries, most of the pivotal stocks either sagged or held to an extremely narrow range. Rye got up 4 cents a bushel, wheat and cotton rallied and bar silver reached another new year's high with an advance of 3/8 of a cent to 38 1/4 cents an ounce. The dollar dropped about 6 cents to the British pound. Bonds were irregular.

There was some evidence of distribution in various sections of the list under cover of the few buoyant specialties and alcoholic stocks. Although business and trade news continued exceptionally bright, rumors floated about the Street that Washington was somewhat concerned regarding the recent feverish speculation in both stocks and commodities and that several of the most prominent traders had received intimations that a "toning down" of the speedy upswing would be welcomed by the authorities putting through the industrial recovery plans.

While the increased interest in the so-called "wet" group has not been entirely a surprise to market analysts, the breadth of the buying movement has brought some mild warnings from the more conservative investment circles. Much of the advance in this division, it is said, can be attributed to the roseate prospects of prohibition repeal probably in the early part of next year. At the same time, however, it is pointed out that when spirits again become legal for public consumption, governmental control of prices and output may tend to shade substantially the huge profits which are now anticipated by the enthusiastic "wet" followers.

Veteran market observers, who have always kept a weather eye on Western Union as an important indicator of basic business improvement, were highly gratified at the company's May report which showed net earnings of around $1 a share. Much of the improvement in the communications industry, wire company officials say, can be attributed to the recent heated markets. At the same time, the increase in commercial messages has been a factor in the rising revenues of the telegraph corporations.

COTTON PRICES TURN DOWN

NEW YORK, July 12—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 6-13 lower under liquidation due to uncertainty over success of acreage reduction in Kansas and on disappointing Liverpool cables. July, 10.48; October, 10.80; December, 10.94; January, 10.98; March, 11.18; May, 11.32.

October sold off to 10.72 and December to 10.87, making net losses of about 11 to 15 points, under the initial pressure, but offerings were fairly well absorbed by trade and commission house buying. There was also some buying here through houses with Liverpool and continental connections.

The weekly weather report was construed as unfavorable with reference to the western belt and no more favorable than expected in other sections, and probably brought in a little buying. Offerings were light after the early selling had run its course and prices advanced. October sold up to 10.96c and March to 11.37c, within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's best prices on active positions. The market at midday was within a point or two of the best at net advances of about 6 to 14 points.

LIVERPOOL, July 12.—Cotton, 11,000 bales, including 3,100 American. Spot, good business done; prices 6 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.96; good middling, 6.66; strict middling, 6.36; middling, 6.21; strict low middling, 6.06; low middling, 5.86; strict good ordinary, 5.66; good ordinary, 5.36. Futures closed quiet and steady. July, 5.93; October, 5.99; December, 6.02; January, 6.04; March, 6.08; May, 6.11.

Standard of Ohio Advances Gasoline

CLEVELAND, July 12.—(AP.)—The Standard Oil Company of Ohio announced a state-wide advance in its gasoline price structure of one-half cent a gallon.

The company said the change represented recent increases in wholesale gasoline prices.

The new prices will be 17 1/2, 15 and 13 1/4 cents a gallon, plus 4 cents state tax and 1 1/2 cents federal tax.

British Foreign Trade Falls Off

LONDON, July 12.—The British Board of Trade reports that imports into the United Kingdom during June were valued at £53,774,000, compared with £57,294,000 during May and £57,517,000 in June, 1932. Exports were valued at £28,465,000, against £30,765,000 in May and £29,723,000 in June a year ago, while re-exports amounted to £5,266,000 in June, against £3,820,000 in May and £4,174,000 in June last year.

LOCAL STEEL OPERATIONS EXPAND

NEW YORK, July 12. Iron Age says:

New business in iron and steel has shown an expected recession, following the heavy specifying that marked the close of the second quarter, but pressure for shipments is unrelaxed and ingot production has made a further again, rising from 56 to 59 per cent of capacity. Output at Pittsburgh has increased from 45 to 49 per cent, the Chicago rate has advanced from 57 to 60 per cent, the Valley average has gone up from 55 to 65 per cent and Buffalo operations from 60 to 62 per cent.

Blast furnaces lighted include one steel company stack and one merchant unit in the Birmingham district and a steel works stack at Buffalo.

The Steel Corporation's gain of 176,956 tons in unfilled orders in June undoubtedly reflected the heavy releases that flowed in at the end of last quarter. While many buyers may have anticipated their requirements further ahead than usual, it is unlikely that the amount of speculative tonnage ordered was excessive. Certainly steel going to the automobile industry is passing almost into immediate consumption and the same may be said of tin plate shipped to the can companies.

SUSTAINED RATE SEEN

Even if the present lull in new purchases should continue, tonnage booked by the mills for July shipment is sufficient to maintain production at an undiminished rate through this month and part of August. But a renewed flow of specifications is assured before the close of July.

Shipments to the motor car industry are undiminished, although Detroit is concerned both on account of a relaxation in demand for higher-priced cars and the aggressive efforts of union labor to organize automobile workers. Tin plate mills are booked into September at capacity. Structural steel awards, at 27,225 tons, were the third largest of the year.

Substantial progress is being made in the completion of the steel industry's code, with the possibility that it may be ready for submission to the National Industrial Recovery Administration next week.

PIG IRON ADVANCED

The pig iron trade, like the steel industry, has finally announced prices covering the full third quarter, after temporarily considering a month-to-month basis of quoting. New prices put into effect represent an increase of $1 a ton.

Furnace coke at Connellsville, which advanced 25 cents a ton late in June, has risen again, this which advanced 25 cents a ton late in June, has risen again 25 cents, this time to $2.25 a ton. Higher prices at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago have raised the Iron Age composite price for heavy melting scrap from $10.54 to $10.88 a gross ton. The pig iron composite, by virtue of the advance that has been put into effect at Chicago, has risen from $15.01 to $15.17 a gross ton. The Iron Age composite for finished steed is unchanged.

June Auto Output 100,000 Above Last Year

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Automobile production in June by members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce was 195,178 cars and trucks, compared with 172,276 in May and 95,713 in June, 1932, according to an estimate by the chamber.

For the first six months of 1933, output by members was 800,290 cars, against 680,218 in the like 1932 period.

The chamber membership includes all important producers with the exception of Ford.

COTTON PLAN'S SUCCESS SEEN

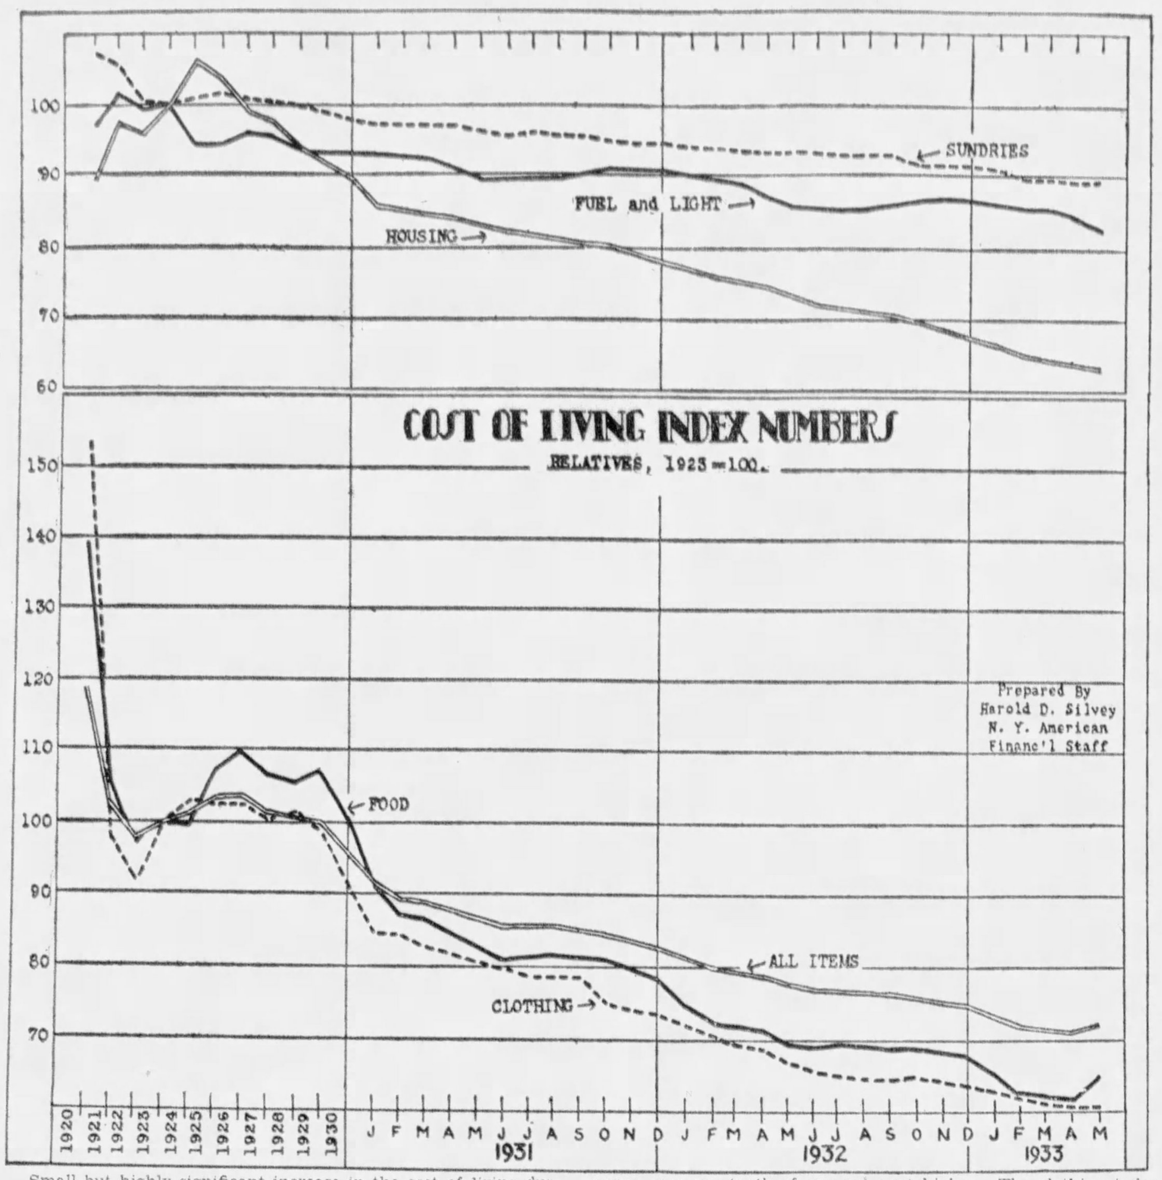
WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace said today that he believes that when all returns are in from the cotton acreage reduction program, it will prove to be "one of the grestest demonstrations of intelligent and unified action in the history of American agriculture."

The goal of farm administrators was to cut the potential crop by at least 3,000,000 bales. Wallace said:

"Latest reports from the cotton belt indicate that the campaign for acreage reduction is moving rapidly and apparently successfully to a conclusion."

The campaign for obtaining contract-offers from growers in 16 cotton producing states will be ended at midnight tonight but the final tabulation of acreage offered may not be available for another week.

Extended Down Trend in Cost of Living Ends With Significant Rise During May



Small but highly significant increase in the cost of living during May of this year is shown in the accompanying chart. Index numbers compiled monthly by the National Industrial Conference Board also depict the heretofore steady decline during the depression and the drastic drop from the high marks of 1920.

In weighing the index numbers, the board assumes that the average working family spends 33 per cent of its income for food, 20 per cent for housing, 12 per cent for clothing, 5 per cent for fuel and lighting, and 30 per cent for sundries. The averages for 1923 in all indices are relative to 100.

More than usual interest is being shown at the present time in the course of living prices. That a large increase will be reported for the month of June is freely predicted, since the natural price advances coincident with normal recovery have been augmented by the inflation influence.

An important point shown by the chart is the fact that one group, food prices, has accounted for virtually the entire May increase. The food index during the month rose three and one-half per cent over April. Sundries, the only other separate item to advance, was one-tenth of one per cent higher. The clothing index was unchanged for the month, fuel and light costs were down sharply, and the housing index was lower.

The average for all items, therefor, was but eight-tenths of one per cent higher.

The Industrial Board's figures, as the chart shows, were begun in 1920, a year when erratic price changes were recorded each month. The severe depression in 1921 and 1922 was chiefly reflected in a drop in the cost of living to prewar levels.

May figures for each group, together with the index numbers for the previous month and the average for 1920, follow:

Group.	1920.	April, 1933.	May, 1933.
Food	139.4	61.9	64.1
Housing	89.2	64.0	63.5
Clothing	153.4	60.7	60.7
Fuel and Light	96.9	84.6	82.8
Sundries	107.5	89.3	89.4
All Items	119.4	71.5	72.1

HANEY

Difficulties of Recovery By First Boosting Prices Shown

—By LEWIS HANEY—

NEW YORK, July 12.—Commodity prices have continued to rise, notably metals, textiles and grains. This is chiefly owing to the depreciation in the dollar and to the speculative or "protective" buying which results.

IN THE case of the grains, however, the serious drouth in the West is a factor, the crop outlook being the poorest in a generation. While the short grain crops further the price boosting program, they are bad for the farmers and all who deal with them.

Dispatches from the Northwest indicate that retail trade is beginning to feel the effects of crop damage. Corn is "firing," and small grains in the Dakotas have suffered heavily. This will make cash scarce in these sections this fall.

THE INDEXES of industrial production, however, continue to rise, and appear to make a strong showing compared with a year ago. In fact, steel production is up to the early 1931 level, and industrial output in general to around the middle of that year. This is reflected in rising electrical power production and railway corloadings.

Careful observers should note that last year at this time these indexes were touching the phenomenally lowest level of the depression. The current trend is decidely upward, but we should not exaggerate the improvement to comparisons with the extremely low and declining levels of a year ago.

FURTHERMORE, the question remains, how much of the expansion represents speculation. This is evidently beginning to worry the industry control people at Washington, who are trying to speed up the adoption of their "codes" and regulations.

They fear that industry is producing so much at the old wages, working conditions and prices that by the time their new rules are enforced commodity supplies will be large. Their "stabilization" scremes would thus be made more difficult.

COTTON shipments, for example, have fairly run away in the haste of manufacturers and dealers to get cloth made before the new restrictions and taxes.

Probably the large increase in the unfilled orders of the steel corporation shows much the same thing, and much of it represents "protective" buying.

WHILE INDUSTRY expands, retail trade remains backward. Department store sales actually declined a little in June and were 4 per cent smaller than a year ago.

The government's index is only 66 per cent of the average for 1923-25. Allowing for seasonal variation, it is about equal to last November.

THIS FACT suggests the difficulty of proceeding by first boosting prices, then stimulating production, and then giving consumers the purchasing power with which to support the rise in prices and production. When these three things come naturally, consumer demand backed by earned purchasing power is the basis. It does not have to be forced.

Now the "brain trust" has to wrestle with the problem of getting wages up and at the same time inducing employers to keep more laborers. It has to solve the problem of getting more buying power for laborers at the same time that the prices of bread and cloth are raised.

JUNE FIGURES just released for New York state show factory payrolls 5 per cent above a year ago, and only 45 per cent of the 1925-1927 average.

This compares with a rise in wholesale food prices of over 15 per cent, and an increase in industrial production of about 35 per cent. Based on 1925-1927, the 45 per cent payroll figure compares with over 75 per cent for industrial production and general prices about 65 per cent.

SECURITY ACT RESTRICTIONS STUDIED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Reform, like everything else in this world, has its price. Obviously, the impulse to protect lay investors, which led to the passage of the new federal security act, was a noble one, yet practical financiers are wondering to what extent the new restrictions will impose a hardship on legitimate operations in connection with the flow of capital to constructive industry and to government.

Mr. Rukeyser

While in Washington recently, I chatted on this theme with Baldwin B. Bane, who is heading up the enforcement unit of the Federal Trade Commission.

In essence, the governmental official made it clear that, though the registration and the standardization of prospectuses would necessarily be somewhat of a burden to legitimate business, he considered the trouble a small price for protection against unfair competition for the investor's dollar from fraudulent interests.

Bane made it perfectly clear that all would have to file the required information, for, as he put it, until such data had been impartially analyzed, it would be difficult for government officials to know which were the financially pure. He pointed out that in the absence of such official information some years ago it had been widely assumed that the late Ivar Kreuger and the Insulls were financiers of high standing.

Bane remarked:

"As soon as financial houses become adjusted to the new regulations, the flow of capital into business will doubtless be smoother than before. Not only will the public be protected by the knowledge that the facts are on file here to be made use of as needed, but investment bankers themselves, I believe, will be safeguarded by these standardized forms. In the past, they sometimes relied on the personality and standing of clients, and neglected, as in the Kreuger situation, to get ample data for themselves as well as for their customers."

Bane indicated that the Federal Trade Commission will concern itself mainly with injunctions and estoppal proceedings against fraudulent operators. Criminal proceedings, however, he said, would be left to the Department of Justice. The act also gives victimized investors certain new privileges in civil proceedings.

Railroads Move Ahead Following Early Recessions

Rail shares ran into a renewal of selling in early dealings and backed off for sizeable losses before developing worthwhile resistance. New York Central loadings figures revealed that traffic held up decidedly well last week considering the interruption caused by the holiday which the period embraced. Loadings were only 13.5 per cent smaller than in the preceding week, but compared with the same week last year were larger by 44.8 per cent. The total of cars handled the week before had run 42 per cent ahead of the 1932 figure.

For the tenth consecutive week power production has disclosed substantial gains over the rate of output for the corresponding period last year. From May 6, when the 1933 line first crossed the 1930 trend, to the week ended July 1, the last full week reported, output has shown a cumulative expansion of about 16 per cent. In the same period last year the rate of output increased by only about 2 per cent.

The speculation in "wet" stocks has been the feature of the current advance and brokers say there is no letup in demands for stocks which have anything to do past present or future with alcoholic beverages. Undoubtedly some of these will show some justification for the kiting in values going on but there will be the usual quota which will receive stock market attention far in excess of anything the companies may develop.

The reorganization committee of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company, which was appointed by the management, and the five bondholders' committees formed this week are working in harmony, according to Charles Hayden, chairman of the Rock Island board. He said: "It is up to the readjustment committee to determine what money may be raised to finance a reorganization. Obviously, this should be done before bondholders are asked for an extension or for any other step in furtherance of a reorganization."

Dow, Jones & Co today said that Radio Corporation of America had a loss of about $1,250,000 for the first half year. More than $800,000 of this total resulted from second quarter operations. For the six months to June 30, 1932, the company had net profit of $219,405.

Cotton jumped $2 a bale in a lively buying movement this afternoon.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's statement that the campaign for acreage reduction was "moving rapidly and apparently successfully to a conclusion," appeared to be a market factor. Also, there were reports of hot, dry weather in Texas.

The advance put prices into new high ground for the year. October and December cotton crossed 11 cents a pound.

Allied Chemical Case Will Affect Future Market Policies

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE VICTORY of the New York Stock Exchange in its fight with the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation will have an important effect on the future policies of leading corporations whose securities are listed.

Following complaints from stockholders who declared that the information supplied by the company in its reports was inadequate, the exchange requested that Allied Chemical and Dye publish statements which would conform to standard practices and which would reveal some of the hidden facts about the organization's financial position and its operations.

Allied Chemical refused to comply with the request. After a lengthy correspondence, which the exchange has made public, a threat was made that the stock would be removed from the list unless the company met the requirements in regard to supplying the public with a reasonable amount of information. After a short time the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation yielded to the demands of the exchange.

* * *

Action Establishes Important Precedent

THE VICTORY of the exchange is likely to be far-reaching in its effects. Allied Chemical and Dye is not the only corporation with listed securities which has made reports which cover up information vital to investors and speculators.

Allied Chemical happened to be one of the biggest organizations which issued misleading reports. It happened to be one in which there was a large amount of market interest. It happened to be one in which minority stockholders were sufficiently outraged to complain.

There are many other such organizations which are less prominent. The exchange has been working quietly for years to force these companies to publish earnings statements which are clear and which give enough facts to permit reasonable analysis. In some of these cases the efforts of the exchange have been rewarded with satisfactory results. In others, efforts have been fruitless.

* * *

Exchange Will Be Able to Dictate

THE SUCCESSFUL efforts of the exchange in the case of Allied Chemical should make it an easy matter for the organization to bring companies of lesser importance into line.

The firm stand taken by the exchange in demanding that Allied Chemical publish satisfactory reports represented a great service to the investing public. If the exchange follows up its victory and compels other organizations to be equally frank in their reports to stockholders, it will have given additional proof of its value to the financial world.

SAVAGE PARADISE

Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas

By MARGARET MATCHES

CHAPTER XLVIII.

For the next few days when we were thrown into close contact, I had opportunity to learn more about Sari. Her twin brother had been killed in the war, which had nearly broken her heart. Thereafter had come a checkered career. I gathered that she had worked in a munitions factory in England as a volunteer. Then came a long illness, leaving her with a blank memory. A wealthy English woman took an interest in her and cared for her. Sari's memory came back, but still she labored under a mental and physical lethargy.

Finally Lady N. took Sari out with her to her country estate to convalesce, and there, suddenly, like a miracle, her lethargy vanished and she became happy. She described the reaction to me. It was springtime in England, daffodil time, and at the country place there were fields all golden with the daffodils. It was when she came upon these that her lethargy suddenly lifted. Sari's steel-blue eyes brightened at the recollection. All she wanted was to be among the daffodils, knee-deep, and to gather her arms full. This she did, for days, carrying them back to the house and arranging them in baskets to be sent to war hospitals in London.

After the war she married an Australian. She says he was a beast, and she lived with him for only three weeks. Then she told me that she had a little son. His miniature showed a blond boy with wistful eyes and mouth. Where was he? I asked. Sari said he was then in charge of a married couple in Sydney who adored him and wanted to adopt him. But she loved him herself, she would never give him up. He was much better off as he was than with her, she said; she couldn't stand the strain of model behavior that she underwent when she was with him. He had never seen her smoke, for instance, and never heard her swear. He was 5 then. When he is 7 he is to return to England, where Lady N. is going to have him educated.

LISTENS LONG TIME

I would let Sari go on talking by the hour; I lay watching her, my hands clasped behind my head. She had such an appalling knowledge of life! It was when she talked of her little boy, chiefly, that I saw the woman behind the gaudy, shoddy exterior. She told me about the advent of her baby, her eyes softened by the memory.

"I wanted my baby so terribly," she went on, "though I hated its father. They suggested to me, when I discovered it was coming, that I get rid of it, and I could have torn them to pieces . . . I shall never forget the night that I quickened. I was living in Sydney alone; I was sleeping out on a balcony underneath the stars at the time. All of a sudden I felt myself quicken . . . Then I knew the most curious sensation. I seemed to be lifted out of myself, away from the world, carried up among the stars. I was part of them. It was almost a delirium. I felt holy, as if nothing that belonged to the earth could touch me. I was too pure for earthly contamination."

* * *

On New Year's Day, free at last of breakbone fever and out of the hospital, I stood on the top of Namanula Hill looking down upon Rabaul. The roots of my heart had grown down to the soil here. The ineffable sweetness of millions of tropical blossoms came to me. I was like a woman who loves a man and yet realizes his unforgivable weaknesses. Such is New Guinea.

SEES JOSS PARADE

Chattering marys passed me on their way to the boom, or open market. On their heads they bore prodigious loads of pineapples, oranges, little finger-bananas, delicious galip nuts, papaws. Pickaninnies trudged along beside them, finger in mouth. A boy in violent laplap swaggered by, wanting to be admired; gorgeous hibiscus behind ears and in arm-bands, and a great blue butterfly fluttering at a length of string from his woolly pate.

I stood there thoughtfully that day, looking down upon Rabaul. I knew the time was coming when I must tear up roots and leave this beautiful place. I cast an appraising eye upon the future. No future here; only deadening of the sense of responsibility and of ambition under the anesthetic of beauty. With the tropics, unless you are a child of the tropics, you must love them and ruthlessly leave them. Already the thought smote me: "However can I cope with the struggle for existence back in New York!" I began to have an uneasy feeling that it was going to be a bitter fight. It was.

Strange sounds came up to me from the town far below. There was a fusillade of firecrackers, the shouting of many people, the clanging of brass instruments. Chinatown was holding a joss parade.

I am here to witness that a joss parade is hell let loose. It is a day when the sacred dragon frightens away all evil spirits—a purification by fire. Two processions were weaving through Chinatown, preceded and followed by the beating of drums and the clashing of cymbals. The principal figure of each procession was the joss, a Celestial who wears a huge dragon's head and trails a long flowing robe. From every house in Chinatown dangled a dozen or more long ropes of firecrackers. The joss, accompanied by two agile Chinese attendants who fan him frantically and smother the fire when his garments frequently ignite, dances down the road, turning this way and that. At each house he pauses, the crackers are ignited, and the dragon-devil dances, hops and leaps among the exploding firecrackers. They burst all over and around him. Then, with head down, executing his strange, frenzied dancing progress, he repeats the onslaught at the next doorway, which is a few feet away, for Chinatown is crowded in Rabaul.

JOB WELL DONE

The joss is changed at intervals, giving up his glory to another who dons the devil-dragon head and smoldering robes, for no man could stand for long the maddening heat, cannonading, and physical pain that accompanies the enacting of the chief role in this ceremony.

The joss parade lasted three hours, and Chinatown quickly assumed a bombarded appearance; the path of the dragons was ankle-deep in red and yellow charred wrappings of firecrackers.

But it was a good job well done. Devils and evil spirits must have scattered in all directions before the joss. And all Celestials automatically became a year older on New Year's Day.

I picked up Sari while following the parade. We turned to walk down Casuarina avenue together. Suddenly she stopped, and I saw her raise her walking stick and strike a native such a blow that I thought it must have cracked his chest. In a very terrible voice she said, "You black swine!" I feared she was going to strike him again (it is the law that no white may strike a native under any provocation), but he was gone. I looked at her uncomprehending, thinking that she had suddenly lost her mind. It seemed that the kanaka, probably stupid from celebrating the day with an excess of betel-nut, had said "Good day, missus" as he passed us. This, too, is a serious offense, for no native is permitted to speak to a white woman unless he is spoken to. At any rate, Sari had evened up the score.

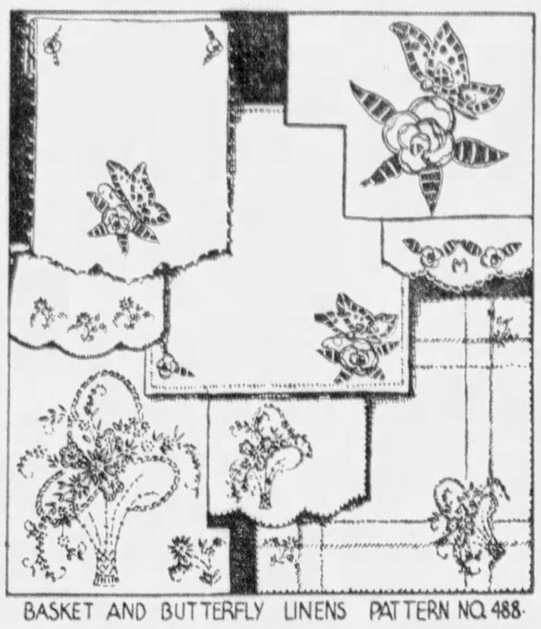
EMBROIDER YOUR LINENS



BASKET AND BUTTERFLY LINENS PATTERN NO. 488.

Since cutwork and lazy-daisy with French knots are the most popular forms of embroidery today, motifs of these favorite types have been assembled in Pattern No. 488. Cutwork designs can also be carried out in outline and single stitches by those who prefer to do so. This pattern offers the opportunity of making a variety of linens, from towels to scarfs, in most varied types of embroidery. Cutwork motifs lend elegance to any linen. Lazy-daisy and French knots give the opportunity for color variety, that most desirable touch today. The pattern includes two larger cutwork motifs 6¾ inches square, two smaller ones 2x4½ inches; two lazy-daisy baskets 7½ inches square; four sprays 2¼ inches square and two outlines for the end of a scarf to make a varied edge as shown; illustrated directions of the stitches, color schemes and suggestions for placing the motifs to make a variety of linens.

Send 15c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Particularly necessary is the magnifying mirror if a girl must tint her eyelids. It is not easy to apply shadows neatly. The effect depends upon a skillful fadeaway of the coloring substance as it extends beyond the far corner of the eye. Also, the tint should be darker at the eyelash line, fainter as it creeps toward the eyebrows.

Do you know that, very often, the first wrinkles appear just in front of the ears? Tissues there are soft, thin and delicate. When doling out the sweetly odorous cosmetic oil or cream, get in a few vigorous taps right there. And ice ironing won't do a bit of harm.

Deep breathing and out-of-doors exercise promote exhileration of the spirit as well as the body. They are cosmetic agents that don't cost anything, are more precious than golden treasure. Change of activities is the cure for that tired feeling, tired eyes, swollen eyelids. So we must urge the office worker and shopgirl to spend every unoccupied hour with Mister Al Fresco. Play golf or tennis, swim or walk. Get blood streams to marching. Lap up the ozone. The good effect upon appearance will be noticeable; old worry bugs will up and scamper. Health is the foundation of the temple of beauty. To be up to health par one must know how to play, relax.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Is there a Junior Patrol in your neighborhood, fellows?

If not, why don't you start one? We are getting ready for some interesting surprises for Junior Patrol members here in the Mail Box, but you will like them a lot better if you belong to a club.

The first thing to remember, of course, is that every member must sign a pledge slip or make a copy of the pledge slip printed on this page and then send it in to the Sun-Telegraph office.

You can see that it wouldn't be fair for Uncle Quin Hall to send membership cards and badges to fellows who haven't signed the Junior Patrol pledge.

We have received a lot of letters from fellows who forgot about signing pledges and we are trying to mention all their names here in the Mail Box. If they will send in their Junior Patrol promises, we will put them on the roll with all the other thousands of Junior Patrol members. Then you'll be all set to elect your Captain and Lieutenant, and begin meeting as a Junior Patrol club, having good times together and helping others all you can.

Here's a nice letter the Mail Box got today from Louise Goldstock, of 2207 Parkview avenue:

"I would like to become a member of the Junior Patrol. My membership blank was torn, so if you want to know the date of my birth, it is December 25, 1921. I read in the Junior Patrol Mail Box that you would like to hear any interesting coincidences. We have one in our own family, every member's birthday being on a holiday, even my parents' wedding anniversary. I would like to start a patrol among my friends. When I do I will write you about it."

We are waiting for your next letter, Louise. Your badge and membership card are on the way, and we hope that you will get your patrol started soon in your neighborhood. When you write again, please tell us what holidays your relatives birthdays are on. That is very interesting, and maybe some other members of the Junior Patrol know other coincidences like that.

Another girl-member of the Junior Patrol, Ethel Lorenz, of Castle Shannon, sends us a mighty nice poem about the Junior Patrol, and a nice letter to go with it. Here's her whole letter:

"I want to tell you I can play the piano and I would like to play on your program. I can write poetry. Here is some called 'The Club I Like.' Here goes:

"Wouldn't you like to come with me,
To a club I know quite well,
That club is the Junior Patrol,
It's good and great and swell.
I think you would like it, kiddies,
It's the nicest there could be,
And all you do is sign the pledge
And you'll be happy like me."

O. K., Ethel. That is a swell poem, and when you write some more, please let us see them.

We'll have to see about making room for you on the program, too.

Here's another letter we got signed by 13 fellows from Ambridge, among them Edward Cottage, of 1645 Merchant street; Lawrence Moore, of 1612 Church street, and a lot of other fellows from that neighborhood. Fellows, you are some more who want to join the Junior Patrol and didn't send in your pledge slips. Send them along and we will sign you up. Here's some more of their letter:

"We have a clubhouse and have named it the 'Junior Patrol.'"

That's great and we're rooting for you. "Boys of the Junior Patrol." Looks like you would be one of the best clubs we have just as soon as you send in your pledges or copies and get your cards and pins.

Who makes a furnace of his mouth
And keeps his chimney burning;
May each true woman shun his sight
For fear his fumes will choke her,
And none but those who smoke themselves
Have kisses for the smoker.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Too many persons who are not hard pressed financially accept every opportunity to tell of their "straitened circumstances".

Many who never purchased a bond or owned stocks in their lives, tell of the losses they have sustained due to a dropping market value.

Conditions seem to provide these people with an excuse for not paying debts and allow them to create an impression that they have been losers in the stock market.

To be sure incomes have decreased in the past two years and much hardship has resulted.

But if only those who have really suffered and have not had enough to meet everyday expenses complained, the adverse sentiment, which has so much to do with present conditions, would not exist to the present extent.

Less complaining would make for quicker recovery.

A lot of you fellows have not suffered from lack of necessities.

You have had to cut down on your expenses in lavish entertaining, yes.

But your cuts have had to be only in matters of personal pleasure.

Quit your pessimistic talk—all that has happened to you is a reduction in the speed by which your bank accounts have increased.

Isn't It So?

People who boast of being aristocratic live so far from their old home town that they don't have their relatives drop around to humble them.

The fact it takes all kinds of people to make a world readily accounts for the mess it is in now.

The way women dress these days they show most everything but their good judgment.

The finest endurance record we know of is a golden wedding.

Kings Shouldn't Take Baths

Most interesting of all periodical reforms is when a great man has his daze in court.

We will take an industrial giant who runs railroads, manipulates boat lines, has a string of banks longer than a tornado's tail and whose word is law among the law evaders.

Place him in his palatial suits of swivel chairs and he moves mountains at a nod and turns rivers from their courses. He makes the sun stand still and the firmament less firm.

He is a gigantic imposing figure against the financial sky. He consults with nobody. His judgment is better than gravy at a barbecue. In all things his solitude is magnificent. He is a lone wolf.

He knows everything. He is a human index filing system.

But when he ankles into an investigation he is flanked, ambuscaded and bracketed by advisors, lawyers and nudgers. He can't remember a thing.

When the judge asks him a question the lone wolf becomes a sociable rabbit. He goes into a five-yard line huddle with his storm troops. Each trooper carries a big book. One has the day ledger, another the night ledger and the rest have lunch ledgers, afternoon nap ledgers and twilight ledgers. They pack books for any emergency that might poke its bashful head above the ground.

No question is answered by him directly. It is kicked around among the assistant great minds until it is lost. The solitary lobo is always two questions in back of the field. He never does catch up to the investigation. This is what is known as slow-balling the judge.

It's smart work, delays the strain, equalizes the stress and distributes the load. It also neutralizes the chances of spontaneous honesty bursting into bud

The whole affair rather pulverizes our awe of the publicized giants of the financial world.

Not that the investigations amount to anything. But they have their uses. We have always thought that democracy started when the king's subjects saw him in the bath tub.

The Trade of Housemaid

Pittsburgh Girls Seeking Domestic Employment Find It Requires Skill

The Women's Bureau in the United States Department of Labor tells in its current "News Letter" how girls are trained for household employment by the Pittsburgh Young Women's Christian Association.

The Association's "metropolitan industrial secretary" is quoted to this effect: Many girls in Pittsburgh's offices and factories who lost their jobs when the depression came sought employment as housemaids but could not qualify because of lack of training.

For their benefit the Association gave an eight weeks' course in cooking, cleaning, laundry work, marketing, meal planning and general care of the home. Most of the girls who took the course have been placed in jobs which are slightly better than the average.

The report is interesting because of the light it throws on household employment as a form of labor calling for much preliminary instruction and study.

A good housemaid is a skilled worker and deserves to be paid as such.

Open Season for Beaver

The Game Commission Will Have to Be Careful If the Dam Builders Are Not Again to Vanish.

Nature lovers will receive with misgivings the State Game Commission's announcement that it will permit beaver to be trapped between March 1 and April 10 next year. Unless extreme care is taken the interesting animals may again disappear from sections of Pennsylvania where they are now fairly abundant.

Bearer of a valuable fur, the beaver was hunted in Pennsylvania to the point of extermination.

Eighteen years ago the Game Commission re-introduced the beaver by buying about 50 in Wisconsin and releasing them near Sizersville.

The Game Commissions' excuse for declaring an open season is that the beaver are destroying property by cutting trees, damming streams and flooding fields.

But there are large areas in the mountains where the animals, though abundant, trouble nobody, and it will be a pity if they are to be killed off there as well as in the farming regions.

The protection of the farmers from the ravages of beaver might well be left to the game wardens. The sale of the pelts probably would reimburse the commission for such additional expenditures as this protective work might involve.

The Bride Crop

Up 12½ Per Cent.

More interesting than the news that business is better in 100 cities and fully as significant are the figures on the crop of June brides at New York's Little Church Around the Corner.

They indicate a distinct pickup in the matrimonial business, and matrimony is a good barometer of business conditions generally.

In June, 1932, only 165 knots were tied at this famous "marrying" church.

In June, 1933, 186 ceremonies were performed.

This is an increase of 21, or, if you are statistically minded, about 12½ per cent.

The depression in weddings has been pretty serious up to June, it seems.

In the first part of this year the number had fallen off by half from the total for the same period last year.

And last year was, of course, not up to the year before.

But now the tide has turned.

Brides don't spend much on their clothes these days, it is true.

Most of them save the difference and put it into furniture or pots and pans.

However, they are getting married now, and that is what matters.

Evidently there is something to this New Deal after all.

Business Trips by Air

One Worth Reading About.

Despite record airplane trips, only a small percentage of American businessmen realize the tremendous savings of time—and therefore of money—that this means of transportation offers them in covering distances.

This incident, therefore, may interest them.

A representative of the Hearst newspapers in Chicago recently visited both San Francisco and New York and returned to Chicago in less than 44 hours.

Using passenger planes on regularly scheduled flights he flew from Chicago to San Francisco in one night. He was back in Chicago at 2 a. m. next day. Then he reached New York at 7:38 a. m. and was home again in Chicago at 1:55 p. m.

In four hours less than two days he had crossed the continent twice. With the loss of a little sleep you can do the same.

This is a more strenuous performance than most persons are called on to make, but it shows what can be done in emergencies by availing yourself of planes. And by this time next year more hours will have been shaved off the time.

Use the air when you have any rush business.

A Problem: The Ant

When Will Pennsylvania Recognize the Needs of the Family Formicoidea?

Mr. Engelsberg sues Mr. Mackrell. The World Economic Conference totters. Mr. Rockefeller reaches 94 and Aviator Mattern is found.

But what about The Ant? Certainly no one will doubt that it is high time the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania does something for The Ant.

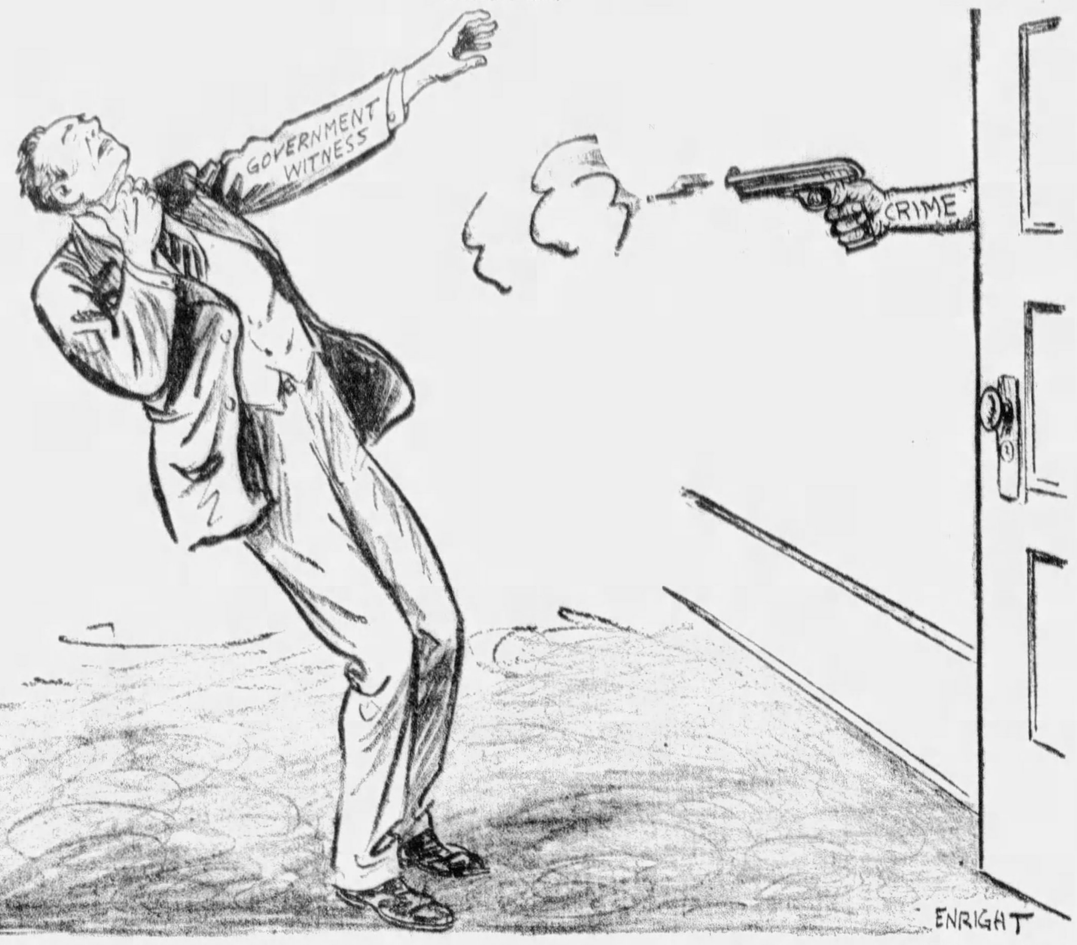
The Ant, as every cross-word puzzle addict knows, is akin to the ameise, which is of uncertain origin. The Ant is of the family Formicoidea. In short, an emmet.

A conservative estimate would place Pennsylvania's Ants in the millions. They, too, have suffered since October, 1929. But the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania goes along in its casual, sedentary way, ignoring the needs of The Ant.

Something should be done. And done NOW.

The Rod of Iron

(Copyright, 1933.)



"We do not care—we do not dare—to reveal names of our witnesses.

"I do not care to say what our evidence will be, because I do not know who will be surviving to testify to it.

"Four witnesses have already been murdered."

Those statements are shocking—are they not? And they are even more shocking when you consider that they were made by a FEDERAL Prosecutor in a FEDERAL Court in New York City.

They mean exactly what they say—that four witnesses in an income tax case against a suspected boss racketeer have been killed before they could testify.

Such conditions do not exist in England or Canada. They can be stopped in this country.

Already, in the New York district, the Federal Bar Association has a committee for the suppression of racketeering. Every bar association in the country ought to have a similar committee—all of them busy.

The lawyers can do more than any other profession to give America the kind of justice it needs.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Makes Men Lovable?

What makes a man attractive to women?

* * *

Much as he may be surprised and shocked to learn it, it is seldom the qualities on which he prides himself and which he tries to feature, that appeal to the opposite sex. It is usually the little characteristics which he has tried all his life to conquer or to hide.

* * *

For instance, there is the type of man who is always trying to impress a girl with his worldly wisdom, sophistication and superior judgment, and who is constantly offering her unsolicited information and advice, with the idea that he is dazzling the simple little thing—when he is merely boring.

The "cave-man" is fading out of the picture, but there is still the Big He-man, who imagines that nothing inspires the women with so much admiration as brute-masterfulness and masculine domination. He has the old-fashioned notion that every woman likes to be "conquered" and, figuratively speaking, dragged about by the hair. And a few women still DO.

* * *

But there is nothing like a little secret shyness and boyishness in a man to touch the average woman's heart and awaken all her maternal yearnings. Modesty in any man is always SUCH a sweet surprise! And tenderness and reserve always appeal to a woman's imagination, and make her see a lot of wonderful qualities in a man that never really were THERE.

A very young man loves to pose as a Don Juan or a Casanova and to impress every girl with his prowess as a woman-tamer. He fancies that the background of a purple past spotted with broken hearts lends him luster in her eyes.

* * *

But every girl, modern or old-fashioned, has dreamed all her life of an ideal lover with all the steadfastness of a Cyrano de Bergerac and all the one-woman devotion of a Romeo. And she has no passionate desire to join the large throng in an overcrowded heart.

* * *

There is always the man who likes to pose as a wit or to shine as a cynic. But the "life of the party" gets on a normal woman's nerve like static on the radio. Whereas, a man who can be eloquently silent, piques her curiosity. A woman likes an "audience" as much as a man does.

* * *

You'd fancy that a man's achievements and success WOULD arouse a woman's admiration. And they DO. But she will fall twice as quickly for the man who tells her of his failures and heartaches, and appeals to her sympathy.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 12.—It's refreshing to hear so many hopelessly-hopeful of a year or so ago have found their way out of the woods. This is especially true of innumerable who suddenly found no outlet for talents acquired in years of endeavor. Careers came to full stop.

I know one job-losing lady who, when the anesthesia of despair wore off, turned from fashion designing to a job as telephone operator in a hotel. So indispensable did she make herself she is directress of two jointly owned hotels. And with living expenses included, possesses a bigger income than ever.

There's Floyd Gibbons' friend who, home and job gone, hitchhiked to New York and after six weeks on the breadline was ready to call it a day with a leap off a pier end. On way to the river he asked a stranger for a light. The flare revealed a one-time pal. They are now co-owners of a Madison avenue shop.

Five forthright newspapermen, all sacked more than three years ago in New York, are riding top-gallant again. One in China and two in Europe. All businessmen now. Two leading men of the stage are getting by nicely selling real estate—of all things—at depression prices on Long Island. And so on.

* * *

The late John Vandercook used to say a penalty of excellence was criticism. The most careful grammarian I know was telling Arthur Samuels at breakfast that the editor of a magazine for which he writes received 32 complaints because he used a passive verb for the intransitive form. In the same issue a less meticulous writer placed a city in Indo-China in Japan and lobbed his phrasing six distinct times. But there was not a single squawk!

* * *

It was told, too, that the aggressively racial Dr. Stephen S. Wise, who has more buckitty-buckitty than any other public figure, never sleeps more than five hours of a night and mostly four. His reserve force is astounding. He averages 20 addresses a week, aside from rabbinical duties and direction of more than 100 charities.

* * *

Also a waiter brought an orb of Edam. As a veteran morning cheesist I was interested to see if others gouged out a spoonful. Three out of nine did and each of them—Rube Goldberg, Lowell Thomas and Howard Chandler Christy—immediately stoked pipes. There is an affinity between pipe and cheese. The only time I hanker to smoke is after eating cheese, and instead of the cigaret it is for a pipe.

* * *

Speakeasies and high-faluting restaurants have done much to keep the pipe in the background in America. The pipe goes with a pewter of ale at twilight on a well-polished bench of a White Boar Inn. I like to watch Bob Brinkerhoff's unashamed affection for his old blackened briar. He caresses the elbow with his fingers, rubs it on his coat-sleeve to peer into the dim shine. This is his company pipe. On his drawing board he has a charred corn cob with the most robust odor ever encountered outside a tan yard. Appropriately, he calls it "Old Jasper." Christopher Morley is New York's most devout pipe-smoker.

* * *

My father's black porter, Hannibal, smoked a pipe constructed of an acorn and a straw. But always left it in a niche in the courthouse a block away, it was that vigorous. I was once to the windward of Hannibal and his pipe in a surrey and this was one reason tney never thought they'd raise me. * * *

I drove a lady the other evening past the country home she entered as a bride just 28 years ago that evening. She and her husband have separated and her children married. One of those luxurious Windsor Castle establishments with richly gabled stables, gardener's chateaux and patioed servant halls, it had become to her a sigil of sorrow. Her eyes misted but she smiled through and was laughing when she reached her third-rate hotel in a shabby street. Life is funny.

* * *

Home, I called through the house to my wife, all merry and bright, that she was pretty lucky to have a Faithful Old Slob around after all these years. "Like a leech," I emphasized holding up two fingers close together. "Like a leech is correct," she sniffed "What became of that change from a five dollar bill this morning?" You'd think I was a deadbeat or something! I can't remember everything.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"They should put a stop to your writing," snipes she. "You are doing terrible harm by sentimentalizing over all these ignorant, illiterate, unemployed people.

"It is disgusting to say that they and the better people are 'all of a piece.' There may be a few decent persons among them, but everyone knows that most of those creatures are little better than animals. They don't want to work. They are making a racket of their idleness. And writers such as you are encouraging them.

"Of course you don't mean it. Actually, you have no more sympathy with them than the rest of us. But it pays you to play to the gallery. You don't care what harm you do, as long as you get your money. It's people like you who start revolutions."

Is that a real letter? It is. It is also an important letter. It is important because it gives the sincere opinion of several million fat, comfortable, well-protected Americans about many more millions of Americans, who are not so fat or so comfortable, and who are not protected at all.

It matters little what this lady thinks of me. But it matters greatly what she and the rest of the "Better People" think of those other millions—and that letter states exactly what most of them do think.

They think (and maybe you're one of them) that the human race is divinely divided into Classes and masses. They believe that the masses differ in every respect from the Classes—that the masses lack all the deeper emotions and finer feelings peculiar to "Better People"—that they wouldn't appreciate or use an opportunity if they had it. In short, however charitable their outward acts may be, the classes secretly regard the masses exactly as they regard the monkeys in the zoo—as something utterly alien to their own nature.

Not only do these privileged Americans believe these notions, but, because they hold the bulk of wealth, they have been running the country according to these notions. And they honestly feel that Heaven is behind them, as well as Wall Street.

What can the unwashed millions do about that? What answer can they give to prove their common humanity, their common anguish?

Long ago a great writer wrote that answer and put it into the outcry of a broken-hearted Jew. But the passionate protest was not for Jews alone. It was for all the poor, the forgotten, the despised—for all those who sweat and weep while the powerful and privileged loll and laugh. In tortured Shylock's cry, all those despised ones find their voice at last:

"I AM A JEW. HATH NOT A JEW EYES? HATH NOT A JEW HANDS, ORGANS, DIMENSIONS, SENSES, AFFECTIONS, PASSIONS? FED WITH THE SAME FOOD, HURT WITH THE SAME WEAPONS, SUBJECT TO THE SAME DISEASES, HEALED BY THE SAME MEANS, WARMED AND COOLED BY THE SAME WINTER AND SUMMER AS A CHRISTIAN IS? IF YOU PRICK US, DO WE NOT BLEED? IF YOU TICKLE US DO WE NOT LAUGH? IF YOU POISON US, DO WE NOT DIE?

"HAVE THEY NOT EYES"—those desperate ones who wait, denied their chance? Eyes that weep tears as salt as your or mine; eyes that flame with visions, burn with injustice, melt with love and pity?

And if, through lack of decent opportunity, their eyes remain dull or become brutal, whose fault is it; whose shame?

"HAVE THEY NOT HANDS"—hands that reach us hungrily as ours, that clench as furiously, touch as tenderly, fold as frantically in prayer?

"DO THEY NOT BLEED?" Can their hearts not break as ours break? Watch a poor mother, huddled over the grave of her crippled child!

Can their pride not be shattered? Face a bread line, if you dare!

"Not of a piece with us!" Let the God who made us in His image from the same lump of clay, and breathed into us all the same breath of His life, judge of that. And He will!

The Human Side of the News

The Bomb Explosions at St. Peter's—The Paintings of Michaelangelo—His Love For Vittoria Colonna

By EDWIN C. HILL

GOD is not impressed by a puff of smoke and a little noise. Nor startled by the explosion of a bomb even in the gateway of His House. Reading about the present attempt made to injure the great cathedral of St. Peter's in Rome and the neighboring Vatican by bomb explosions, one is inclined to marvel at the strange conceit of the human being who built the bombs and set them off.

What did he hope to accomplish outside of the wrecking of a doorway or a wall? Could his puny gesture, his little puff of smoke, his little explosion change the face of religious thought, deflect the current of history or alter the plans of the Almighty?

The most and the worst he could have accomplished was to injure or wreck the architectural work which stands as one of the greatest creations of the greatest artist who ever lived, Michaelangelo—the Basilca of St. Peters; or perhaps ruin the most famous paintings of the world, those which are perhaps the grandest in perception and execution, the Frescoes of the Ceiling of the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican, the master work of the same incredible genius Michaelangelo.

I doubt if anyone can gaze up to them and not stand breathless with admiration for the tremendous sweep of imagination which conceived them and the perfect beauty of their design.

They are one of the treasures of the world, not merely of the Roman Catholic Church which so freely reveals them to any visitor to the Vatican. Reproductions of these frescoes have been scattered all over the world and published in a thousand books. To create them, the great master spent four years lying upon his back at the top of a lofty scaffolding painstakingly executing figure after figure, working in a wretched light, and with imperfect eyesight, until the whole ceiling was decorated, in nine compartments, with the allegorical characters which portray the story of man and of the world from the Creation to the Flood.

* * *

Great Frescoes Delight Millions

MICHAELANGELO began to paint those mighty frescoes in the year 1508. For 425 years they have been the admiration of the world and the despair of artists.

Since 1512 countless millions have gazed upward at the ceiling of the private chapel of the Popes. Artists have made reverent pilgrimages to the shrine. And there they have caught a majestic reflection of the overwhelming genius and power which could imagine and faultlessly achieve such a pictorial record of the great hand of God moulding the universe.

They have gazed upward at Michaelangelo's sibyls and prophets and slaves, and the whole vast panorama from the creation of the sun and the moon and the stars, the creation of Adam and Eve, the temptation of the serpent and the expulsion from the garden and the deluge which wiped out a world displeasing to its Maker. Every one of the creations rising into mighty significance from roots deep in daily human nature.

The nine great compartments of the ceiling deal with these nine subjects: the dividing of the light from darkness, the creation of the heavenly bodies, the creation of the waters upon the earth, the creation of man, the creation of woman, the temptation and expulsion, the sacrifice of Noah, the deluge and the drunkenness of Noah.

Attitudes and combinations of unmatched variety and grandeur, the profoundest knowledge and the most searching realism, with the noblest elements of grace and tenderness, and the whole the sublimest work ever done by the hand of man.

Some of the paintings are badly faded and barely distinguishable. But among the numerous smaller paintings between the crown of the vault and the walls, among the figures of prophets and sibyles, is the head of a lovely woman, a head and charming face, whose colors seem as fresh and bright today as when Michaealangelo finished his task more than four centuries ago—the head of one of the women of the Colonna family, with whom the great artist was madly in love. A woman with red-gold hair and blue, blue yes, and the carriage of the Princess that she was . . . the daughter of a great house . . . of a family whose name is one of the proudest in Rome to this very day.

His Heart Broken By Her Death

SHE was Vittoria Colonna. For years, until her death, her friendship was the one solace of the life of an embittered and unhappy man. Upon her in all loyalty and reverence he poured the treasures of his mind and all the imprisoned powers of his tenderness and devotion. She inspired his poetry. For her he completed a task no other man had been able to finish, the great Dome of St. Peter's.

For her he made cold marble breathe with fire and beauty. It was her death in 1547 which broke his heart and severed the strand which connected this solitary, weary man with all humanity. But he lived on for further mighty tasks, to add to achievements, such, I think, as no artist has ever been able to match . . . in painting, in poetry, in sculpture, in architecture.

Italy today is rich with the creations of this mighty intellect. He is far more alive than millions who tread the streets, this heroic old man whose last remains of strength gave way while he was planning still further vast schemes, and who closed his eyes finally, on the eighteenth day of February in the year 1564, on the threshold of his ninetieth year.

FRIEND'S TRAGEDY

By Winifred Black

"What on earth is the matter with Mary?" said Mary's old friend yesterday, "She's a nervous wreck—haven't you noticed it?"

"Um-um," said Mary's new friend. "I've been noticing it for quite a while, so do you know what I did? Well, I got up yesterday morning and I took a moderately heavy stocking and tied it over my eyes—I pinned it good and tight. I could see the light dimly and I could see in a way the walls of the room and something dark that I knew must be the floor.

"Then I started to dress—it took me quite a while to find my stockings and when I did find them it was a bit of a bore to keep them smooth and straight.

"I usually dress like a streak of lightning. Yesterday I was like a lumbering, creeping old oxcart. By the time I was ready for breakfast I was ready to scream, too.

"Breakfast—good fun—breakfast when you can see what you are eating; but when you can't find your fork and you are afraid to grope for it for fear of knocking something over and when you can't find the butter you groan, 'Oh, well, butter isn't good for me anyway,' and let it go.

"The coffee is hot and you can't see to put some cool cream into it. By the time you are through with breakfast you want to go off in a corner somewhere and cry.

"The paper rustles on a chair near by. You are crazy to see it. You, who have read a page at a glance, must wait and hear it read—not paragraph by paragraph, not sentence by sentence, not even word by word, but syllable by syllable. You must get it all.

"Someone speaks in the room close beside you. When you can't see who it is a vague terror shakes your heart and you have to sink your nails into the palms of your hands to keep from showing your fright.

"Oh, you know it's all right, of course—but you can't see—you can't see!

"I kept this bandage around my eyes for 24 hours and this morning when I took it off I felt as if it had been an escape of a poor old person from the death house at the penitentiary.

"Yes, Mary is nervous—if I were in her place I wouldn't be nervous. I'd be stark, staring, raving crazy.

"Mary is losing her eyesight, you know."

Mary's old friend stared:

"I suppose it is hard for Mary," she said, "but wouldn't you think?"

And what would you think, if you were Mary or Mary's friend?

RULES OF THE CONTEST

No. 1—The A & P Stores of Southwestern Pennsylvania, portion of Ohio River Valley and Northern West Virginia (see map) are sending 100 boys to the World's Fair at Chicago for six days, all expenses paid from the time the boy leaves his doorstep until he returns.

No. 2—The above contest territory is divided into six zones (see map). Each zone is allotted a certain number (listed below) of winners. These zones are based on the density of population.

Zone 1 will have 5 winners
Zone 2 will have 50 winners
Zone 3 will have 10 winners
Zone 4 will have 10 winners
Zone 5 will have 15 winners
Zone 6 will have 10 winners
100

By having the territory so divided, every boy will have an equal chance of winning and will assure a more equal distribution of the "Free Trip Prizes" over the entire territory.

No. 3—Every boy between the ages of 12 to 18, residing in the trading area (see map) is eligible to participate in this contest, except boys of any member of the A & P organization or their relatives' boys. A boy working in an A & P store or delivering orders or connected in any way with any A & P store, regardless of the course of his compensation, is NOT eligible to enter this contest, nor any of his relatives. Neither is he permitted to collect votes from any customers.

No. 4—No boy will be eligible without the signed approval of his parents or guardian.

No. 5—The object of this contest is for you to ask your parents, relatives, friends and neighbors to trade at the A & P, where one vote will be given by all A & P managers or clerks for each 5c purchase. The boys in each zone accumulating the largest number of votes for the week will be awarded the free trip to Chicago.

No. 6—There are five (5) separate contests—No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, No. 5. Each contest will run for one week. The boys having the greatest number of votes in each zone for the week's contest will win a trip to Chicago's Fair. Each following Thursday, a brand new contest starts, and 20 boys will win each week. One Hundred boys will win these coveted prizes. Each contest begins on a Thursday morning and ends on the following Wednesday night. Contest No. 1 began Thursday, June 22nd, and ended Wednesday night, June 28th. Contest No. 2 began Thursdays, June 29th, and ended Wednesday, July 5th, and so on. Contest No. 4 starts Thursday, July 13th. A new Entry Blank must be secured from the manager of any A & P Store for any of the weekly contests the boy wishes to enter. Understand, you are not compelled to enter EVERY contest. You can be one of the winners the fourth or fifth week. A boy, of course, can only win once. The prize is not transferrable or negotiable.

No. 7—The votes given with purchases in all of the stores in this territory (see map) will all be stamped with the number of the contest and the expiration date. For example: the back of the vote coupon will be stamped "No. 4 expires July 19th." You cannot accumulate a lot of votes from other weeks and throw them all into one week. Remember, only the votes stamped with the same contest number and same expiration date, as appears on your entry blank will be counted in that week's contest.

No. 8—You will receive a special envelope with your entry blank. This envelope, when deposited with the store manager, is to contain your entry blank properly filled out and your votes (be sure the contest number and expiration date on all votes in the envelope are for that week's contest). These envelopes, properly filled out, must be deposited with the manager of the A & P store at which you secured your application blank not later than 6 P. M., one day after the week's contest has expired.

No. 9—Below is a table that will help make it clearer:

REMEMBER: You may enter each of the 2 remaining contests, but can win only once.

No. 10—The winners of each week's contest will be published in A & P newspaper ads, in all A & P stores and broadcast over the radio.

No. 11—The boys participating in this contest are distinctly prohibited from standing in front of any A & P store and soliciting the vote coupons from customers leaving or entering the A & P Stores. Any violation of this will disqualify an entry.

No. 12—Any boy entering the contest agrees to accept as final the decision of the Contest Manager on any question that may be raised in the conduct of the Contest and the making of awards. Buying or bartering votes will not be permitted. The A & P Tea Co. reserves the right to reject any entrants and to disqualify any contestants who do not abide by the rules and regulations of the contest.

No. 13—The 100 boys will all leave Pittsburgh together in special cars, in care of a competent and well experienced Attendant, also a registered trained nurse. The best of care and attention will be given all boys.

No. of Boys Who will win Each Week	Contest No.	Next Contest Begins on	Next Contest Ends on	Votes Must Be Stamped	Envelopes with Votes and Entry Blank must be deposited at any A & P Store not later than 6 P. M.
20 Boys	4	July 13	July 19	No. 4 Expires July 19	Thursday, July 20
20 Boys	5	July 20	July 26	No. 5 Expires July 26	Thursday, July 27

No. 14—All A & P employes are pledged to carry out the rules of this contest as stipulated above.

60 boys have already won this contest. 40 more will win. You still have 2 big chances.
